Senate Halts Tax Bill Move

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Senate rejected proposals today to eliminate or tone down provisions in President Nixon's tax bill which will cut corporate taxes by billions of dollars in years to come.

The action came in a Saturday morning session which followed a 12 hour Friday hassle that ended when the Senate agreed to vote Monday on a plan to finance presidential election campaigns through tax dollars.

Defeated this morning after less than two hours of debate were proposals to:

—Kill a provision permitting firms to defer tax payments on half their profits resulting from exporting if the profits are reinvested in export-generating activities. Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., said most of the tax saving of $100 million a year or more would go to about 100 firms.

—Water down a provision allowing firms to depreciate their assets for tax purposes in 20 per cent less time than now required —creating a $1 billion a year tax saving.

On Nov. 12, a proposal to trim back the new depreciation rules was defeated by only two votes. Another vote a few days later preserved that section by only a one-vote margin.

But today, the Senate turned back Nelson's challenge to the rules by a 55-25 vote.

Then, it voted 65-22 against his attempt to kill the exportinducement idea.

The proposals are contained in Nixon's tax bill which was altered in more than a week of Senate debate —would cut individual and business taxes by more than $27 billion over the next three years.

Many Democrats joined in rejecting Nelson's proposals.

The Democratic strategy appeared to be to give Nixon all he sought in business tax relief in hopes he would not veto the bill if the Democrats succeed Monday in attaching a provision to finance presidential election campaigns through tax funds volunteered by taxpayers.

Sen. Wallace F. Bennett of Utah, the Republican floor leader for the tax bill, told reporters he did not know if President Nixon cut short his Florida weekend in order to try to pick up Democratic votes against the campaign financing plan.

"If by returning he can help give us another soldier or two, that's fine. That's what we need."

The outnumbered Republicans agreed late Friday to let it come to a vote on Monday but only after extracting a condition that consideration be given to a proposal by Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., that taxpayers be able to designate which party would receive the funds.

"You can sell it to the indians —but you can't sell it to Pastore!" shouted fiery Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., when they first offered the deal at the end of a long day's wrangling.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., bolted from his seat, ran to Pastore and in an animated conversation convinced him to take the Republican offer.

Throughout the day, the Republicans had stalled a vote by forcing votes on amendment

Orr Blasted In Testimony

Sergeant Claims A Leadership Crisis

By LARRY MOWELL

A veteran Fairfax policeman testified yesterday and today of a leadership and morale crisis on the force while James R. Orr was chief.

Sgt. Paul E. Simpson, on the force since 1963, today told a hearing into Orr's dismissal: "I have to, in all honesty, say the morale has been lacking in the department in the last few years."

The officer, taking the witness stand for the second day, blamed departmental problems on poor administration by the chief.

The testimony, before the city board of review, followed introduction yesterday of a letter written by another officer which pointed to leadership difficulties on the force. Although authored by Sgt. Andy Grimes, who has yet to testify, the letter was read during Grime's first day on the witness stand.

The board, hearing Orr's appeal, sits as judge and jury, having final say over whether the dismissal by city officials was justified.

Orr, chief for nine years, was fired Sept. 30 by City Administrator Robert E. Crowe — an action ratified four days later by a 3-to-2 vote of the city council.

Grime's letter, remarking on departmental conditions in May 1969, was read into the record by City Atty. Wallace S. Myers.

It said, "It is my personal opinion that we, administrators, are directly responsible for the inertia and loss of esprit de corps that has gradually appalled our organization like a cancerous growth.

"While I do not believe we necessarily created this situation intentionally, we have done so through the creation of one gigantic leadership circle, giving the implied consent to disregard what few policies and procedures that existed and presently exist. This leadership circle has been promoted through our lack and ineffectiveness in planning, organizing, directing, staffing and coordinating among other causes."

Simpson said that while Grimes wrote the letter alone, "this is the effect of complaints by the men that were given to him."

Struck Catholic Teachers Await Move By Mediator

Efforts to settle the six-day-old strike of lay teachers at Marin Catholic and six other Bay Area Catholic high schools marked time today while teachers awaited official moves from a federal mediator.

Meanwhile, student body officers of six of the schools involved formally called for the schools to remain open.

The Archidiocese of San Francisco requested mediation yesterday at a meeting of the principals involved.

Rev. Francis A. Lacey, principal of Marin Catholic in Kentfield, said the U.S. Mediation and Conciliation Service promptly agreed to appoint a mediator. He said any future meetings between the archdiocese and the teachers must be called by the mediator.

Jack Breen, a director of the striking Secondary Teachers Association, said today the teachers would not comment on the mediation development because they have received no official word either from the federal office or from the archdiocese.

Breen said the association, now affiliated with the American Federation of Teachers, had received official strike sanction from San Francisco labor officials.

Student body officers of six of the seven schools — including Paul Matthew of Marin Catholic — met yesterday in Kentfield to draw up a position paper.

The students stressed that "we are taking no sides," but called for the schools to remain open and for prompt settlement of the dispute.

"It is out chief concern to maintain the Catholic secondary educational process... which can only be accomplished by keeping our schools open," the students wrote.

"We feel that meaningful negotiations by both sides should have been made before school started," the youths declared.

The students criticized both the teachers and the archdiocese as "selfish in their methods of negotiation" and said students, parents and the public should have been more fully informed about the dispute.

"It is also our belief that there should be no reprisals"

San Rafael Bridge Fares Cut: There's More Traffic

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — The state Toll Bridge Authority yesterday cut passenger vehicle tolls on the San Rafael-Richmond Bridge and approved a toll-free, priority lane plan for car pool commuters on the San Francisco-Oakland span.

The San Rafael-Richmond toll, now 65 cents, will drop to 50 cents each way for passenger vehicles, effective Jan. 1. Toll for passenger cars pulling trailers also will drop by 15 cents.

Monthly commute books will cost the same — $6.

E. R. Foley, chief engineer for the Toll Bridge Authority, said the fare cuts would be offset by increased traffic, which has risen 9 per cent in the past three months and is 8 per cent higher than a year ago.

The toll reduction was the second in a year, the one-way fare dropping from 75 cents in 1970.

The San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge toll-free plan will apply to westbound cars containing three or more passengers between 6 a.m. and 9 a.m. weekdays, also beginning Jan. 1. The authority will use its computers to help East Bay residents form car pools to qualify for the experiment.

Both Gov. Ronald Reagan and James A. Moe, state director of public works, hailed the car pool experiment as a way to speed commuting to San Francisco, reduce traffic volume on the bridge and help combat smog.

(Dale W. Luehring, Golden Gate Bridge District general manager, said he was pleased both with the Bay span car pool experiment and with the reduced San Rafael-Richmond tolls.

(He said the reduced toll on the San Rafael span would lighten traffic somewhat on the Golden Gate Bridge.

(As to the free car pool idea for the Golden Gate Bridge, Luehring said, "I hope we'll be looking at the same idea shortly. It has a lot of merit. Of the 17,000 commute vehicles crossing the Golden Gate Bridge in the morning, only 340 cars carry four or more passengers and 750 to 800 have three or more."

(Luehring said one of the main obstacles to the toll-free car pool plan is the gate span's shortage of lanes at the toll plaza. "The Bay Bridge has surplus lanes," he noted.)

Teen Voters Just Like Parents

Marin County voters in the 18-to-21 age bracket turned out in exactly the same ratio as their elders for the Nov. 2 election, County Elections Officer Peter C. Meyer reported yesterday.

About 2,600 young voters were registered to cast ballots for the first time. Meyer reported that "49 per cent — exactly the same as the countywide total turnout" of the under-21 voters went to the polls.

Not even the novelty of being able to vote for the first time made the young citizens much different from their elders, Meyer said. "We're all the same kind of animals," he said.

Paul M. Cohen, Tamalpais High School student and chairman of the Marin County Youth Commission, said the under-21 turnout was not a disappointment. He believed there was a lack of major issues or contests in the election, and that "we didn't really expect any better."

"We hope by June we'll have more interest" and more registrations among the approximately 8,000 youths of voter age in Marin, he added.

Only two under-21 candidates were on the ballot Nov. 2 — Joseph J. Franaszek Jr. and Christian G. Fritz, both 18.

Amchitka Test Caused Slides

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The underground weapons test of Alaska's Amchitka Island affected bird and marine life as expected, but there were surprising cliff and turf slides, according to an Atomic Energy Commission report.

The AEC report Friday said in general the effects of the blast on wildlife was expected. Dead creatures counted include 18 sea otters, four seals, 16 birds and hundreds of fresh and salt water fish.

But the AEC noted that the shock of the explosion produced larger cliff and turf slides than expected along a two-mile stretch of Amchitka's coast on the Bering Sea.

Marin Bus Service May Hit Hard At Pocketbook

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

The Golden Gate Bridge District's local Marin bus service may cost the county up to $725,000 a year, or almost six times the original estimate.

The district's general manager, Dale W. Luehring, reporting new cost estimates to a committee of bridge directors, hastened to add his "more realistic" estimate that the county's annual cost will be about $450,000.

Directors nevertheless were taken aback. Marin County Supervisor Michael Wornum, sitting as chairman of the joint transportation and finance-auditing committee, said he was "slightly shocked."

Fellow supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. said that "somewhere along the line the cost escalation has to stop."

Luehring explained that "frightfully high inflation" and more service than planned caused the projected sharp escalation in cost. He stressed that the actual cost will not be known until after the local service, to start Dec. 13, has been running for several months.

Service will be provided each half hour, weekdays only.

Under the cost-sharing formula adopted last year by the district and county, the number of total passengers carried on the bridge district's total system, including commuters, will be divided into the number carried on the local service in Marin. The ratio then will be multiplied by the deficit to produce the county's share.

District and county officials attempted last month to work out a simpler formula, but were stymied by new legislation freezing the old formula into state law.

The role of inflation, especially in drivers' wages, was evident in the updated estimate for the annual deficit for the system of 154 buses. Previously figured at $1,052,000, it now stands at $3,022,257.

Also sharply up was anticipated patronage on the local system in Marin, with 1,262,000 passengers expected in the first full fiscal year of operation. The original estimate had been 675,000.

The original estimates for cost and patronage were made by the Marin County Transit District in its "optimum bus plan," upon which the bridge district system will be based.

New estimates by the district staff for costs just from Dec. 13 through next June for the local service were $581,967 with depreciation and $480,799 without depreciation. The committee compromised in a unanimous recommendation to the full board that Marin pay one-third of the depreciation, or about $33,500, if these figures hold up.

The compromise would be conditioned on the bridge district getting an offsetting federal grant covering two-thirds of the capital cost of the new system, or a grant of some $6.1 million.

The new costs apparently will use all county transit district finances by 1974, Arrigoni noted, but he added that enough money still will be available under a new state law extending the sales tax to gasoline. Marin and its cities will get about $1.5 million a year for

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

India Is Blamed

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Communist China has blamed interference by India in the affairs of Pakistan for causing an estimated 9.7 million East Pakistani refugees to flee to India.

Although he did not mention India by name, Chinese representative Fu Hoa, in his first speech in the U.N. General Assembly Social, Humanitarian and Cultural Committee, accused India of ignoring Pakistan's "repeated" proposals to relax tensions in the area.

The flight of East Pakistani refugees to India, now estimated by India to number 9.7 million, was "due to a certain country's interference in Pakistan's internal affairs," the Chinese diplomat said in a speech lasting less than three minutes.

Fu strongly reiterated China's pro-Pakistan position. Both China and the United States have supplied arms to Pakistan.

Rockefeller 'Slain'

PORT MORESBY, New Guinea (UPI) — Michael Rockefeller, son of New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, was killed and eaten by cannibals in New Guinea in 1961 in revenge for the killing of three tribal chiefs by a Dutch patrol, a magazine said today.

The magazine, "Focus", published today, said Rockefeller, 23, was reported by officials to have died trying to swim ashore from a broken-down motor-canoe in November of 1961.

The official report lied, the magazine said.

"He got ashore with a tribal chief's fishing spear embedded just below his left collarbone. The cannibals took him up one of the minor tributaries of the Eilanden River, killed him with an axe, and ate him," the magazine said.

Focus said its source for the story came from a missionary who claims to have worked for several years in the area piecing together the facts. The missionary withheld use of his name because he feared repercussions from the Dutch, or the powerful Rockefeller family, the magazine said.

Top Indian Post

RENO (UPI) — Lee Cook, an Indian activist who resigned from the Bureau of Indian Affairs in protest of its policies, has been elected president of the nation's largest and oldest Indian organization.

Cook, 32, a Red Lake Chippewa from Minneapolis, won a landslide victory Friday over five other candidates at the 28th annual convention of the National Congress of American Indians.

The new president said he will "have a lot to say" as head of the group.

Cook was deputy director of economic development in the BIA for about a year until he quit earlier this year "in good conscience and in the interest of my own self-respect."

Reptile Endangered

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (UPI) — The last breeding pond of the long-toed Salamander that lives only in Santa Cruz County is in danger of becoming a trailer court.

Stephen Matthews of the Santa Cruz County Youth Commission said Friday his group would go before the Santa Cruz board of supervisors Nov. 30 to protest destruction of the pond.

"If the pond is destroyed," he said, "this will wipe out the reptile."

The Santa Cruz long-toed salamander, called Ambystoma Macrodactyum Croceum, was declared unique in 1954 by biologists James B. Anderson and R.W. Russell who said it was a relic of the Ice Age.

Matthews said the tiny creature, about five inches long, used to have another breeding pond but that was destroyed by a freeway.

Belfast Dragnet

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — The British Army sealed off a Roman Catholic monastery in the snowy Northern Ireland countryside for the second day today looking for escaped prisoners and illegal weapons.

About 200 troops and 50 policemen moved into the grounds of Our Lady of Bethlehem Abbey, 35 miles northwest of Belfast, before dawn Friday. They carried out a day long search of the Cistercian monastery and its 200 acres dotted with farmhouses and sheds.

The search began hours after police held two of the monastery's 45 monks, the Rev. Thomas O'Neill, 45, and brother Patrick Skeehan, 43, on charges of assisting two prisoners who escaped Tuesday from Belfast's Crumlin Road Prison.

Charges Dropped

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — Charges have been dropped in the first prosecution under Michigan's new Halloween trick or treat child safety law.

Raymond J. Kowalewski, 39, an unemployed father of four children, had been accused of placing a razor blade in an apple. The charges were dismissed in district court Friday after Kent County sheriff's officers said the results of a lie detector test administered Thursday indicated he was innocent.

Opposition Dissolved

BANGKOK (UPI) — Thailand's revolutionary party which came to power in a bloodless coup, dissolved all opposition political parties today and banned the establishment of any new ones.

The party, which took over Wednesday, also approved a 29,000 million baht ($1.45 billion) budget for 1972, based on one drafted by the old government, and met to work out mechanics for replacing Thailand's limited democracy.

The Revolutionary Party abrogated the constitution, dissolved the cabinet and Parliament and imposed martial law throughout Thailand.

NICE HORSEY

Despite the cold and blustery winds sweeping the streets of Detroit yesterday, 24-year-old Geraldine Burke couldn't resist the temptation to pause and pet the large hourse sculpture. The horse is made from old car bumpers, and is "hitched up" to a lamppost outside a downtown art gallery.

Murderer Testifies At Santa Rosa

SANTA ROSA (UPI)—A convicted murderer from Massachusetts testified Friday that the Justice Department interfered with evidence in the trial of Joseph B. Baron, 39, charged with killing an unemployed construction worker.

William Geraway, 36, serving a life sentence at the Walpole, Mass., State Prison, told the Sonoma County Superior Court jury, "Both the FBI and Justice Department are not beyond reproach and they frame people."

Baron was accused of shooting Clay Wilson, 26, and burying his body near a Glen Ellen creek on July 5, 1970. Authorities said the killing ended an argument over $250,000 in stolen securities.

Geraway said he was at Walpole with Baron from late July 1970 to September 1970. He said they had adjoining cells and talked together "from 10 to 15 hours a day."

The convict said Baron told him he "planned the murder, set it up, shot him (Wilson) three times in the head and then buried him."

Geraway said he had documents for the Sonoma County district attorney and he gave them to Massachusetts State Police Capt. William Bergin. He said Bergin gave them to Edward F. Harrington of the Justice Department.

Harrington, a member of the department's task force against organized crime, handed the documents over to Baron's attorney, Geraway said.

Butz 'A Threat To Environment'

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Earl L. Butz' nomination as Agriculture Secretary has matured into a major issue, with Republican governors supporting President Nixon's choice and one GOP senator reporting that some Democrats openly against Butz are for him in secret.

As hearings recessed Friday until Monday, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., disclosed a speech made by Butz in which the Purdue University dean criticized the food stamp program and Nixon's welfare reform proposal. The speech was made in Minneapolis April 26 before the National Agriculture Advertising and Marketing Association.

In releasing excerpts from the speech, Proxmire said Butz "could be a far more serious threat to the environment than the family farm." The senator cited the Minneapolis speech in which Butz also defended the use of chemicals and antibiotics in farming.

At French Lick, Ind., the Republican Governors Conference adopted a resolution backing Butz and attacking "partisan political harassment of a presidential selection."

Govs. Ronald Reagan of California and Nelson Rockefeller of New York initiated the resolution, which struck hard at "potential presidential candidates" critical of Butz.

And Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., said some Democrats secretly want Butz to be confirmed to make him a scapegoat in the 1972 campaign.

Mars Is Shaping Up— As An Egg

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)— Mars, still a dust bin but much more egg-shaped than scientists ever realized, showed scant more of its desert landscape Friday night as Mariner 9 swept the planet on its 12th orbit.

"We're getting more dark spots on our computer-enhanced photos," said a spokesman at the Jet Propulsion Labratory," but it's nothing to get excited about."

Still, the extended carpet of dust over the planet—obscuring television pictures—seemed to be abating, according to the experts.

There is definitely water or water vapor on Mars' southern pole, concluded the panel at a JPL news conference Friday.

The experts also found that Mars' reddish deserts "bulge" at the equator so that the planet has an elliptical shape and rotates on three axis. But, like the Earth, Mars' polar caps are squashed.

Nobel Holder Says Black IQ Inferior

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Dr. William Shockley, a Nobel Prize winning physicist, feels there is great reluctance in the scientific community to study his theories that intelligence varies according to race and that heredity, rather than the environment, is the prime factor in IQ.

The Stanford University professor told a group of engineers Friday that the National Academy of Science, which has several times refused his request to study hereditary and racial factors in intelligence, had a "moral obligation" to investigate his theories in order to devise sound social policies.

Shockley repeated his contention that studies show that each 1 per cent of Caucasian ancestry in low IQ Negro populations raised the average IQ by one point and that intelligence varies "more than twice as much" from genetic differences as from environmental ones.

'Secret Meeting' Plea Is Repeated

The Marin County Human Rights Commission again has called for investigation of alleged secret meetings by the county's housing authority and the redevelopment agency.

Executive director Gerald J. Hood of the human rights department said the commission "expressed dissatisfaction" with a recently completed investigation of the agencies by the district attorney's office.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas said last week that his office's probe showed "no intent" by the housing authority board to violate the Ralph M. Brown Act during an unannounced meeting in August.

Hood said the commission was dissatisfied because the district attorney's investigation concerned only one meeting, held Aug. 7 in Corte Madera.

He said he was directed by the commission Thursday to request again that the district attorney and county grand jury look into charges of secret meetings.

The Marin County Human Rights Commission Also:

LEGAL AID — Unanimously supported a resolution calling for county support to the Legal Aid Society of Marin, operating at a deficit.

MARIN CITY — Unanimously endorsed a resolution calling for a meeting of various county agencies and residents of Marin City to begin study of future incorporation of the community.

GRANT — Heard a report that Nesbitt Crutchfield of the Marin City Employment Service has received a $12,000 grant from the San Francisco Foundation for operational expenses during the next six months.

PRISON — Heard a report that the department's new program of grievance counseling at San Quentin Prison is operating smoothly. The service has been operating for about a month.

RESIDENCY — Heard a report that the department will insist action be taken by the San Rafael City Council to remove the city's illegal two-year residency requirement for county public housing programs.

WORKSHOP — Set Dec. 14 at 9 a.m. for a workshop session with the county board of supervisors to discuss commission goals.

SPACE — Heard a report that the department's request for additional working space had been rejected by county officials. The department currently has a staff of 10 working in a small conference room in the administration building.

MEETING — Set its next meeting for Dec. 9 at 8 p.m. in the planning commission's chambers at the Civic Center.

Angela 'Badgered By Illness'

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)--The personal physician of Angela Davis says her health has deteriorated while in jail and she had been "badgered by frequent viral infections."

Dr. Tolbert J. Small said yesterday Miss Davis has been suffering from "chronic chest pains" aggravated by smoking four packs of cigarettes a day.

Miss Davis, 27, was held in Marin County jail after being accused of supplying the guns for the 1970 courthouse shootout which left four persons, including a judge, dead.

"I am concerned with the punitive environment effect on Miss Davis's health," said Small. He said she had lost 20 pounds since being jailed in November, 1970, and that the jail had inadequate medical facilities.

The general practitioner said that during the past 30 days a fungus infection "spread to every part of Miss Davis' body — her legs, back, arms, chest and scalp." But he said the infection "responded quite quickly to antifungus medicines."

Magee Is Visited By A Physician

A physician visited Ruchell Magee at San Quentin Prison yesterday to treat "serious physical injuries" allegedly suffered by Magee last Sunday. The nature of the injuries was not disclosed.

An affidavit by attorney David A. Applen, Carrow's associate, said in part: "I am informed and believe that serious physical injuries were inflicted upon said Ruchell Magee on or about Nov. 14, 1971 . . . " Applen declined to elaborate to reporters.

Joseph O'Brien, information officer at the prison, said yesterday, "I have no information that there is anything wrong with Magee or that anything unusual happened to him." He said he did not talk to the doctor who attended Magee and has no information on what the doctor found.

transit under the new law, and this presumably will be available for the local bus service.

Under the contract between the county and bridge district, the county's property taxes can be tapped to pay for costs of the local service. The contract, however, also allows for cancellation of the service if no longer wanted by the county.

Arrigoni assured the committee that Marin was "not treading on thin ice" in its ability to finance the local service.

The joint committee's recommendation that Marin pay only one-third of the depreciation costs will go before the full board at 10 a.m. Tuesday in toll plaza offices. The Tuesday meeting will be instead of the regular session next Friday.

Also referred to the Tuesday meeting of the finance-auditing committee at 9:30 a.m. was the possibility of eliminating the discount on bridge commute books after the commuter bus system starts in January.

The Golden Gate Bridge District's joint transportation and finance-auditing committee also:

TIBURON — Deferred action on a request from the City of Tiburon that the district's Sausalito ferry call midday at Tiburon to replace service dropped by Harbor Carriers during winter. The city should appeal first to Harbor Carriers, the committee said. Wornum added that "our problem is we have one ferry and we're trying to run a system."

FREE TICKETS — Recommended that two free tickets good for either the district's bus or ferry systems be given out with each bridge commuter ticket book.

Reagan And Rocky — Old Foes — Unite

FRENCH LICK, Ind. (UPI)— Nelson A. Rockefeller and Ronald Reagan, two powerful governors who were pitted against each other at the 1968 Republican National Convention, have closed ranks behind President Nixon in an elaborate display of unity.

Reagan and Rockefeller drafted the concluding resolution at the Republican governor's conference that blasted Democrats in Congress for "reactionary, stubborn refusal" to pass Nixon's program to share federal revenues with the states.

They co-authored a second resolution commending Nixon's "effective moves to end the war and win a lasting peace," pledging their "full efforts to the re-election of President Nixon in 1972."

The two governors—Reagan, of California, and Rockefeller, of New York, put their heads together to win conference adoption of a resolution demanding that senate Democrats "stop playing partisan, obstructionist politics" and confirm Earl L. Butz as Secretary of Agriculture.

The governors elected William G. Milliken of Michigan, a curly-haired moderate who has publicly taken issue with the party in past years, as their chairman for the critical election year.

STRIKE

against anyone connected with the strike, the students declared. Gerald Killian, president of the striking association, charged yesterday there had been reprisals against student sympathizers at Marin Catholic and other schools. The claims were denied by Father Lacey.

Breen reported today the dispute centers on annual raises for the next three years, differential between veteran teachers and new faculty members, and rules for substitute teachers.

He charged that the archdiocese proposed in 1967 to tie lay teachers' pay scales, on a three-year basis, to a figure 95 per cent of the pay in the highest-paying 10 public school districts in the four West Bay counties.

The Catholic teachers' pay never caught up to the 95-per cent figure, Breen charged. He said the teachers asked in January for a three-year package with raises of 17, 5 and 5 per cent, which had been modified since to calling for a two-year pact with 6 per cent raises each year.

Breen claimed the archdiocese's latest offer provided no raises this year, and raises of from 4 per cent to 6 per cent the following two years. The teacher union members received 6 per cent raises in 1969 and 3 per cent last year, he said.

Rev. Bernard Cummins, superintendent of the archdiocese schools, said the offered raises for 1972-73 and 1973-74 ranged from 8 to 10 per cent.

Pickets at Marin Catholic said yesterday that some delivery truck drivers were beginning to honor the picket lines. An Independent-Journal reporter observed a truck for an armored car service pause outside the building, while a school secretary carried packages through the pickets to the truck.

U.S. Jets Swoop Down On Convoy

SAIGON (UPI) — American jet warplanes and helicopter gunships swooped down and battered a North Vietnamese convoy of antiaircraft guns and trucks moving in daylight nine miles below the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) separating North and South Vietnam, the U.S. Command said Saturday.

The attack was disclosed as the U.S. Command began pulling out troops of the 101st Airborne Division, the American unit closest to the DMZ. North Vietnamese troops have been showing increasing audacity near the DMZ since U.S. troops began leaving the buffer zone area last summer.

In Cambodia government troops Saturday reoccupied with "almost no resistance" the rail town of Tuol Leap 12 miles from Phnom Penh. The town had been the center of Communist resistance in 10 days of fighting with Communist forces outside the Cambodian capital.

U.S. Command spokesmen said an Army observation helicopter scouting the jungles and hills below the DMZ Friday morning spotted the convoy of three Communist trucks and three 37mm guns, the largest antiaircraft pieces spotted in the region, two miles east of Laos.

In the air attack that followed, the three artillery guns and two of the trucks were destroyed, the command said. No U.S. casualties were reported.

In Cambodia, Lt. Col. Am Rong told newsmen that government troops in the Phnom Penh area outnumber Communist soldiers 8,000 to 3,000. "I don't think it is possible for the enemy to attack Phnom Penh," he said.

Lt. Col. Lon Non, younger brother of Cambodian prime minister Lon Nol, said that it appeared the North Vietnamese had abandoned the beleaguered town of Tuol Leap "but were still in the area."

Lon Non said his troops had lost 40 killed and 109 wounded in the twg days of fighting it took to reach the town, but when they arrived Saturday, they found it abandoned.

"We have spent the day taking out our dead," Lon Non said. "The town is destroyed. But you have to expect that. You have to destroy sometimes—it is unavoidable."

The high command said action throughout Cambodia Saturday had been light. But heavy bombing raids were flown in the Tuol Leap area and directly across the Mekong River from Phnom Penh.

In the capital itself, one Buddhist monk was killed and another wounded early Saturday when a plastic charge exploded.

Pay Panel's Wage Ruling Defended

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Pay Board Chairman Judge George H. Boldt defended Saturday the panel's decision to curb the number of workers who could collect retroactively wages and other benefits lost during the 90-day wage-price freeze.

Boldt told the joint economic committee of congress, the five public members of the Pay Board did not feel the contract settlement approved for the coal industry would set a pattern for decisions on future contracts.

Committee Chairman Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., told Boldt he viewed the coal settlement as averaging about 16 per cent an hour increase in the first year, adding it would have a "profound inflationary effect" on the economy.

By contrast, Proxmire said honoring retroactive contract provisions would amount to a one time payment of between $1. billion to $1.5 billion.

Boldt replied this would be unfair to persons who are not covered by contracts and who suffered during the freeze.

"In my judgement, it would be inequitable, and unfair as a matter of principle ... to allow a limited number of people to recover in full when millions of people will not recover anything."

Proxmire said the board's decision on the coal industry contract "must appear to Americans to be very soft.

"How in the world can we have a stabilization program if the Pay Board in its very first decision goes three times over its guidelines?"

Boldt replied he abstained from the vote but he agreed with the board's four other public members that the settlement was excessive. The five business and five labor representatives voted for approval.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce branded the contract "obviously inflationary" the agreement affecting 80,000 soft coal miners. The board decided it was "not unreasonably inconsistent" with antiinflation guidelines and labor leaders hailed the decision.

"The Pay Board's approval of the soft coal agreement puts the future of the antiinflation program in serious doubt," said Arch N. Booth, the business organization's executive vice president. "The increase in pay and benefits is substantially in excess of any acceptable guideline and obviously inflationary."

Booth accused unions of using "arrogant threats of coercion" to get their way.

"... It is difficult to conceive how the vast majority of the American people can be expected to show the restraint necessary to make the antiinflation program work," Booth said.

Stans In Moscow

MOSCOW (UPI) —Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin said today he hoped a visit from U.S. Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans would help to greatly expand American-Soviet trade. Stans arrived today on a trade mission.

and a list of 12 suggested improvements Simpson gave to Grimes. He said situations in 1969 were remote.

Simpson said meetings were held on updating procedures and firming up the chain of command, but nothing was done.

Under cross-examination by Shaw, Simpson said that despite the lack of written rules, he believed every officer on the 10-man force is competent in the use of police equipment.

Moreover, he admitted telling friends he believed the Fairfax force is the best in Marin. And although Simpson testified that rules and procedures in effect when he joined the force in 1963 have not been updated, he said under Shaw's questioning that he had become competent without such rules through on-the-job training and police academy courses.

Among 26 charges against Orr are incompetency and inefficiency for allegedly failing to establish proper administration and security of the office.

Under cross-examination, Simpson said Orr posted memoranda, published other directives and held occasional departmental meetings.

Simpson said that keys used by police were kept in an unlocked cabinet inside a rear door usually left unlocked under Orr, but acknowledged that some security shortcomings were due to a money shortage.

The sergeant also supported testimony by the city's first witness, former cadet Douglas Miller, that Orr pointed a gun at Miller without provocation last year, and that he saw Marsha Kittleman, a department clerk, doing outside work during office hours and that he sometimes saw the chief's car outside her home when the two were off-duty.

Asked about Orr's conduct during the gun incident, Simpson said, "It was belligerent. Why I don't know. He was in a state of semi-intoxication. It was a very frightening incident."

Under cross-examination, he said that Mrs. Kittelman was an undercover narcotics agent who sometimes met after hours with Orr and other agents to plan drug busts.

Orr is charged with improper conduct with Mrs. Kittelman and with showing favoritism to her.

Other charges against Orr include drunkenness on duty, threatening officers, and becoming so drunk on two social occasions that he had to be restrained.

The fourth session of the board of review is set for Nov. 29 at 7:30 p.m. in the Women's Club.

Two Road Sections Will Be Resurfaced

Sections of two Marin highways will be resurfaced, the California Highway Commission has announced.

Shoreline Highway both 7.5 miles south and 2.2 miles north of Point Reyes Station will be resurfaced at a cost of $127,000. Route 37, between 2.5 miles east of Highway 101 and 0.7 miles south of the Petaluma River Bridge, also will be resurfaced, at a cost of $31,000.

after amendment to the Pastore plan. All but one were defeated.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, who earlier in the day had announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination, scrubbed long-laid plans to fly to Florida, which has a primary he feels he must do well in to stay in the race.

At issue in Monday's vote is a plan to provide $20.4 million to each major party for the presidential campaign, if the candidate agrees to accept no private campaign contributions.

Novato Tennis Court Hopes Are Voiced

San Francisco contractor Attilio Quartaroli, who plans a $3 million private tennis development near Novato, said yesterday he eventually hopes to provide public courts.

Speaking before a group of businessmen and civic officials at the Holiday Inn in San Rafael, Quartaroli contemplated making 12 courts available to the public on a fee basis.

The public courts could come in "phase two," after he completed a planned development including 27 tennis courts, a 5,000-seat stadium accommodating major tournaments, swimming pool and clubhouse on 33 acres southeast of Olive Avenue and Deer Island Road.

When his audience showed interest in having public courts, Quartaroli said he couldn't finance that job until he reached a full private club membership of 1,000.

Charter memberships in the club, named Olive Ridge Tennis Club, are $1,000, he said.

Novato City Councilman David Price Jones said it appeared that the proposed tennis complex would be "a real asset."

Development would be on 13 acres, leaving ample area for parking during major tournaments, Quartaroli said. As for traffic, about 200 cars would use the area during an average weekday and about 300 — possibly 500 — on weekends, he said.

Architect Joseph F. Angello, who designed the layout, said there would be enough parking for 2,000 cars during tournaments. He explained the major development would be on the front 13 acres, leaving 20 acres open for possible later development of public courts.

Quartaroli said it is possible that the 5,000-seat stadium could be available for community events, and the 25-meter pool open for swimming meets.

If the project is approved, Quartaroli plans to start work next spring and have the development completed by next fall. Since the area will be served by the Novato Sanitary District, it probably will be annexed to the City of Novato.

The first hurdle will be to gain approval from the Marin County Planning Commission for commercial recreation zoning on Dec. 8.

U.S., Russia Will Meet On Space

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—U.S. and Soviet experts will meet in Moscow Nov. 29 to Dec. 7 to work on a system that would enable Russian and American capsules to rendezvous and transfer crews in space.

U.S. and Soviet space vehicles now use different systems for rendezvous and docking. The experts are working on a compatible system which would make it possible for spacemen to conduct joint missions and to rescue castaways in space.

Dr. Robert R. Gilruth, director of the Manned Spacecraft center, will head the 19-man U.S. delegation at the conference with a Soviet Academy of Science group headed by Boris N. Petrov.

The two groups met June 21-25 at the space center to begin work on compatible systems for rendezvous and docking, radio and optical reference, communications, life support and transfer of crews from one space capsule to another.

"Progress is expected also on the definition of a possible joint flight mission which might test a compatible docking system," a space center spokesman said.

Senate Acts On Muir Woods

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — The Senate approved yesterday omnibus park acquisition legislation that would add nearly 50 acres to Muir Woods National Monument, heading off a proposed commercial development.

The measure was passed on a voice vote without dissent and now goes to the House.

It proposes expansion of the 502-acre monument by 49.7 acres at a cost of $1.1 million, and would enable the National Park Service to move the facility's parking lot and concessions outside of the redwoods, and to provide picnicking facilities.

The expansion is planned at the monument's southeastern corner, now privately owned and planned for a commercial project.

The acquisition originally was proposed under legislation by Reps. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, and Don H. Clausen, R-First District, but that measure was incorporated into the omnibus package this week.

The omnibus measure also calls for boundary revisions or increased spending for land acquisition involving 18 other projects in the national parks system.

Schools To Act On Controversy

The Mill Valley School District board will take action Monday on complaints, concerns and criticisms voiced at three special meetings called to discuss innovation and education in the district.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. at Edna Maguire School.

Charges were made at the three meetings — at which the board listened but took no action — that innovative programs were failing to provide proper instruction in basic academic skills.

The board also will consider a policy that it grant one-half year sabbatical leaves this year and another that it allow teachers to accumulate a 50-day illness leave reserve.

Marin City Man Draws Sentence

Frederick Washington, 25, of Marin City, must serve a year in Marin County Jail and remain on supervised probation for three years for committing felony battery against sheriff's deputies last July 23.

Superior Court Judge Thomas F. Keating sentenced Washington Thursday. The defendant got credit for 38 days he already has spent in jail, and is eligible for the work furlough program, which allows inmates to work during the day and serve time at night and weekends.

Washington, arrested after a fracas in Marin City on July 23, was convicted by a jury last month of one felony battery and three misdemeanor charges.

Olema Man Jailed In San Anselmo

San Anselmo police yesterday arrested Linn T. Millburn, 24, of Olema, on a warrant charging a Selective Service violation. Officers apprehended the youth on a city street.

While booking him, police said, Millburn was found to have what is believed to be marijuana and hashish in his possession. He was booked into Marin County Jail on the federal warrant, suspicion of possession of the drugs and on $680 worth of traffic warrants. No bail was set.

Innocent Plea To Forgery Charge

George D. Beauchamp, 27, no known address, has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to a forgery charge.

A preliminary hearing has been set for Nov. 30.

Beauchamp was arrested Nov. 17 in Reno on a San Rafael arrest warrant. San Rafael police said he forged a $300 check at the Bank of Amrica in San Rafael in October.

Two Convicts Will Enter Stabbing Plea

Earl Billy Gibson and Lawrence Justice — two San Quentin convicts who allegedly fatally stabbed a correctional officer guarding a wounded inmate they are said to have assaulted earlier — will enter pleas Wednesday in Marin Superior Court.

The pair has been indicted by the Marin County Grand Jury in the knifing death of guard Leo Gaston Davis, 38, and in the earlier assault of Herman Earl Johnson, 28, the wounded inmate.

Davis was guarding Johnson in the prison hospital July 21 when the fatal knifing occurred. Two days earlier, Johnson was knifed in the prison exercise yard, apparently in retaliation for testifying in the trial of seven Soledad Prison inmates accused of killing a guard at the facility a year earlier.

Gibson, 28, is serving a life term for first degree burglary in 1965 in Los Angeles County. If convicted, he would face an automatic death sentence because he is a life termer.

Justice, also 28, is serving an indeterminate term for two felony assaults and grand theft in Los Angeles County in 1968.

Two Injured In Petaluma Crash

A two-car accident in Petaluma early today slightly injured two persons, police reported.

Officers said the collision on Lakeville Highway just north of the Highway 101 overpass occurred at 4:53 a.m. when an auto driven by Victor Colli, 24, of Santa Rosa, crossed the center line and struck the side of a car driven by Garrett Batula, 21, of Fairfield. Batula's car rolled over at least once, but he was uninjured, police said.

Colli and a passenger in his car, Bill Asbra, 18, of Santa Rosa, were treated at Hillcrest Community Hospital for cuts and bruises.

She Wanted To Look Like Beauty

By EUNICE FARMER

Each year, I repeat this column for those of you who missed it the previous year.

One of our readers decided she wanted to look like the beautiful women pictured in magazines while she was at home. In other words, instead of jeans and a shirt, she wanted a great looking at-home costume.

She wrote that she suddenly developed an intense dislike to the way the media shows women in glamorous hostess skirts while relaxing at home. The first night she put hers on for dinner, her children wanted to know what time she and daddy were going out. When she told them she was spending the evening at home, their eyes almost bugged out. Somehow, they couldn't believe she was looking pretty just for them.

The rewards were more than expected. She was suddenly the queen and was treated with new dignity by her children and her husband.

There's a message here. We all tend to think of beautiful clothes in relation to some special occasion or a special invitation, and usually just make do with anything when we are staying at home. Why not buy some exciting fabric and make an elegant at-home skirt.

The fabrics from which to choose are limitless, and these skirts are perfect for all, even the little girls. You can use quilted cottons, satins or velvets, and wool is beautiful, especially in the new tartans, plaids or tweeds. Try using wool challis, silks or velvets for your long skirts. There are also the fabrics that are easy to take care of including printed polyester satins and knits with lurex threads woven in.

Please try making a long skirt for at-home wear and watch for the compliments. Drop me a note to let me know how it worked with your family. Every day can be a special occasion.

My daughter just made a long skirt for her 82-year-old great-aunt. We can't wait to see her face light up on Christmas morning when she finds this under the tree.

MRS. JOHN J. Keegan, Waterbury, Conn., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her sewing suggestion:

"To remove the old bugaboo of bra straps showing beneath sun dresses or evening dresses, replace bra straps with the same material of the dress. Straps of the identical material aren't as unsightly should they happen to peek out occasionally. If need be, they can be replaced easily after summer has faded away."

DEAR EUNICE,

I wish to use a water repellent cotton for a ski-jacket. However, it must be warmer than cotton but not much heavier. What would you suggest for an interlining? MRS. P.E.

DEAR MRS. P.E.,

I love the non-woven polyester fleece as a backing for any sports jacket when you want warmth without extra weight. It is also marvelous as a backing for any kind of quilting. You will notice that most ski-jackets are quilted. Since you already have your fabric, you could back it with the fleece and actually quilt it yourself.

Most fabric shops will have a pre-quilted water repellent fabric available for outerwear. This could save you many hours of time so check into it.

I remember when I wanted to quilt fabric years ago, it was necessary to buy a huge bundle of fluffy filling that was formerly only used for quilts. Today, the fleece interlining is available by the yard in your fabric shops.

DEAR EUNICE,

I made several satin blouses this fall because I have seen many of them in the better clothing departments, but I am very distressed about the way they keep sliding and pulling out from my skirts. I love a nice trim look, but my blouses always look bunchy at the waist. Is there any I can prevent this? MRS. D.A.

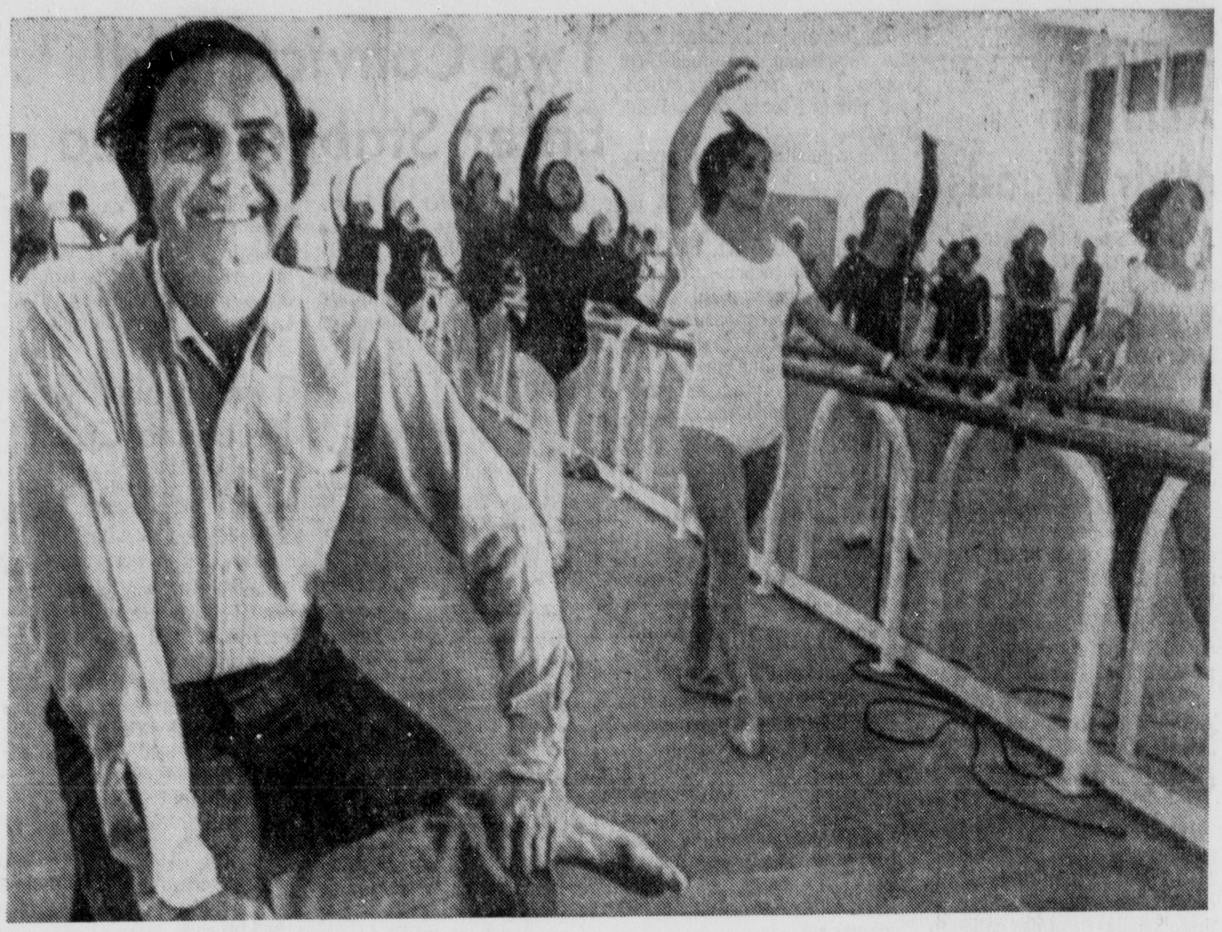
DEAR MRS. D.A.,

Yes, there is a simple way to avoid this. Change your blouse to a pant-blouse. This requires making a finished band of fabcic about four inches wide and long enough to fit through the crotch area from front to back of your blouse. Stitch this strip of fabric to the hem of the back of the blouse at the very center. Finish the other end of the strip with snaps that will be snapped to the lower edge of the front of the blouse at the exact center.

This works on the same principle as any stretch pantshirt and can be done with any type of blouse. It will make you so much more comfortable and will certainly improve the overall appearance of your garment.

For your free fabric conversion chart in billfold size, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Eunice Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.



CARL WOLZ presides over a class at a workshop sponsored by the Hawaii State Dance Council —an organization funded by state and national funds and dedicated to "creating an atmosphere for statewide participation in dancing." A MOVEMENT IS UNDER WAY

Keeping The Family On Its Toes

By RUTH YOUNGBLOOD

HONOLULU (UPI)—A veteran dancer would lcke to see more families up on their toes, learning to dance and bridging the generation gap at the same time.

Carl Wolz, an associate professor of drama at the University of Hawaii, is spearheading a movement "to bring dancing back to the people." He is president of the Hawaii State Dance Council, an organization funded by state and national funds and dedicated to "creating an atmosphere for statewide participation in dancing."

"INTEREST in dancing has declined over the centuries with increasing technology and subsequent distractions," Wolz said. "But it seems to me that the more people dance, the fewer personal problems they have in their lives. Many Americans have lost the ability to express themselves through movement." The Dance Council is reawakening interest in all forms of dancing through workshops in ethnic dances of Pacific and Asian countries, European folk dances, ballet and modern dancing. These workshops are held several times a month and attract a cross-section of the community, proving that dancing is fun, even for the inexperienced.

A NATIVE of St. Louis, Mo., Wolz came to Hawaii after years of professional dancing in New York City. He started the Dance Council five years ago, but it only recently received a state charter.

"The workshops are open to anyone. We get mothers, fathers, their sons and daughters, students and professional dancers," Wolz said. "It's something the whole family can do together and enjoy, as well as learn about their own bodies and the dances of different peoples."

Although the workshops are conducted by highly skilled teachers, Wolz said, "there's no grading, no tests, no pass or fail, and if nothing else, the participants have a good time."

ETHNIC DANCES are particularly popular. Hawaiian, Filipino, Chinese, Japanese, Korean, Okinawan and Samoan dances tend to generate the most interest in the islands because the state has such racial diversity. But Wolz said "other states could have similar programs, emphasizing the dances which represent the ancestries of their inhabitants." And he plans to expand the program in Hawaii to include dances of Africa, Israel, Macedonia and Scotland.

The dance council also coordinates festivals that bring professional dancers to the community, and hopes to introduce a regular dancing program in the public school system.

"It's the process that's important, not the product," Wolz said. "Dancing makes the child aware of his body and his movements. We spend 12 years teaching English, but nonverbal communication is practically ignored."

WOLZ SUGGESTED that a child start out with creative dancing in the elementary school curriculum and more complicated dancing in junior high and high school. "There's no wrong or right way to dance creatively," Wolz said. "The child learns about his body without fear of failure or frustration."

MARIN APPEARANCE

Partice Munsel A Fine Entertainer

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Former Metropolitian Opera soprano Patrice Munsel proved a great entertainer and sparkling personality at yesterday morning's second program in the Family Service Agency-sponsored A.M. series at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building.

In a sleeveless black jumpsuit and looking surprisingly youthful for a mother of four children ranging in age from 12 to 18, she thoroughly captivated an audience of several hundred women.

In her program titled, "From Grand Opera to Baroque Rock," Miss Munsel sang, frequently as medleys, a large selection of numbers from the many kinds of musical presentations in which she has starred.

Her forte now seems to be musical theater and popular songs, such as those from the nostalgic 1930s and 40s through various contemporary styles from the Beatles to "Hair."

Less effective were her operatic arias, particularly her opening number, Musetta's Waltz song from Puccini's "La Boheme," for her voice was breathy and had considerable vibrato and a throaty quality in the lower register. These characteristics may be useful in musical comedy and in various kinds of contemporary singing, but they are not pleasing in most operas.

However, her other operatic selections were better. These were "O Mio Babbina Caro" from Puccini's "Gianni Schicchi," an aria from Menotti's "The Telephone" and one of Philine's arias from "Mignon," the singer's first role with the metropolitan opera.

Among highlights of her program were many selections from musicals, such as "Mame," "My Fair Lady," and "Sound of Music," and the contemporary songs like Bobby Russell's hilarious "Saturday Morning Confusion."

Throughout the program, Miss Munsel's racy anecdotes and comments on the music, delivered with dramatic flair, added greatly to the audience's enjoyment.

Two unusual features required the assistance of her piano accompanist, Lynn Crigler, who occasionally played too loud. One was his performance of the Back French Suite as illustration of the Baroque sound heard in Baroque rock, followed by Miss Munsel's singing of the Beatles' famed song "Yesterday," over Baroque rock background.

The other was the musical monologue she sang on what things were like in the 1930s and 40s, followed by some of the songs from those periods.

Stories from her life as a teen-ager whose greatest ambition was to be an "artistic whistler" — with that talent briefly illustrated — and her first singing lessons in New York were the spice of the program.

Pacesetters Snap It Up

Oscar de la Renta has designed an evening caftan with a Chinese look to it and fashion pacesetters are snapping it up for spring parties, reports Women's Wear Daily. Among the pacesetters are C. Z. Guest, Pat Buckley and Lady Grace Dudley.

De la Renta showed it in peach and green satin-stripe chiffon printed with flowers, but black has been popular, too, with New Yorkers.

The 'Can't Keep' Secret Myth Hit

The notion that women can't keep secrets and that men can is a myth, says Dr. Joyce Brothers, psychologist writing in Harper's Bazaar.

The ability to keep a secret depends on birth order and has nothing to do with gender, says Dr. Brothers.

Only children and first-born children are the most reliable confidants, she says. Later born children never lose the habit of telling important news to older siblings, the psychologist reports.

Studies show that people who reveal secrets about themselves are usually better liked than reticent persons, she said. Men develop fewer close friendships than women because they are taught as youths that to display feeling is a female trait, Dr. Brothers said. Some researchers believe that the male's limited circle of intimate friends contributes to the sharp rise in suicide rates among older men, she said. The moral is that silence may be golden, but it's also dangerous, the psychologist stated.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

They're Taking Away Church Bells, And She's Very Angry

DEAR HELEN:

I'm so mad I could scream.

Last night I read they're going to prevent churches from ringing bells in our area because of "noise pollution."

They allow motorcycles, riveting machines, planes, trains, sirens, etc. Church bells are soothing. These other noises insult your eardrums.

Just because a few people get irritated about being awakened on Sunday morning, our lovely bells and carillons may be silenced. If I knew who were the complainers, I'd go run my power lawn mower right under their windows — at 7 a.m. — FIGHTING MAD

DEAR MAD:

Now is that the Christian spirit?

I love the sound of church bells, too, and have wondered why, in recent years, we hear them so little. Instead of fighting back with your power mower, why not initiate a petition to the powers that be—at City Hall? — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I'm not lovelorn—I'm shopworn.

I just returned from another grocery "special" hunt—without half of the specials. The reason? "We just sold out," clerks told me. Or else the specials are so well hidden that the only place you can find them is in the newspaper ad. Or else "prime, full cut round steak" at 89 cents per pound is about one-fourth bone and fat — no bargain, but it lured me to the store.

Isn't there something we can do about "leader" items that either aren't there or are "misleaders"? — SHOPPING MAD

DEAR SHOPPING MAD:

The Federal Trade Commission has ruled in shoppers' favor. A law adopted last July states that food stores offering grocery "specials" must make them readily available at the stated price or lower—and so-called "rain checks" are not the answer, for this lures the customer back to the store the second time.

If your market is quite regularly "out" of specials (and offers no substitute of comparable quality and price) you should contact the F.T.C. in Washington, D.C. or the district attorney in your county. — H.

P.S. The F.T.C. has also ruled that stores cannot limit the quantity of special items sold to a customer, except via special coupons.

DEAR HELEN:

Am I too possessive, or should a wife allow her husband to buy Playboy and take business associates to topless bars? I haven't any reason to mistrust him, but why isn't a perfectly good wife enough? If he's looking, isn't he yearning? — HURT

DEAR HURT:

... Not necessarily. Don't you enjoy flowers at the park without wanting to steal a bouquet? Leave your husband his scenery — so long as he's only a spectator "sport." — H.

DEAR MRS. B.:

I'm shocked at your statement, aimed at the two who wanted to marry outside of their religion. You said, "For me, which route you take to the Great Hereafter isn't nearly as important as how you navigate the Here and Now." Don't you know you can't enter the Kingdom of Heaven unless you are a born-again Christian? So how could you imply that you accept those "foreign" or non-Christian beliefs? — B.A.

DEAR B.:

Sorry. I think an honest, kind, right-doing person earns his passport to whatever good "eternities" the Great Hereafter holds, no matter what his specific religion or faith. Would a just God discriminate? — H.

This column is dedicated to family living so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. She will also welcome your own amusing experiences. Write to Helen Bottel care of the Independent-Journal.

Marin NOW Has New President

Barbara J. Hosmer of Greenbrae is newly elected president of the Marin County Chapter of National Organization for Women.

A member since the chapter's inception two years ago, she has served as recording secretary and a member of the committee on employment and job discrimination.

Purpose of the organization, according to the new president, is to bring women into full equality in the U.S. in equal partnership with men.

Marin Chapter of NOW sponsors monthly discussions on women's and men's liberation and equality, and it has a speakers' bureau. Plans are to continue campaigns against discrimination against women in areas of employment, education and law; to urge establishment of child care centers in Marin; urge women to become active in government and politics; and to educate men and women toward equality in all phases of society.

By continuing to watchdog hiring and promotion practices with regard to discrimination on the basis of sex and urging women to upgrade their skills and education, NOW members are working toward a goal of having women develop their full potential.

Men and women interested in NOW goals may join. A political workshop is planned on Nov. 28 at the home of Arthur and Barbara Padilla in Novato, and former national NOW president Aileen Hernandez will be a guest at the chapter meeting Jan. 19 at Redwood High School.

A native of San Francisco, Barbara was graduated from San Rafael High School and the University of California. She holds a master's degree in journalism from Columbia University and is women's editor of the Independent-Journal. The new president has lived in Marin for 17 years. Her other organizations are Prytanean Alumnae of UC Berkeley, Franklin Hospital Auxiliary, the Women's Medical Services Committee, and she is a member of the Marin County Human Rights Commission.

Other NOW officers are Arthur Padilla of Novato, vice-president; Jan Byrnes of Corte Madera, corresponding secretary; Sharon Johnson of San Rafael, recording secretary; and Alice Jueng of Greenbrae, treasurer.

Tuesday Reception Will Honor Pianist Pennario

By MOLLY MARIN

A reception will be held Tuesday evening to honor celebrated pianist Leonard Pennario following his appearance at the opening concert of the Marin Symphony at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth W. Davis will host the reception at their home in Fairhills, San Rafael. Marin Symphony conductor Sandor Salgo and his wife, Hugo Rinaldi, conductor of the Marin Youth Orchestra, and Mrs. Rinaldi; and Robert L. Jacobson, director of the Workshop for Strings, will be among the guests. Also invited are the Jesse Birnbaums and other board members of the Marin Symphony Association and officers and chairmen of the Marin Symphony Auxiliary.

Prior to the concert Mrs. Newton A. Longfellow of San Anselmo will have a dinner for the Victor Carters, the Robert L. Schultzes, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hanses, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Matthews and Mrs. Virginia Johnson. Also, Albert Gilles of San Rafael will have a dinner party for 10 guests before going on to the concert.

ISRAEL AND Greece were the two nations visited by Lt. Col. (ret.) and Mrs. Leslie B. Rosenberg, who have returned to their Novato home following a two month's vacation.

In Israel the Rosenbergs visited the major universities with a staff-conducted tour of the archeology department of Hebrew Union College in Jerusalem. Rabbi S. Gitin, dean of men, presented the Rosenbergs with two pottery pieces from the King Solomon era.

They visited Gaza and Sinai, West Bank and the Golan Heights where the three major battles of the 1967 "War of Six Days" was fought. This was the Rosenbergs' first trip to Israel and they planned it in celebration of their 25th wedding anniversary this year.

Solids Too Soon For Babies May Bring Lifelong Problem

Starting a baby too soon on solid foods may head him toward a lifetime weight problem, according to a report from a Washington State Heart Association-sponsored research team that compared a group of overweight teenagers with those of normal weight.

Mothers of the obese adolescents said they had introduced solid foods at age six weeks to two months, while their normal-weight counterparts received no solids until the third or fourth month, reports the Marin County Heart Association.

Dr. S. L. Hammar and his research associates at the University of Washington's adolescent clinic pointed out that the production of fat cells occurs more rapidly in early life and that chronically obese adults have a greater number as well as larger-sized fat cells than persons of normal weight. This suggests that curtailing excessive weight gain during infancy and early childhood might help to prevent later problems, he said.

Commenting on the report, Dr. Hammar said, "It raises some questions about our present infant feeding practices." He noted a tendency among mothers to be competitive in advancing their babies by introducing new foods sooner than their neighbors. This sort of race is particularly common in housing projects where mothers meet frequently to compare notes, he said.

CALORIE COUNTER

If you are a calorie counter, remember that the calorie value of imitation ice cream is higher than than of regular ice cream because of the increased fat content required in the standards set for imitation ice cream, say nutrition consultants for Dairy Council of California.

Among the teen-agers studied, only 20 per cent of those with weight problems said they regularly ate three meals a day, while 70 per cent of the non-obese group did follow a meal schedule. The overall caloric intake was almost the same for both groups, but physical activity was markedly reduced among the obese.

More than two-thirds of the overweight children had obese parents, many of whom reported having used foods, particularly sweets, as a reward in discipline. These same parents regarded obesity as a protection against boy-girl problems during adolescence and were content that their youngsters did not date.

DANCE REVIEW

Ballet Excellence Shown In E. Bay

By MARIE RAMEAU

The Bay Area experienced a new level of excellence Thursday evening in the first of six performances by the Ballet of the 20th Century at the University of California's Zellerbach Auditorium in Berkeley.

The excellence consisted more of substantial and serious fare than of technique, for although the 58 dancers are accomplished technicians, a certain brittleness undercut their strong attack.

Brilliant exceptions were Carmen Roche in "Choreographic Offering," and statuesque Suzanne Farrell, former principal of the New York City Ballet. The latter's Balanchine bearing and long, clean cut lines imported an element of grandeur. Yet this company does not focus exclusively on "stars" — a forte rather than a weakness.

Still, the impact of the evening was in Paolo Bortoluzzi's performance as the Bird in "L'Oiseau de feu" ("The Firebird"). One rarely encounters such intensity and identity with the essence of a role. There it was — an ecstatic quality which, by virtue of his mastery of this magical power, draws and holds an audience. This peculiar magnetism is the property of very few, and Bortoluzzi brought down the house.

This season's all-Bejart repertoire is one of the troupe's finest assets, and these international artists surmount the most forbidding musical obstacles. This is largely to the credit of founder-director Maurice Bejart, whose thing is dance as communication — not the introspective stuff that frustrates more than it fulfills, but a sublimated and profoundly metaphysical exploration of the human scenario, which leaves one not only emotionally, but intellectually and aesthetically, satisfied.

Unlike many choreographers, Bejart does not strive for effects as an end. Rather, they evolve naturally and logically out of his central theme, as in his "Firebird."

"Le Sacre du printemps" ("The Rite of Spring") is staged by Bejart as a primordial, erotic hymn to life, death and humanity, seen through the eternally regenerative force of spring. Despite the score's baffling complexity, Bejart produced a work of explosive simplicity, a tribute to the composer's genius, the choreographer's skill, and to the vast potential in contemporary dance.

The Ballet of the 20th Century continues through tomorrow, offering also "Les Fleurs de mal," "Bhakti" and "Symphonie pour un homme seul."

$20,000 Pay Hike For Meany

MIAMI (UPI)—The AFL-CIO convention, in a direct challenge to President Nixon's pay board and its 5.5 per cent annual wage increase guidelines, has approved a 28.5 per cent $20,000 annual salary increase for President George Meany.

Without discussion and without dissent, the nearly 1,000 delegates to the convention approved a constitutional amendment Friday increasing the salary of the federation's president from $70,000 to $90,000, and boosting the pay of secretary-treasurer Land Kirkland from $45,000 to $60,000.

"We didn't even consider the pay board guidelines," said communications workers President Joseph Bierne, head of the constitutional amendment committee that proposed the salary increase—the first for the two top officers since 1965.

Black Political Convention Opens

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — A state black political convention opened in this gambling resort Friday, the first such convention in the United States.

Black leaders said the Nevada state convention was the first in a series scheduled throughout the United States which will culminate in a black national political convention next year.

Jr. White House

Unbelievably exciting if you prefer the dignified charm of the old world, custom fixtures, wool carpeting, warm paneling, stately trees and the like. The grand music room is acoustically perfect. The formal living and dining room as well as the library have fireplaces. A paneled office, country kitchen and butler's pantry complete the main floor. Five bedrooms, 2 with fireplaces, and a children's recreation room complete the 2nd floor. Servants quarters (or additional bedrooms if you prefer) are on the 3rd level. 5½ baths. Additionally there is a separate house for guests, a real orchid growing hot house, an aviary and a delightful outdoor kitchen and BBQ area complete with outdoor fireplace for entertaining any time of the year. You will agree that this estate is underpriced at $195,000. For viewing call CAL REALTY, 771-4900; evenings & weekends, [illegible]-3398.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Alpha, Beta Cells Have Opposite Actions On Blood Sugar Level

Two pairs of cells — alpha and beta — found in the pancreas have diametrically opposed actions. Beta cells manufacture insulin that lowers the blood sugar; alpha cells produce an essential hormone, glucagon, that elevates the level. Researchers have concentrated on insulin for years, but glucagon is now getting their attention.

In the normal individual, there is a balance between insulin and glucagon. These hormones control the movement of glucose (a sugar) and certain fats and proteins into and out of cells throughout the body in accordance with energy needs.

WHEN FOOD is plentiful, there is increased secretion of insulin, to promote glucose storage and lower the blood sugar level. In starvation, the opposite occurs. Glucagon converts foods into glucose and releases it into the bloodstream to raise the sugar level. The activity takes place in the liver where glucose is stored.

Shortly after a person eats a normal meal, the blood sugar rises due to glucagon. But he hormone also stimulates insulin to bring down the level to normal. The diabetic has an insulin deficit and, as a result, his blood sugar level remains elevated for hours after eating. The excess is eliminated via the urine.

THERE ARE new theories that diabetes results from too little glucagon, not too little insulin. There is not enough of the hormone to stimulate the secretion of insulin when the blood sugar rises. In contrast, there also is evidence that in diabetes there are unusually high levels of glucagon that keep the blood sugar level high. If this is true, diabetes is a bihormonal disease — too little insulin and too much glucagon. By administering a glucagon suppressant, we might be able to lower the dosage of insulin needed by the diabetic.

Glucagon has an unusually wide range of action. It can be used in the treatment of hypoglycemia, a condition in which the blood sugar level goes too low. It is also a heart tonic and will be tried in the treatment of heart failure and cardiac arrhythmias.

SORE LIPS

K. C. writes: Can anything be done to relieve soreness of the corners of the mouth?

REPLY

Yes. There are several causes of irritation or inflammation of the lip angles, varying from contact with lipstick, dentifrice, the sun or to a vitamin B complex deficiency. Malocclusion or poorly fitted dentures may be responsible. Occasionally, a fungal or bacterial infection moves in. Appropriate treatments are available. For example, antibiotic ointments are useful when infection exits.

MONUMENTAL TASK

Mrs. F. L. writes: I'm 5 feet tall and weigh 230 pounds. Is there any chance of going back to the weight I used to be 37 years ago — 115 pounds?

REPLY

I doubt it; but if it can be done at all, it will require strict adherence to a diet. Success, however, is unlikely as few prople return to the slim figure of their youth.

TEMPORARY OR PERMANENT

P. J. writes: If an allergy is not treated, will it last throughout life?

REPLY

Not necessarily. Hypersensitivity to a specific irritant may last a short time and never recur; or it may be a lifelong affair. The physical and emotional health at the time plays a role.

STARS ABOVE

By SHERMAN WALKER

Cassiopeia, also called the queen and known by other names such as the chair and the rail fence, is another circumpolar figure that circles endlessly around the north celestial pole and never sets for middle U.S. latitude viewers.

It is an attractive grouping although it certainly looks much like a queen. It is most believable as a chair facing away from the pole, but in the older star maps this figure is always shown facing the pole.

Cassiopeia is the wife of Cepheus (the king) and the mother of Andromeda. She figures prominently in the story of the rescue of Andromeda which after millions of reruns is still as thrilling as ever.

To locate Cassiopeia, face northward at 9 p.m. and look at the regio of the sky that is between the North Star and the overhead point.

Casiopeia is roughtly but not exactly on the opposite side of the pole from the Big Dipper.

In November 1572, a new star suddenly blazed into prominence in Cassiopeia. It became so bright it could be seen in daylight. Tycho Brahe was the leading astronomer of this time, and he gave lots of study to this new star. It is still known as Tycho's star.

Such a star is called a nova from the Latin word meaning new. It is not really new. It was there all the time but for some reason began this flareup. They are sometimes called exploding stars.

Special Prayer Offered For Thanksgiving Season

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer

A prayer for this season:

That time is here again, O Lord.

The season we call "Thanksgiving."

By Act of Congress and solemn proclamation of the President, we Americans are supposed to join together Thursday in thanking You for the blessings You have bestowed upon us as a nation.

Actually, Lord, as You well know, most of us will put the holiday to more "practical" uses, such as starting a four-day weekend trip, or raking leaves, or watching a football game, or having the family in for a big turkey dinner.

We feel a little constrained about this business of being publicly thankful for what we have together as Americans.

Some of us —the younger ones especially —are not so sure what we've got is worth bragging about —or being thankful for.

Many more of us simply take it all for granted.

A few of us are embarrassed by the riches of a nation which, having 6 per cent of the world's people, annually gobbles up nearly 50 per cent of its goods. We wonder whether we should thank You for this largesse —or fall to our knees in repentance for failing to be more generous in sharing our wealth with hunger-bloated babies in Calcutta refugee camps and African children whose bodies are tortured by bilharzia.

Of course, Lord, there also are among us people who think we deserve to be richer and better-fed and better-housed than anyone else. We got here by hard work and good old American ingenuity, they say, so let's live it up and enjoy it, and don't kid ourselves about giving God any credit for it.

And that suggests something that a majority of us might agree that we can and should be thankful for on this coming day of national Thanksgiving.

We thank you, Gracious Father, for Your infinite patience with us.

We thank You for not having —yet —administered the kind of come-uppance to us which You were always doling out to the people of ancient Israel who dared to call themselves God's People, just as we, with perhaps greater temerity, like to refer to America as "a nation under God."

Give us grace, Merciful Lord, to apply honestly to our own nation and our own time the words of warning You spoke to the people of Israel 2,500 years ago through the prophet Jeremiah:

"I brought you into a plentiful land to enjoy its fruits and its good things.

"But when you came in you defiled my land and made my heritage an abomination ...

"This people has a stubborn and rebellious heart; they have turned aside and gone away ...

"They have become great and rich,

"They have grown fat and sleek.

"They know no bounds in deeds of wickedness;

"They judge not with justice the cause of the fatherless and they do not defend the rights of the needy.

"Shall I not punish them for these things? says the Lord,

"And shall I not avenge myself on a nation such as this?"

Not the most cheerful thought to ponder next Thursday between your turkey dinner and the football game. But it just might be terribly relevant.

CHURCH PAPERS, MAGAZINES

Postal Service Will Deal A Blow

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Senior Editor

The U. S. Postal Service is about to deliver a crippling blow to church magazines and newspapers.

These publications, which play an important role in adult religiousation, already are having a touga time financially. Now the Postal Service is preparing to impose a 146 per cent increase in second class mail rates, one of their principal items of cost.

It is doubtful whether postal officials —or President Nixon or anyone in Congress —really wants to put out of business scores of journals which have proved a highly effective medium of religious communication.

After all, the founding fathers set up a postal service —and provided a special low-cost category of mail for newspapers and magazines —precisely because they thought it in the national interest to encourage this method of disseminating ideas and information.

Yet the second class mail rate increases are still scheduled to begin to take effect Jan. 1., and as matters now stand will triple the mailing costs of magazines and newspapers by 1976.

These increases will be a severe blow not only to religious publications, but also to many fine secular magazines that have made great contributions to public enlightenment in America.

Many of these publications —religious and secular —are particularly vulnerable to postal rate increases because they rely almost entirely on mail subscriptions for circulation and have little sale on newsstands.

The recent demise of Look and the previous deaths of the Saturday Evening Post and Colliers showed that even mass-appeal magazines are caught in a deadly squeeze between rising costs and competition from television for national advertising dollars. Some publishers argue that use of broadcast channels constitutes a national subsidy of broadcasting, comparable in a way to the subsidy which the government up till now has provided the print media through low second-class mail rates.

Be that as it may, there is no argument over the fact that many fine religious publications —including The Christian Herald, The Christian Century, Christianity Today, AMERICA, Commonweal, The Episcopalian, Presbyterian Life and Together —are keeping their heads above water at present only by dint of desperate struggles, hard-won denominational subsidies, gifts from private individuals who appreciate their importance in the task of overcoming the religious illiteracy which abounds in this purported "Nation under God."

They find it particularly galling to face a 146 per cent hike in their mail rates when the postal service has seen fit to increase by only 25 per cent the third class mail rates paid by purveyors of direct mail advertising and pornography.

British Lutherans View Entry Into The Market

THIDDINGWORTH, England (LWF) — Britain's entry into the Common Market could stir churches out of their lethargy and into closer cooperation with continental Christian bodies, it was suggested here at the 13rd annual conference of the Lutheran Council of Great Britain.

Attitudes of the churches to British participation in the European Economic Community (EEC) was the main subject of the conference. It was introduced by Kenneth Johnstone, chairman of the Department of International Affairs of the British Council of Churches.

Christian concerns, the speaker said, should be related primarily not to political or economic questions but the matters of conscience which arise out of governmental policies. In this connection he pointed to the concern for peace, the need for stewardship of European resources, and relations with countries of Africa, Asia, and Latin America.

Citing divided public opinion over entry into the EEC, Mr. Johnstone called attention to questions raised by critics, mainly involving "third world" relations, relations with Eastern Europe and a disintegration of the relationship with Commonwealth countries.

Responding to Johnstone's address, O. M. von der Gablentz of the German Embassy in London emphasized the necessity of the EEC for maintaining a balance between economic growth and the need for the human quality of life.

The German representative maintained that an expanded EEC would not harm relations with Eastern Europe but would help maintain the balance of power and encourage further economic and technological growth.

Three main concerns as to the role of the church in an expanded EEC emerged from conference discussion groups: a ministry to migrant workers, emphasis on personal ministry in maintaining a serving church and effort to prevent the church from becoming only another welfare organization.

Is Your Church in Need of Reformation?
Test it with these five theses:
T F The Bible is without error in everything it says.
T F God declared mankind not guilty because of Christ.
T F Jesus Christ is true God and true man.
T F Faith in Christ alone without works saves.
T F Religious fellowship requires full agreement in doctrine.
According to the Word of God, these statements are true. See John 10:35, Romans 5:18, Colossians 2:9, Ephesians 2:8, and Romans 16:17.
If any of the teachings of the Bible are not accepted as God's truth in your church and your protests prove useless, He advises you to find a church which holds Him and His Word pre-eminent.
We have such a church and invite you to share its blessings. Sunday service at present is at 7:30 p.m.

'I've Earned Freedom,' Says Nubin

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —An Oakland ironworker, who had been ordered back to prison because of a technicality, was a "partially" free man today but said he was "angry as hell."

Frank Nubin, 46, was placed on parole for 10 months yesterday after being released unconditionally 22 months ago from San Quentin Prison.

"I've earned my freedom," he said bitterly. "I don't want any more parole.

"What do they want from me? They want my life. Sure I'm angry. I'm angry as hell," Nubin said.

"This is a slow death to me and my family."

Since Nubin's release, he has remarried and lives with his wife and two children. He earns $11 an hour as an ironworker.

"I rehabilitated myself," he said in a statement, "I was determined to succeed. They have no rehabilitation program for an inmate."

Henry Kerr, chairman of the California Adult Authority, announced that Nubin was placed on parole because he had showed "improvement" since he was released nearly two years ago.

Kerr denied that publicity about the case had affected the authority's decision.

Nubin's attorney, Salle Soladay of San Rafael, said he could be returned now to prison without a court trial if the authority determines he has violated parole provisions.

One of them stipulates that he not consume any alcoholic beverages.

Nubin has been in and out of prison since he was 18 because of two convictions—one for robbery and grand theft and one for assaulting his girlfriend with a deadly weapon —and parole violation.

He was last returned to prison in 1969 by the authority for violating parole by drinking and assaulting his wife—charges which were dismissed by a court.

After he served 14 months, he asked the authority on what date it had acted. Their return letter erroneously stated Jan. 31. The authority actually acted on Jan. 3, only hours before its jurisdiction over Nubin expired.

Using the letter, Mrs. Soladay secured Nubin's release through court action.

When the state discovered its error, it went to an appeals court which ordered Nubin's return to custody.

During a special meeting held by the authority, the panel gave Nubin two choices—either accept the conditions of the parole or go back to prison.

Nubin, a member of Alcoholics Anonymous, was reluctant to accept parole but was persuaded by his wife.

Mrs. Soladay said the authority's decision was an example of "stupidity—of what's wrong with the parole system."

She said she would continue to fight for Nubin's complete release.

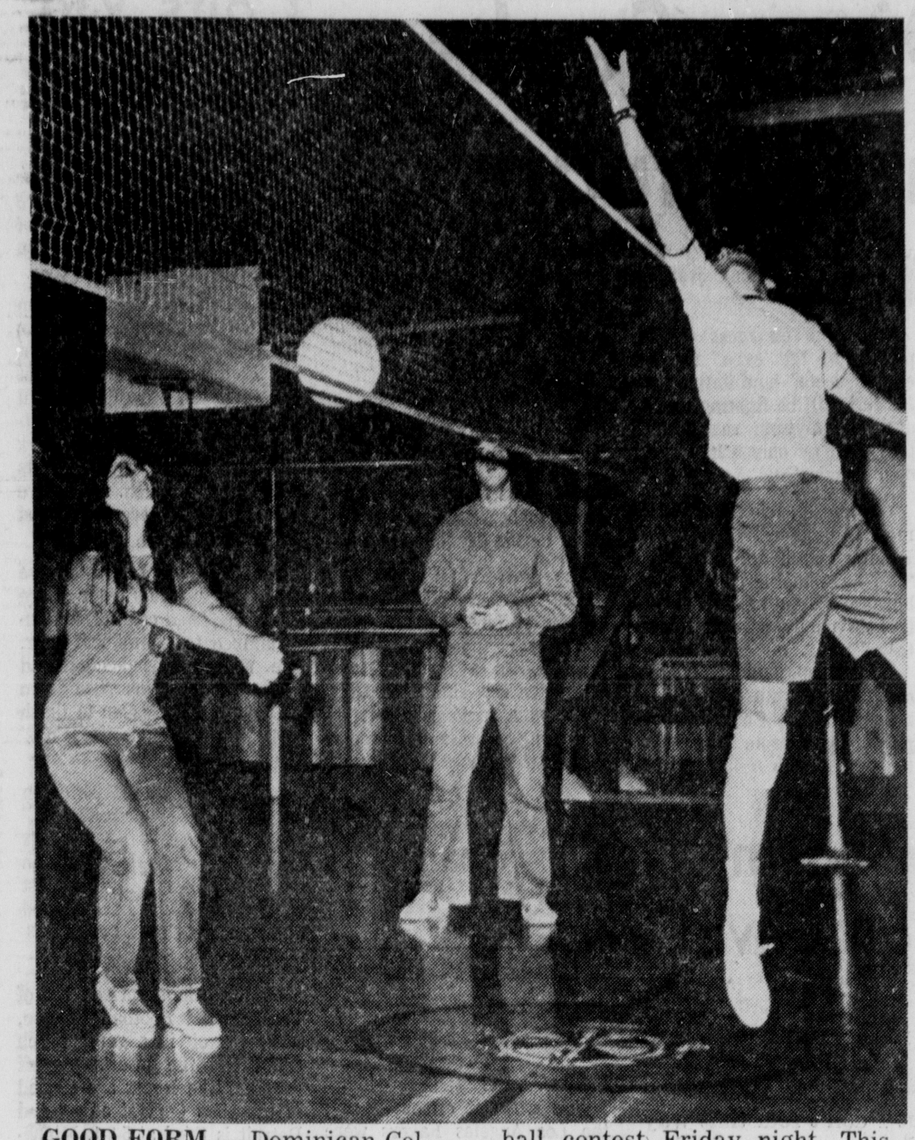
Male Influx Alters Dominican College Sports Look



GOOD FORM — Dominican College student Kathy Joseph ably lofted the ball as rival Bonnie Davis leaped to block the shot. Miss Joseph's teammate Mel Camgros looked on in the volleyball contest Friday night. This co-educational sport is one of several athletic endeavors both the male and female Dominican populace participate in jointly on campus.

Volleyball, Tennis Highlight Activity

By RON LENT

The liberation movement has struck Dominican College.

The San Rafael liberal arts institution, long known for its serenity and all-girls enrollment, has added 19 males to the populace.

These 19, intertwined with the other 981 students, give the 81-year-old place of higher learning a new look, particularly in athletics.

The men are involved in basketball, tennis, volleyball, softball, yoga, ski conditioning and aikido. The latter, an Oriental form of self defense, was popular on Dominican soil before, but now there are chivalrous men present to protect fair Dominican maidens.

Despite the influx, which began last year when San Rafael's Gary Fishel invaded the Music Department, aikido remains as a well-attended class.

Non-contact sports are also big at Dominican, especially from the male angle. For instance, tennis has caught both the student and faculty fancy. In this mixed sport, a teacher and a student team against their colleagues in doubles play.

The tennis program in general has also caught on well, according to team captain Doug Van Aman, 18. Van Aman enjoys his role but admits, "I felt a little funny at first, being the only guy to show up on the first day. I felt self conscious. But I did all right; I beat all the girls."

This political science major lives in close proximity to the fine college courts, maintaining a room in the school infirmary. "It's not that I'm sick," he began in explaining a long spiel on how he landed under the medical roof.

While Van Aman was espousing on his temporary housing status, one of his schoolmates,

POWERFUL HIT — New Dominican College male student Mel Camgros displayed power in slamming the volley ball into the net Friday night as teammate Aurora Gurdian anxiously looked on. Chris Edwards attempted to defend against the Camgros shot in the campus gym. Camgros was one of 19 male students added to the previous all-girl Dominican enrollment.

LEAD AT STAKE

49ers Visit Los Angeles In Quarterback Contest

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—First place in the National Football Conference's Western Division will be settled when the San Francisco Forty Niners and the Los Angeles Rams collide for the second time this season Sunday.

In a meeting at San Francisco's Candlestick Park Oct. 10, the Rams pulled a 20-13 upset. However, San Francisco, with a 6-3 record, holds a half game lead in the division over Tommy Prothro's 5-3-1 club.

Oddsmakers rate the game as even.

The Forty Niners are coming off a 26-20 defeat by New Orleans last weekend while the Rams are seeking their second victory in a row after upsetting Detroit 21-13.

A sellout crowd of more than 76,000 will turn out at the Coliseum to see San Francisco and Los Angeles meet for the 43rd time in regular season play dating back to 1950. The Rams hold a 24-17-2 advantage.

The Forty Niners won the NFC Western Division championship last season with a 10-31 record to the Rams' 9-4-1 mark.

They then upset Minnesota 17-14 before losing to Dallas 1710 in the NFC title game.

Brodie, now in his 15th season, has completed 52 per cent of his passes to 53 per cent for Gabriel, the most valuable player in the National Football League in 1969.

Despite a slow start caused by a rib injury and offseason knee and elbow surgery, Gabriel has hit 115 of 217 passes for 1,431 yards and nine touchdowns. Only five of his passes have been intercepted while defenders have made 12 interceptions of Brodie.

The ex-Stanford ace is 137 for 263 for 1,716 yards and 12 touchdowns.

Defensively, both teams have outstanding pass rushes with coach Dick Nolan's club sacking opposing quarterbacks 33 times to 30 for the Rams.

Only four regular season games remain for each club after Sunday so a San Francisco win would put the Forty Niners in particularly good field position.

Swimmers Win Title For Marin Catholic

Out of the last 14 dual meets, the Marin Catholic High School girls swimming team has won seven and lost seven. But don't get the impression that this is an average team.

Last year, the squad was 0-7. This year, it was 7-0, and won the Marin County Athletic League championship. The clinching victory came Thursday, when Marin Catholic outswam Redwood, 69-44, ending any hopes Redwood had of tying for the title at 6-1.

"We had a lot of good freshmen come into school this year," said the coach, Rev. Alan Armstrong. "That made the difference."

One such freshman—er, freshwoman—was Jean Haley, who swims freestyle, individual medley and relays. She had the highest point total of any Marin Catholic swimmer, 118½ points including both practice meets and league meets.

Against Redwood she was a double winner, capturing the 100-yard IM in 1:06.5 and the 200 free in 2:10.7.

Another outstanding frosh is Jill Galli, who swims breaststroke and was third in the team point totals with 95. She won twice against Redwood, doing the 50 breast in 36.1 and the 100 breast 1:21.0.

"Aging veteran" of the team is Tammi McDuffie, a sophomore. She racked up over 100 points on the year, second best on the team, by swimming butterfly and backstroke.

"I was really pleased by a couple of other performances against Redwood," said Armstrong. "Teri McGee had her best time in the 100 free, 1:03.3, and her sister Karen did her best in the 100 fly, 1:14.8.

"I'm very proud of the girls," he continued. "I thought they all swam very well."

Hawks Get Washington From 76ers

ATLANTA (UPI)—The Atlanta Hawks Friday traded their team captain, forward Bill Bridges, to the Philadelphia 76ers for Jim Washington, also a forward and a former Hawk.

Bridges, 32, has long been regarded one of the top rebounders in the National Basketball Association and has led the Hawks in that department the past five years. This season he pulled down 133 rebounds while averaging 9.5 points a game.

Washington was the Hawks' No. 1 draft choice in 1965, but went to the Chicago Bulls in the 1966 expansion draft. He was traded in 1969 to Philadelphia and last year averaged 13 points a game and grabbed 747 rebounds.

Atlanta Coach Richie Guerin said he hated to part with a player of Bridges' calibre, but said he felt that in Washington, "We have a young man with many good years ahead of him."

Bridges has spent his entire 10-year NBA career with the Hawks. He joined the team in 1962 while it was still in St. Louis after playing one season in the defunct American Basketball League. He played his collegiate ball at Kansas.

SWIMMING UPSET

Japan Whips United States

TOKYO (UPI) — Better conditioned Japanese swimmers Saturday upset an eight member United States team in five of 11 events on the opening day of a two-day international swimming meet here.

Coach Frank Keefe of the suburban swimming club of Newton Square, near Philadelphia, said the American swimmers were not in good condition because they had started training only recently on a long range program for the 1972 Munich Olympic games.

"But they are swimming hard in an effort to win," Keefe said. "The Japanese swimmers are good and appear to be on a upward swing to the days of Furuhashi when he was the top world's swimmer."

Hironoshin Furuhashi held a number of world records in the few years following the end of World War II.

The American swimmers arrived by plane Thursday night.

Mark Spitz won both the men's 100 meter freestyle and butterfly but his times were slow, 55 seconds and 58.1 seconds respectively in contrast to his world records of 51.9 and 55.6 respectively.

The meet is being held in the heated 50 meter pool of the Tokyo swimming center, which invited the American swimmers.

Mayumi Aoki, 18, of the Yamada swimming club shattered her own Japanese national record in the women's 200 meter butterfly by clocking 2:24.4 as she beat world record holder Ellie Daniel by four meters. The Japanese girl's existing mark is 2:25.0.

Miss Daniel, holder of the world record at 2:18.4, led by a stroke at the 100 meter turn but Miss Aoki was ahead at the 150 meter turn and increased her lead in the last 50 meters.

The Results:

Men's 100 meter freestyle: 1. Mark Spitz, 55.0 secs.; 2. Noboru Waseda, Japan 56.6; 3. Akira Iida, Japan 56.8.

Men's 400 meter individual medley: 1. Rick Colella, 4:54.8; 2. Jiro Sasaki, Japan 5:04.7; 3. Shinji Tokumoto, Japan 5:22.1.

Women's 200 meter butterfly: 1. Mayumi Aoki, Japan 2:24.4 (new Japanese National Record). 2. Ellie Daniel 2:27.2; 3. Noriko Asano, Japan 2:35.0.

Men's 200 meter backstroke: 1. Charlie Campbell 2:15.1; 2. Kazuhiro Takeuchi, Japan 2:20.6; 3. Yasushi Nakamura, Japan 2:20.7.

Men's 100 meter butterfly: 1. Mark Spitz 58.1; 2. Satoshi Maruya, Japan 59.4; 3. Yasuo Takada, Japan 59.6.

Men's 100 meter breaststroke: 1. Nobutaka Taguchi, Japan 1:07.3; 2. Peter Dahlberg 1:09.0; 3. Rick Colella 1:11.8.

Women's 200 meter individual medley: 1. Yoshimi Nishigawa, Japan 2:26.9; 2. Jenny Bartz 2:30.2; 3. Yukari Takemoto 2:31.6.

Women's 100 meter backstroke: 1. Susie Atwood 1:08.8; 2. Kazu Fujimura, Japan 1:09.4; 3. Yukilo Goshi, Japan, 1:09.5.

Women's 200 meter freestyle: 1. Ellie Daniel 2:18.5; 2. Eiko Goshi, Japan 2:19.1; 3. Kaoru Hara, Japan 2:24.9.

Women's 200 meter breaststroke: 1. Chieno Shibata, Japan 2:48.5; 2. Claudia Clevenger 2:54.7; 3. Megumi Kawamura, Japan 2:55.1.

Men's 400 meter medley relay: Japan 4:07.3; 2. United States 4:10.0.

Warriors Brace For Invasion By Mighty Milwaukee Tonight

OAKLAND (UPI) —Kareem Abdul Jabbar and the nearly invincible Milwaukee Bucks make their only appearance of the regular season Saturday night at the Coliseum-Arena against Golden State.

Jabbar showed why he is one of the greatest players in the game Friday night when he tallied 36 points and hit two clutch free throws with six seconds remaining to pace Milwaukee to a 108-107 squeaker over Seattle. That gave the Bucks a 17-1 record en route to the defense of their National Basketball Association title.

One thing is in the Warriors' favor. They have had more rest than the Bucks. Golden State turned back Portland 115-105 Thursday night and coach Al Attles told them to sleep until it was time to show up for the Bucks game. Ho-hum.

The Bucks had beaten the Warriors 12 straight before Golden State edged them in the fourth game of the NBA Wes playoffs last season.

With Oscar Robertson at guard and Jabbar in the pivot, the Bucks are basically the same team. This season. Lucius Allen, a teammate of Jabbar's at UCLA, has won the other guard spot with Milwaukee.

The Bucks top the NBA in both offense (115 points a game) and defense (101).

But the Warriors are a bit peppier this season than last with the addition of Cazzie Russell and Jim Barnett. Nate Thurmond will be given the tough task of trying to negate Jabbar, and Russell and Jeff Mullins will try to match Robertson and Allen.

Golden State plays two games with the Bucks at Milwaukee this season and two games on the West Coast. The other California contest will be a "home game" at San Diego Feb. 1.

Carter Out; Seals Trek To Toronto

TORONTO (UPI) —"It felt like I had been electrocuted. I thought the shot went right through me and stuck in my ribs."

Goalie Lyle Carter of the California Golden Seals was describing how he was decked in the second period Thursday night when he stopped a hard shot by Buffalo Sabre rookie Rich Martin.

Now Carter's bruised ribs are wrapped like a mummy and he will be among four Seals, injured in that win against Buffalo, who will miss Saturday night's game here against the Maple Leafs.

San Jose Seeks Another Shocker

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

San Jose State, striving to be the Pacific Coast athletic association representative in the Pasadena Bowl Dec. 18, could just about guarantee the bid by upsetting nationally eight-ranked Arizona State tonight.

Long Beach State, the other candidate for the bowl berth, is at tough Hawaii and also could use a strong showing.

Meanwhile, back in the PCAA, Fresno State calls on UOP tonight while San Diego State hosts Arizona in an evenly matched non-conference battle.

In other coast action, Santa Clara is at UC Santa Barbara, Sacramento State at San Francisco State, and Chico State at Sonoma State.

San Jose's rapidly improving team gained national attention last week by upsetting Rose Bowl-bound Stanford, 13-12, giving the PCAA one of its rare victories over a major-college power. That win, coupled with another shocker against Arizona State, would make the Spartans famous giant-killers.

That is a tall order, because Arizona State has one of the nation's most potent offenses, and has a 60-28 victory over New Mexico under its belt.

Trotters Vow To Stay On Strike

CHICAGO (UPI) — Members of the Harlem Globetrotters say they will stay on strike "as long as it takes" club owners to recognize the team's recently-formed independent union.

The team, whose zany antics are known to basketball courts around the world, walked out last Tuesday at Port Huron, Mich., charging management with poor working conditions and pay scales about half those of the National Basketball Association and the American Basketball Association.

"We're going to stay here (in Port Huron) as long as it takes," said Leon Hillard.

QUALIFIES FOR STATE

Marin Harrier Arago Third At Rockland

College of Marin's Mike Arago finished third in the Northern California cross-country championships yesterday, better than any Marin runner has ever done before.

Arago recorded a time of 20:56 for the four-mile, 190-yard course at Rockland, near Sacramento. He was 13 seconds behind the winner, David Garcia of Delta College, and six seconds behind Mike Schecher of West Valley.

Marin's Vian Collier finished 12th, and missed qualifying for the state meet by a bare three seconds. The top 10 runners go to the state, and Collier's 21:29 time was three seconds behind the No. 10 man.

The state meet will be held next Satuday, also at Rockland, with Arago as College of Marin's lone representative.

Fresno City College won the team title yesterday with 55 points and West Valley was second at 85. Marin finished tenth with 204 points.

West Valley was the winner of last week's Camino Norte Conference meet hosted by Marin, in which Marin finished fourth. Schecher was leading that race, but took a wrong turn and ended up third. Yesterday he kept his bearings and won.

PREP BASKETBALL

Marin Catholic Scene Improving

By LEW CODDINGTON

(Fifth in a series on Marin County Athletic League basketball prospects.)

Marin Catholic High School basketball figures to take a turn for the better this year under new head coach Dave Gonsalves, who enthroned a dynasty at the Class C level before moving up to the varsity.

But at the moment, Gonsalves is on the sidelines because of the Catholic lay teachers strike. Rev. Bill Isetta is the interim coach, and he is sticking to the program as it was mapped by Gonsalves.

"We will be quick this year," said Isetta, "and we'll use a variety of pressing defenses. On offense we'll go for the fast break more, but if we don't get it, we'll settle into a continuity (deliberate) offense."

Marin Catholic went 4-10 in the Marin County Athletic League last year, tied for the cellar with San Rafael and Drake.

Three starters are returning from last year's team. They are six-foot-four center Steve Vanni, 6-2½ guard-forward Jim Sullivan and 6-1 Mickey Hurley, who played guard last year but will also see some action at forward this season. All three are seniors. Sullivan received honorable mention in last year's all-league balloting.

Also returning are two sometime players from last season. Jack Stahl, a 5-11 guard, saw quite a bit of action as the sixth man, and 6-3 forward Dan Mahoney was an occasional starter.

Up from the junior varsity is 5-11 guard Paul Bartalini, and from the second-place "B" team comes an all-league guard, 5-8 Bill Ripley.

"We lack over-all size," said Isetta, "but we're very, very scrappy. There's a fantastic attitude on this team — they (the players) think they're going to win all the marbles. People will have their hands full trying to beat them."

Gonsalves had phenomenal success when he coached at the "C" level. He won three straight championships and will now attempt to apply his coaching techniques to the varsity.

Marin Catholic opens its season next Wednesday against the alumni. Interscholastic play begins next Saturday, with the Wildcats hosting St. Patrick's of Vallejo. MCAL action begins Jan. 7 at Novato.

THIS DAY IN SPORTS

Big Week In Marin Bowling

Bowling a game 100 points over your average is not an easy thing, but three Marin County keglers did it last week, one at each bowling establishment.

Jim Wade, with a 183 Blue Book average, rolled a 286 game en route to a 735 series at Country Club bowl. It was the highest lifetime game and series for the employee of Sohner Tree Serivce in San Anselmo.

Gloria Lima, who has a 138 average, recorded a 264 game at Nave Lanes while fashioning a 595 series. Top women's series for the week belonged to Marilyn Epindendio of Greenbrae, 633, while Sylvia Asay rolled 630 at Greenbrae and Mitzie Brown 602 at Nave.

Willie Coates, who is 11 years old, rolled a 257 game at Greenbrae, 106 pins over his average. His brother Cliff bowled a 256 and finished with the week's highest series for a junior, 638. Dave Mendelsohn had a 609, also at Greenbrae.

Anne Gildersleeve led Country Club's women with 593. Charlotte Warcup had 594 at Greenbrae but yeilded the spotlight to Epindendio and Asay.

The honor roll:

VS. RAIDERS

San Diego Seeks Revenge Sunday

OAKLAND (UPI)—The San Diego Chargers, still high after a stunning 20-17 last-play victory Monday over St. Louis, come to town Sunday to see if they can keep right on rolling with a "revenge" victory over the Oakland Raiders.

The Chargers, who have won three of their last four games, seem out of the running for a division title but they'd like nothing better than to beat the Raiders, the AFC West frontrunners who whipped them 34-0 in the second game of the season.

The Raiders, 6-1-2 compared to San Diego's 4-5 record, however, are two touchdown favorites and go into Sunday's game—before another sellout crowd of 54,000—off their best victory of the year, a 41-21 triumph last Sunday over the Houston Oilers.

While the Chargers will be playing to "get even" for that early season humiliation, the Raiders will be fighting to stay atop the division race, which they lead by only a half game over Kansas City.

"Obviously, this game means more to us than to them," said Raider coach John Madden. "We have to keep on winning because we can't expect anyone to help us by beating Kansas City."

Last Monday night's victory over St. Louis was perhaps the best game the Chargers have played this season. Dennis Partee won it with a 45-yard field goal on the final play of the game but quarterback John Hadl, with his passing, and rookie Mike Montgomery, with his running, kept San Diego close.

Montgomery carried the ball 17 times for 98 yards and caught six passes from Hadl for 77 more yards. Billy Parks grabbed four Hadl throws for 61 yards to boost his season total to 40, tops in the NFL.

The Raiders, who've stuck mostly to a ground game this season, switched signals on the Oilers last Sunday and went to the air. As a result, Daryle Lamonica was able to hit Drew Buie twice on long TD strikes and Pete Banaszak bolted a yard twice more for scores.

Dolphins, Colts Vie For Lead

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Miami Dolphins' Super Bowl ambitions face a severe test tomorrow in the form of the defending world champion Baltimore Colts.

Miami leads the American Football Conference's Eastern Division with a 7-1-1 record, but the arch-rival Colts are right behind at 7-2. The game will match two powerful ground attacks — Miami with Jim Kiick and Larry Csonka and the Colts with Norm Bulaich. Baltimore has the NFL's second-stingiest defense.

The Colts and Dolphins have been bitter rivals ever since Baltimore head coach Don Shula jumped to Miami last year. The rivalry was accentuated when the Dolphins rose from the depths last season to finish 10-4 and challenge the Colts' supremacy.

Dallas travels to Washington to face the "over-the-hill gang," and a victory for the Cowboys would give them first place in the NFC East. After a fast start, the Redskins have slipped to 6-2-1, barely ahead of Dallas 6-3.

Chicago, the surprise team of the National Football League, hosts Detroit in a game which could end the loser's playoff dreams. The Bears are second in the NFC Central at 6-3 and Detroit is third at 5-3-1. Minnesota is on top in that division at 7-2 and journeys to New Orleans to face the upstart Saints, who are 3-4-2 following a victory over San Francisco last week.

In the AFC Central, Cleveland entertains New England while Pittsburgh hosts the New York Giants. The Browns and Steelers are tied for the lead with 4-5 records, the Browns having lost four straight.

Injured Namath Aching To Play — When Healthy

NEW YORK (UPI)—Watching a pro football game from the sidelines each week may be the ideal way to spend a Sunday afternoon for most young men, but it's becoming very old stuff for Joe Namath.

Namath walks the sidelines every Sunday, watching his New York Jet teammates play without him and each week the urge to play grows stronger.

Joe Namath, whose name has become synonymous with passing in pro football, has not thrown a ball in a league game since he threw 62 passes in a losing effort to Baltimore on Oct. 18, 1970. He suffered a fractured wrist bone in that game that finished him for 1970 and was forced to undergo knee surgery when he was injured attempting to tackle Detroit's Mike Lucci in the Jets' first pre-season game this year.

Doctors predicted a mid-November return for Namath but a post-operative nerve injury has retarded the return. But it has not squelched Namath's desire to play.

"You have to be in pretty good shape to play this game and right now, I'm not in good shape," said Namath. "I've been around a few years. I have a good idea of what it takes to play this game. And I really don't think I'm well enough to play now. I'm not setting up fast enough, I'm not dropping back fast enough. I haven't been able to go all out on the leg."

Namath took his first turn with the offensive unit since training camp on Thursday and apparently showed that he, indeed, isn't well enough to play, at least against the Buffalo Bills Sunday. He walked with a noticeable limp, he was slow setting up, usually one of his strongest points, and he was generally uneasy.

"It all comes down to this. If I'm healthy, I'll play," says Namath. "If not, I can't. Right now, I'm not healthy. I haven't even practiced a week yet. I fumbled the first play (in Thursday's workout), I was almost run over by a guard and almost ran into the fullback.

"I'm not used to this kind of injury. I had three other knee operations but this is the first time the nerve was involved. It leaves my foot numb. The three operations before this were in the off-season and I had time to get ready. But not this time. I'm still about 15 pounds underweight and I'm trying to build myself up again."

Weeb Ewbank, the Jets' coach and general manager, has brought Namath around slowly, hoping to avoid any possible danger of further damage. "Joe says his arm is great, his knee is great but that he still has that pain in the foot," says Ewbank. "He claims there's no feeling in it. It takes time for a nerve injury to get well. Once he's ready to go physically, it'll only take him a week with the team to get ready. He knows the offense and he knows Don Maynard better than anybody."

Sports Enthusiasm Reaches High Level

"I felt like a men's libber at first," the Tiburon resident said, "but I don't feel that way now. Most of my classes have a couple of other guys in them, too."

The music major voiced delight with the sports beat on the campus and urged an increased tempo.

This consensus of overall contentment with the male influx and the outgrowth of men's sports is apparently shared by all 19 of the gentlemen gender.

"All the boys participate in some aspect of the sports here," Mrs. Lillian Seaver, the public information officer, noted.

"They also take part in basketball," she continued. Regarding this activity and subsequent male involvement, the students are divided over the co-ed cage idea. Aurora Gurdian, a student in charge of basketball, commented: "I don't like it because boys are taller, but. . ."

"Girls can be just as rough," Mary Pat Kinsey, a basketball team member, interjected. "Co-ed basketball, just for itself, is fun."

Both girls liked the co-ed volleyball squad situation. "We have 18 members on the team and half are guys." The volleyballers' record is 2-5; "But remember, we are not a regular class. We just have to write other schools to set up games."

The volleyball project also encompasses student-faculty encounters, which include both male and female participants. Miss Kinsey added, "These types of games bring both the students and teachers closer together."

Dr. James Tallarico, assistant academic dean, agreed that the co-ed sports application is good. "We'd like to start a male basketball team, which would include some faculty members. We would play other schools.

"I find this type of thing good for morale and good for exercise."

The involved administrator also expressed hope for initiating a touch football program. "I'd like to get more people involved in this — even people from outside the campus."

Hot Lakers Notch 10th Win In Row

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Just when it appeared that the Los Angeles Lakers were collectively over the hill, they now stand just one game short of euqalling their all-time record of 11 consecutive victories.

After failing seven times since 1962 in the championship round of the National Basketball Association playoffs, the Lakers appeared ready for a big fall. Elgin Baylor was forced to retire earlier this season, Jerry West was coming back from Knee surgery and Wilt Chamberlain keeps getting older.

But the Lakers remain full of surprises, and Friday night they ran up their 10th triumph in a row by beating the Houston Rockets, 106-99, behind Gail Goodrich's 32 points. Los Angeles now is 16-3 for the season, leads runnerup Golden State by three games in the Pacific Division and can equal its club record of consecutive victories by beating the Milwaukee Bucks on Sunday.

The Bucks, meantime, continue to surprise no one, and registered their 17th success in 18 games when Kareem Jabar's two free throws with six seconds remaining insured a 108-107 decision over the Seattle SuperSonics.

The Baltimore Bullets stretched their mini-streak to four games by routing the Buffalo Braves, 126-105, and in other games Friday night the Chicago Bulls stampeded the Philadelphia 76ers, 148-104, the Cincinnati Royals upended the Boston Celtics, 110-106, and the Portland Trail Blazers defeated the Cleveland Cavaliers, 118105.

Rick Adelman set a team and career record with 17 assists as Portland beat the Cavaliers.

Okker, 27, goes against 37-year-old Rosewall in one semifinal. Rosewall, seeded third, ousted fellow Australian John Newcombe, 7-5, 6-2, 5-7, 6-3. in the other quarterfinal Friday night. Newcombe, seeded sixth, showed signs of a three-week layoff due to a stretched ligament in his right knee.

Radio Commentator Bill Stern Dies; Eagles Ink Tom Dempsey

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

HARRISON, N.Y. — Bill Stern, the colorful radio and television sportscaster with an endless string of anecdotes about the games he loved, died Friday night. He was 64.

Stern died in his home of a heart attack.

Stern was with the National Broadcasting Company for 17 years before moving to ABC in 1953. He became famous for his rich stories with ironic twists.

Football

PHILADELPHIA — Former New Orleans Saints kicker Tom Dempsey, who set a National Football League record with a 63-yard field goal last year, has found a new home with the Philadelphia Eagles.

Dempsey, the handicapped pro with the deformed right foot and crippled hand who won the hearts of Saints' fans but not the approval of New Orleans coach J.D. Roberts was released earlier in the year after a disastrous exhibition season showing.

CHICAGO — The Chicago Bears said Friday running back Gale Sayers will be out for the rest of the season.

Barry Hits 51 In New York Win

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Rick Barry, a scoring champion on three major levels, still rates among the best there is at putting a ball through a basket.

Barry, who was the national collegiate scoring champion at Miami and then led both the National and American Basketball Asssociations in different years, came through with 51 points Friday night to lift the New York Nets to a 129-127 victory over the Carolina Cougars.

Carolina led 99-90 at the end of the third quarter and by as many as 12 points, 108-96, in the final session before Barry's three-point play started the Nets on their winning rally.

A tip-in by Ollie Taylor put New York ahead at 113-112 and Barry added two consecutive field goals as the Nets raced away to a five-point lead. Jim McDaniels led Carolina with 32 points and Larry Miller had 24.

The victory evened New York's record at 9-9 and left the third-place Nets 3 1-2 games behind the Kentucky Colonels in the East Division of the ABA.

Kentucky kept pace by beating the Floridians, 114-102, and in other ABA games the Pittsburgh Condors edged the Indiana Pacers, 124-123, and the Denver Rockets tripped the Virginia Squires, 115-113.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Sometimes By Breaking A Good Rule The Action Is Victorious

One of the first rules you learn for defending at bridge is not to lead a suit that dummy can trump. The danger is that declarer may also be void of the suit, in which case your lead allows him to ruff in dummy and discard a loser from his hand. This is a good rule to follow, but I can't resist showing the sort of hand in which you must break the rule.

ICING OPENER

West leads the king of hearts and continues with the jack of hearts at the second trick. South ruffs, leads a club to dummy and returns a trump for a finesse with the nine of spades.

West wins with the queen of spades and wonders where to look for the setting trick. He has already taken two tricks and is sure to get another trump trick, but what other trick can he hope for?

The red suits are obviously hopeless. East has given him no encouragement in clubs. Besides, West couldn't keep leading clubs even if his partner had the queen.

Only the trump suit offers any hope. West must find a way to make South ruff another heart.

ONLY WAY

The only way is to keep leading hearts. West leads a third heart after taking his first trump trick.

Declarer cannot afford to ruff in his hand, since then West would have greater trump length. Declarer ruffs in dummy and leads the last trump from dummy, hoping to repeat his finesse.

SEES DOOM

East discards, and South sees that he is doomed. If South finesses with the ten of spades West wins with the king and leads a fourth heart, forcing South to ruff. Then South has only one spade, and West has two. South will actually go down three if he does this. South can limit his loss to one trick if he goes up with the ace of spades and plays the side suits, allowing West to get his two trumps.

Space Technology Is Used On Tires

BRECKSVILLE, Ohio (UPI) —A "spin-off" from space trechnology is being used to evaluate the safety and endurance of new tire designs.

What's New In Marin? People, Not Planning

"RIGHT HERE in Marin," says the introduction to the Preliminary Marin Countywide Plan, "one could make a long list of the things in which local government has gotten involved during the last decade, all of which are new areas for governmental expenditure and decision making.

"A partial list of the new areas . . . includes: balanced transportation, environmental quality preservation, water and air pollution abatement, natural resources management, improvement of housing and social opportunity, strengthening of the local economy, and turning the non-resident visitor influx to a positive advantage to the Marin economy."

This idea that our problems are new and that no one has previously tried to solve them is a foundation stone of the Preliminary Countywide Plan. It deserves a close look.

LET'S LOOK at "balanced transportation." Historically, 10 decades ago Marin was served by a road system mostly in public ownership and maintained by tax monies, a rail system franchised and regulated by an arm of government, ferry boats for passengers and scows and barges for freight. The system was in pretty good balance except that it suffered from growing pains as the population of Marin expanded.

Five decades ago, the system was sadly out of balance. People were beginning to demonstrate a preference for the private motorcar over the electric train-ferry system. Marin's city and county governments, along with the state, began to try to re-balance the system by improving streets and highways.

About three decades ago, a pretty good balance was achieved. The Golden Gate Bridge and Highway 101 were more than adequate to carry all then-foreseeable auto traffic, while ferries and trains still operated. Unfortunately, insufficient numbers of people rode the trains and ferries; government had to grant permission for abandonment of service but first made sure a new balance was arranged, in the form of Greyhound commuter buses.

Other solutions were considered and passed up by local government. Mill Valley voted bonds to purchase and operate its own bus system, but the city council decided not to sell the bonds and didn't go ahead. County supervisors were urged to consider a take-over of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad's electric commute train system, but the voters turned that proposition down.

In short, anyone who says local government's entrance into expending funds and making decisions concerned with balanced transportation is all new in the past decade is either uninformed or ignoring the facts.

ENVIRONMENTAL quality preservation? Marin County's planning ordinances and planning department were among the first in the state. The people of Marin were aware more than a generation ago that our area was blessed with a number of natural advantages which some way had to be saved. We were pioneers in the local governmental planning process more than three decades ago.

Water and air pollution abatement? The cities, the county, and the water district were spending money and taking action on a variety of measures to provide adequate supplies of high quality water and halt pollution of stream and bay waters more than a generation ago. The county's first concern and efforts to do something toward air pollution control go back more than two decades.

Natural resources management? The county fire department was first organized, with state assistance, to protect range and forest lands in Marin a generation or more ago.

Improvement of housing and social opportunity? Building codes and subdivision regulations in Marin for more than a generation have been among the strictest in California. Our public school system preparing youth to take advantage of social opportunities is well into its second century, as the result of local government expenditures and decisions. Our junior college has been functioning for more than a generation, as an arm of local government.

STRENGTHENING of the local economy? San Rafael's city charter — adopted six decades ago this month — provided authority for the city to expend funds for strengthening the local economy. The city has been doing just that ever since. The other cities of Marin likewise have been doing the same since the mind of man runneth not to the contrary. Marvelous Marin Inc., a "booster" organization of a generation ago, was allocated county tax funds for specific purposes set out by the board of supervisors.

Turning the non-resident visitor influx to a positive advantage to the Marin economy? This was part of Marvelous Marin Inc.'s concern more than a generation ago. Also, the board of supervisors allocated county assistance to the Redwood Empire Association half a century ago for this very purpose.

When you reflect on all this you may come to the conclusion that Marin's real problem is having attracted too many new people — including some now working in the county planning department. Too many Johnny-come-latelys, you could say.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Diocese Generosity Poorly Rewarded

I congratulate you on your editorial, "Catholic Schools Put Responsibility First." I firmly believe, as you do, that Rev. Francis Lacey and his teaching staff deserve congratulations: and the full support of all Marin County residents for their determination to keep Marin Catholic open. They are doing a wonderful job!

The Archdiocese of San Francisco has been doing a great job too for it's Catholic flock, even though it has been under great financial burdens. Unfortunately this fact seems unbelievable to a large part of the public; but it is true. It is only because of the generosity of our archbishop that a lot of our Catholic schools have remained open. He has subsidized our schools, so that we parents can continue to give our children an education based on our religious beliefs. We, parents, cannot afford to do this alone.

May I ask the people who think unkindly of private schools what their taxes would be like if all private schools suddenly closed, and these children had to be put into the public schools?

I would like to ask the teachers, who are striking against our Catholic schools, why they signed up for jobs in our diocese's schools in the first place? It has been a known fact for years that the Catholic school pay was less than public schools. The public might be interested to know that the above question was put to one teacher before they went on strike. Their answer was, "I couldn't get a job anywhere else." This type of person, instead of being grateful that they had a job, is now trying to get more pay. He is putting himself before the needs of our children.

I pray that the residents of Marin County will give their full support to our principal, Rev. Lacey and his present staff.

Mrs. SERGE CINCOTTA
San Rafael.

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

The vice of our leading parties in this country is that they do not plant themselves on the deep and necessary grounds to which they are respectively entitled, but lash themselves to fury in the carrying of some local and momentary measure, nowise useful to the commonwealth.
— Ralph Waldo Emerson.

ART BUCHWALD

Other Nations Must Learn To Cultivate Own Suckers

WASHINGTON — The new bitterness toward the United States being voiced around the world has to do with economics. This country, by putting on a 10 per cent surcharge, has alienated every nation except Albania, which as far as we know is the only country that refuses to trade with us for ideological reasons.

While the United States has much to answer for, the rest of the world is not blameless for the sad state of economic affairs.

Prof. Eberhardt Goldstandard, who wrote the definitive book on the world's economy entitled "Evil, the Root of All Money," told me:

"THE PROBLEM is that the United States has been the major consumer of the rest of the world's products. Every country's economy is geared to what they can sell to America. But there is just so much stuff Americans can consume. Our citizens can absorb only so many carving knives, cuckoo clocks, tablecloths, stuffed animals, tape recorders, weather vanes, music boxes, salt and pepper shakers and back scratchers.

"We have reached what could be described as a consumer watershed, and unless other countries find new markets for their products, we're all going to go down the drain."

Professor Goldstandard blames World War II for the world's economy problems.

"With the exception of the United States, most countries who participated in World War II had to suffer great deprivation. There were shortages of everything, and the people in Europe and Japan haven't forgotten it. They still save string and paper, they hoard boxes and they never throw away clothes, shoes or cigarette tinfoil.

"Americans, on the other hand, dispose of everything. They buy something and two weeks later dump it in the trash can. It isn't our buying, but our dumping that has made us the greatest consumers of all time.

"But now," Professor Goldstandard said, "we have no place left to dump what we buy. Since the countries around the world have upped their production, they are making things faster than the United States can throw them away. This is what has caused the crunch in the world economy."

"WHAT IS THE SOLUTION?" I asked.

"We have to make other industrialized countries realize that their salvation depends on making things that do not work and selling them to their own people who do not need them.

"We must have a new Marshall Plan and send out quality-control experts to teach everyone the secrets of built-in obsolescence. We must instruct other countries to make furniture that won't hold up, cars that break down, refrigerators that won't freeze, television sets that blow their tubes, and washing machines that miss their cycles."

"If they did this, it would certainly take the burden off us," I said.

"That's correct. For 25 years now most countries have assumed that the only suckers in the world are Americans. They have to change their thinking and realize that their own people, with the right advertising campaigns, can be made to be just as gullible.

"The world's economic survival depends on everyone acknowledging that we have carried the consumer burden on our shoulders since 1945, and it is now time for other countries to start absorbing most of the junk they make."

MARQUIS CHILDS

Washington Lives In Fear Despite Promises And Promises

WASHINGTON — "The time has come to fight organized crime with a will to win the battle. If we win this battle we win not only a victory against organized crime but a victory against violent street crime. A high percentage of all street crime, mugging and armed robbery is committed by narcotics addicts in a desperate search for quick money to feed their habit. A genuine war against the narcotics traffickers, the men who run organized crime, will result in a significant decrease in street crime."

— Richard Nixon, Chicago, Oct. 19, 1968.

". . . Wage an all-out war against crime in this country . . . proposing: a cabinet-level council, the National Law Enforcement Council, to coordinate federal policy on the control and prevention of crime. Establish a National Academy of Law Enforcement which would make available to local law enforcement methods as well as information about the social sciences and about community relations for adaptation to local situations. . ."

— Richard Nixon, Fort Lee, N.J., Oct. 26, 1968.

OVER AND OVER AGAIN as he crisscrossed the country in his campaign for the presidency, Mr. Nixon threw out promises, promises, promises to restore law and order. He raised the specter of a lawless country with the Democrats to blame. A Republican administration would use all the tools of law enforcement, including much greater use of electronic surveillance, to get the muggers and the murderers off the streets.

What has happened in the intervening three years? The crime rate has steadily increased.

While the emphasis is on the cities, where narcotics addiction is greatest, they are not alone in the rise in violent crimes.

IT IS TIME TO SAY that this is a nation living under fear. In city after city, including smaller cities, downtown areas are deserted at night. Entertainment, restaurants and other businesses are hard hit. People do not want to risk walking two or three blocks from a parking area to a cafe or a movie theater.

Increasingly, householders are installing private alarm systems. These are costly and they enhance the atmosphere of tension and fear. In many instances they are keyed into the nearest police precinct. You forget, press the alert button when a door or window is not shut, and shortly two police cars are outside. While this in one sense is reassuring, it hardly contributes to peace and quiet.

You call on friends in the evening, ring the doorbell. The first response is surveillance through a peephole or with the curtains slightly parted. Once you are identified, bolts are turned and you are admitted. This is not the America of trust and confidence of another not-too-remote day.

IN ONE OF HIS law-and-order speeches Mr. Nixon assailed Washington, D.C., where, as he rightly said, the national administration bears prime responsibility for law enforcement. He cited as an example of the rapidly escalating crime rate the case of a 24-year-old nurse kidnaped, raped and robbed "within a few blocks of the White House."

Just the other day two women were raped in office buildings one block from the White House. A government employe was stabbed to death in the lavatory of a government office building almost directly across from the White House. Crimes of violence in the capital set a record for the year with two months still to go.

In the text of the speech on crime in the capital, delivered at Chattanooga, Tenn., on Sept. 27, 1968, candidate Nixon called for steps to be "taken to restore freedom from fear in the capital of the world's greatest democracy." Saying he would implement these steps if elected, he recommended "a dramatic increase in the number and pay of the police in the city, a doubling if necessary of court and prosecution personnel." Men walking free on probation, the candidate went on, are responsible for many of the crimes in the city.

A recent count showed that a large proportion of persons arrested for crimes of violence continue to walk the streets. With 236 homicides so far this year the slayer, according to one estimate, has a 7-to-10 chance of going free. The homicide rate is twice that of New York City. So much for the promises, promises, promises out of that campaign.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

When President Nixon set about in mid-August to cure U.S. dollar ills and served notice upon Japan and the rich trading nations of Europe that they would be expected to help, he had definite goals in mind.

He told Europe that to meet global obligations, the U.S. must convert a projected $5 billion trade deficit into an $8 billion surplus.

The largest deficit with any one country was with Japan. It came to $3 billion and he wanted it reversed.

And through Treasury Secretary John B. Connally he told the trading nations he expected these remedial steps to be taken right now, not next week or year or some other vague time in the future.

NEITHER JAPAN nor the trading nations of Europe could say they had not been warned. European members of NATO had been asked repeatedly to take over a fairer share of European defense costs. The European Common Market had been warned the United States could not stand idly by as a tariff wall erased more than $1 billion in annual sales of agriculture goods to Europe.

But when action did come, its severity aroused both shock and anger.

The commission which guides the fortunes of the European Common Market declared U.S. dollar ills had begun at home and the medicine should be administered first at home. It blamed the U.S. deficit primarily on excessive military spending abroad, especially in Vietnam, and to a U.S. reluctance to restrict the outflow of U.S. investment capital.

It estimated the U.S. surcharge on imports would cost the Common Market $2 billion in foreign trade annually and cut in half the rate of growth of Common Market exports.

AS CONNALLY CARRIED his message abroad, the last to be visited were the Japanese.

Japanese foreign currency holdings stood at $14.1 billion, highest in the world except for West Germany, and in the American view the Japanese could well afford to help out.

But the Japanese cried poor. They anticipated a slump of their own. They could not revalue the yen upward and thus make more expensive their exports to the United States until they could see what the nations of Europe did.

In its broad outlines, the U.S. proposal was simplicity itself:

—An easing of the Common Market's agricultural policy.

—Increased access to European markets for Japanese goods to help ease the pressure on the United States.

—Easier access to Japanese markets for the United States, including direct investments.

TO GAIN ITS WAY the United States counted heavily on the lure of its huge consumer market. It further counted on the fact that its own economy depended to a far lesser degree on exports than did the economies of either Europe or Japan.

Its position is that it is demanding of Europe and Japan only reforms which long are overdue.

And there the matter stands. Until a solution can be found, the greatest sufferers will be the under-developed nations caught between. No one wants the disaster of a world trade war but in this global game of chicken someone must turn aside first.

San Rafael city councilmen heard opposition from property owners to a proposal that the city build three downtown parking lots.

Sharp division of opinions developed at a meeting to discuss annexation of Homestead to the City of Mill Valley.

Slaughter Month

To the Anglo-Saxons, November was blood month, when beasts were slain for meat. Lacking refrigeration, it was natural that people would wait until the cold weather had settled in to do their big slaughtering. November was also known as wind month, for the powerful North Sea gales which usually began this month.

To Marinites, November is also a kind of slaughter and wind month. Although we are quite willing to let others do the foul deed, November is blood month for thousands of turkeys. And the beginning of the North Pacific gales usually make this wind month here too.

It's good to know some things don't change much.

50 Apply For Hub's Top Park-Rec Post

More than 50 applications for the position of San Anselmo parks and recreation director had been received by yesterday's deadline, City Administrator Alfred C. Kaeppel reported.

He said, however, that the city would accept any applications received during the next few days that were postmarked by yesterday.

The city parks and recreation commission met in closed session during its regular meeting Wednesday to continue preliminary screening of the applications.

Another closed session will be held at 8 p.m. Nov. 29 for final preliminary screening, according to commission chairman Laura Cann.

She said that once the number of applications is cut down by the commission, the remainder would be reviewed by a three-man committee of experts still to be appointed.

That committee will recommend which applicants should be interviewed by the city council and commission, prior to appointment by the council.

Mrs. Cann said the commission hopes to have the position filled by Jan. 1.

Also at its meeting Wednesday, the commission heard a report from Charles R. Leitzell, parks director, on plans for a new creekside park.

Leitzell said landscape architect William L. Kapranos of San Anselmo was drawing up landscape plans for the small park to be developed on a 700-foot long strip of city-owned property alongside the creek between Lansdale and Forest avenues.

Development of the park, including playground, picnic and parking areas, will be done by the San Anselmo Rotary Club, Leitzell said.

The commission also voted to recommend to the city council that if bids for the city's 1930 Seagraves fire truck, being sold as surplus, are not more than $2,000, the truck should be kept and used as a piece of playground equipment.

Mrs. Cann cited the high price of playground equipment as a factor in the commission's recommendation.

Kaeppel said bids on the fire truck will be opened Jan. 11.

The commission's next regular meeting is Dec. 15.

Reed Schools' Research Panel Members Named

The Independent-Journal erred Wednesday in reporting that a committee was named Tuesday by the Reed School District board to evaluate the progress of district education.

The research and instructional assessment committee, although instructed Tuesday by the board to undertake an evaluation of the district's educational programs, actually was appointed on Oct. 19.

The eight persons named as committee members in the article actually were appointed Tuesday to the finance committee.

The research and instructional assessment committee consists of Robert D. Hayes, David C. Kilmer, Charles Walters, Sharon Bass, Mary Anne Evans, Caroline Fanning, Marie McLeod, David N. Lytle, Reece Clark and Joanne Stokes.

The committee was instructed by the board to continue its examination and study of Project Sigma, a math program emphasizing student involvement, and to determine if the concept can be extended to other subjects and other schools and grades.

Teen Movies Are Moved

The Sausalito School District has banished the Sausalito Teen Center's Friday night movies to the basement of Central School because of vandalism damage to the school's auditorium, where the films formerly were shown.

Norman Wohlschlaeger, Sausalito's director of public works, said the Sausalito Recreation Commission, which sponsors the teen center, was told of the eviction Thursday night.

School Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg said the district took the action because persons attending the Nov. 5 films were inadequately supervised and allowed to wander throughout the school. A few fire extenguishers were discharged in the halls and thrown into bushes outside, resulting in $34 damage, he said.

The movies will continue in the basement of the school which the teen center leases because insurance covers damage which may occur there.

Civic Center Security

The Marin Council for Civic Affairs is opposed to continuing tight security at the Marin Civic Center. The Independent-Journal erred Wednesday in reporting the group was among those supporting the security policy.

"The purpose of the Corps is to fight and win in combat. For this we need discipline and we will insist on it. If a man is going to break, we want him to break in training and not on some future battlefield."

Three Plans Given For Petaluma Park

Petaluma can have its choice among three plans for development of a Riverside Park that could become a joint city-county venture, the city's recreation, music and parks commission has heard.

Richard W. Shollenberger, recreation and parks director, told the commission Thursday that the county parks department is open to all suggestions on development of the 20-acre parcel adjacent to the Petaluma boat launching ramp off Lakeville Highway.

Three preliminary plans have been prepared by the county and vary widely, according to Shollenberger. One plan includes 48 campsites for overnight camping, another calls for several ball diamonds to make it a center for athletic activities while the third features a freshwater lagoon that could be stocked for fishing and landscaped for shaded picnic and barbecue areas.

Shollenberger told commission members to review the plans and to recommend the park's best use. He said that if the commission wanted a more sophisticated plan or faster development than $25,000 in county funds could finance, it could divert money from the Lucchesi Park development plan.

He advised the commission also to consider a joint agreement with the county for maintenance once the park is established, since city parks are normally better maintained than county parks.

Mountanos Answers Marin City Critics

Marin Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos, criticized Thursday for breaking promises to attend Marin City meetings on police protection, said yesterday he is willing to attend meetings anywhere in the county when specifically requested.

The Sheriff attributed the criticism, leveled by two county Human Rights Commission members, to a misunderstanding on their part.

"My relationship with the Marin City Council has been very good . .. very satisfactory," he said.

Mountanos said that while he has received letters addressed to "The Sheriff" from Marin City, he has interpreted them as requesting representatives from his office.

He said the same is true for requests from other parts of the county.

"They're addressed to the sheriff as a matter of courtesy," he said. When letters specifically request his presence, he will attend, the sheriff said.

The sheriff added that he has had numerous meetings with representatives from Marin City in his office and that officers from his department always have attended meetings in Marin City when requested.

He said it is his department's policy to send the most knowledgable officer on a police subject — such as drug abuse — to meetings where that subject is to be discussed.

Human Rights Commission members, Thelma McKinney and Fred Mayer, called at the Thursday commission meeting, for a subpoena if Mountanos didn't agree to attend a commission subcommittee meeting in December on police protection.

Schools To Meet

The Kentfield School District board will discuss the latest information available on Phase II of the President's economic policy and its possible effect on the district at 8 p.m. Monday at Wolfe Grade School.

It's The Oldest Meat Market In Marin

By FRANK FARRARA

When the West End Market opened for business in San Rafael in 1914 the meat came in from San Francisco by ferryboat and went out to customers by horse and buggy.

The market is still at its same location, Fourth and G streets, the oldest meat market in Marin, but the icebox has given way to refrigeration and home delivery is a service of the past.

The market was started by the late Frank Soldavini and Joseph Soldavini, who after working for butcher shops as youths, decided to go into business on their own.

"THERE WAS sawdust on the floor, stools in front of the counter and no refrigeration then," recalled Norman Soldavini, son of Joseph who is now a partner in the business. "There was an ice box with big blocks of ice."

The maket had three teams of horses and buggies to deliver to homes in San Rafael and the Ross Valley. People in the Ross Valley had maids and butlers and Filipino and Chinese cooks, Soldavini said.

"Soup bones used to be a big thing in those days, because they didn't have canned soup," he commented. "The first thing in the morning, they would cut beef shank for soup."

"I THINK THE flavor used to be better. Now everything comes in a bag," Soldavini said.

The meat sold was much the same as today, he said. "There was a lot of poultry, a lot of veal and a lot of beef. Hamburger used to be two pounds for a quarter."

As far back as Soldavini can remember, turkey has always been the king at the meat market at Thanksgiving time — and still is. "We always cut our beef and veal orders at Thanksgiving time," he says, "because we knew what the people would buy would be turkey." But the turkeys that reached the market in the earlier years were not the eviscerated, prepared birds of today. Most of the preparation had to be done by the market owners and employees.

SOLDAVINI SAID the old fashioned chopping block is still at the market. "I'm trying to sell the darn thing."

The days of home deliveries were numbered after World War II and ended about five years ago because "it was too costly," Soldavini said.

At first the market used wagons and then there were Model A Fords. "I remember we would load up the Model A about five times a day," he said. "We had big straw baskets we would load up."

There were a lot of charge accounts in the past, he said. "About half the business was charge and the bills would go out every month."

ALL WASN'T work, however, he recalled. Once a year, on a Wednesday, there would be a "butcher's day," when all the meat markets would close and have a mammoth steak barbecue at the old Fairfax Park.

County and city offices would close so employees could "get out to it," and about 2,000 thick New York steaks would be barbecued.

There also were picnics at McNear's Beach where beef would be buried underground and cooked with hot coals, he reported.

A FULL STAFF was on duty at West End Market in the 1930s before supermarkets really arrived on the scene to push many small markets out of existance. From left to right they are Raymond Soldavini, Joseph Soldavini, co-founder, Adele Langlamet, the late Frank Soldavini, co-founder, and the late Vic Brisson.

THE WEST END MARKET expanded in the early 1940s by adding a grocery department that featured gourmet items. It was manned here by the late Frank Soldavini, left, and Norman Soldavini. It was the Thanksgiving holiday season, and then, as it has been throughout the market's long history, turkey was the best-selling meat as indicated by the sign on the back wall. The groceries line was later abandoned by the firm and the business reverted to being strictly a meat market as it is today.

ket in San Anselmo, have been partners in the market for four years.

BEFORE THAT Soldavini was a partner with his father for 18 years, and had worked in the market since a youth.

Just before World War II, the market was expanded to include a grocery department, but that eventually was dropped. "We still have a few gourmet items along one wall, Soldavini said.

"We still have several customers dealing with the store who have been coming in for 40 to 50 years," Soldavini said.

One of the things that mark the West End Market "is the way we fix our meats," he said. "They're not just thrown in the counter, the counter is decorated with fresh parsley."

THE MARKET receives its beef from Idaho and Nebraska, pork from Kansas, lamb from Nevada and "veal locally," he said.

"We're one of the few that age our meat. It's not put out fresh. Beef should be aged two or three weeks from the time it is killed."

Another difference is that the market still uses its ammonia refrigeration plant. It's more expensive, Soldavini said, but it provides "more of a dry cold and doesn't lend a dampness to the meat."

The markt is "well-known" to oldtimers and people "still want quality meat," he concluded with discernible pride.

Jack MacPhee Has A Dream — A Sports Complex For Marinites

By RALPH CHATOIAN

Jack MacPhee is a man who has been trying unsuccessfully for 15 years to warm Marin County residents to his idea of a recreation and sports complex.

MacPhee, of San Rafael, has not completely thrown in the towel, but his hopes have plunged to an all-time low.

What MacPhee would like to see is a single center that would encompass facilities for sports, social activities and recreation. Two years ago MacPhee got together with the Marin Sertoma Club with the objective to develop such a center, but the project fell through because of insufficient funds.

It was to be financed on a donation basis, and the donations simply were not there.

"THE COMMUNITY just doesn't want this," said MacPhee, "but I think the community is wrong. Kids today don't have anything to do when they graduate from high school. There just aren't any facilities available to them. And it really is a shame."

MacPhee, 46, was appointed to the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Commission to fill a vacancy last August, and he definitely has the qualifications and the interest for such a post.

A graduate of Tamalpais High School and Stanford University, MacPhee is founder of the Marvel Athletic Club for weightlifters and boxers. The club is now, in MacPhee's own words, "in hibernation."

MacPhee, secretary-treasurer of J.G. MacPhee Co. of San Rafael — wholesale factory distributors of equipment, tools and supplies — doesn't have the time he used to have for sports and recreation with the growing pressures of the family business.

"The competition is really something, what with all the bigger wholesale companies in the area," he noted. I've been working six and seven days a week."

THE DIMINUTIVE MacPhee went from 105 pounds to 150 by lifting weights after being introduced to the sport by a friend at Stanford University. After graduation from Stanford he went into business with a commercial gymnasium in San Rafael, but it folded in 1955 leaving MacPhee with a garage full of equipment at the home of his parents, 307 H Street, San Rafael.

Within the next few days boys from the neighborhood started dropping by to use the equipment. That was the start of the Marvel Athletic Club.

The Marvel A.C. was headquartered at his parents' home for two years and moved first to a friend's home near San Rafael High School, then to a cold and drafty concessions building at Albert Park, and finally to the home that MacPhee purchased 11 years ago at 60 Wood Street. MacPhee was president, vice president, secretary and treasurer for the club located in his basement. It remained active until two years ago.

DURING THE club's heyday, it was one of the best weightlifting clubs on the West Coast. The Marvel A.C. won the Pacific Coast title two times, the teen-age national championship once, and Northern California championships seven times.

The equipment is still at his home, and boys still come over to use it, but just for recreation, not for formal team training.

MacPhee has been helping his father run the family wholesale business in San Rafael. John G. MacPhee is 83 but still works regular hours at the business and gets in a round or two of golf a week.

"We would be able to have kids in Marin County reach the Olympics if we had the facilities where they work out," MacPhee argues. "We don't have an Olympic-size pool in the county and we have nothing in the way of facilities for other Olympic events.

"IF AN ATHLETE wants to develop his Olympic skills, he has to go out of the county," he delcared.

MacPhee also feels that the trend of living is changing, in that more persons are living in apartments and don't have the space for their own recreational pursuits.

"There has to be an activity center for these people," he argues.

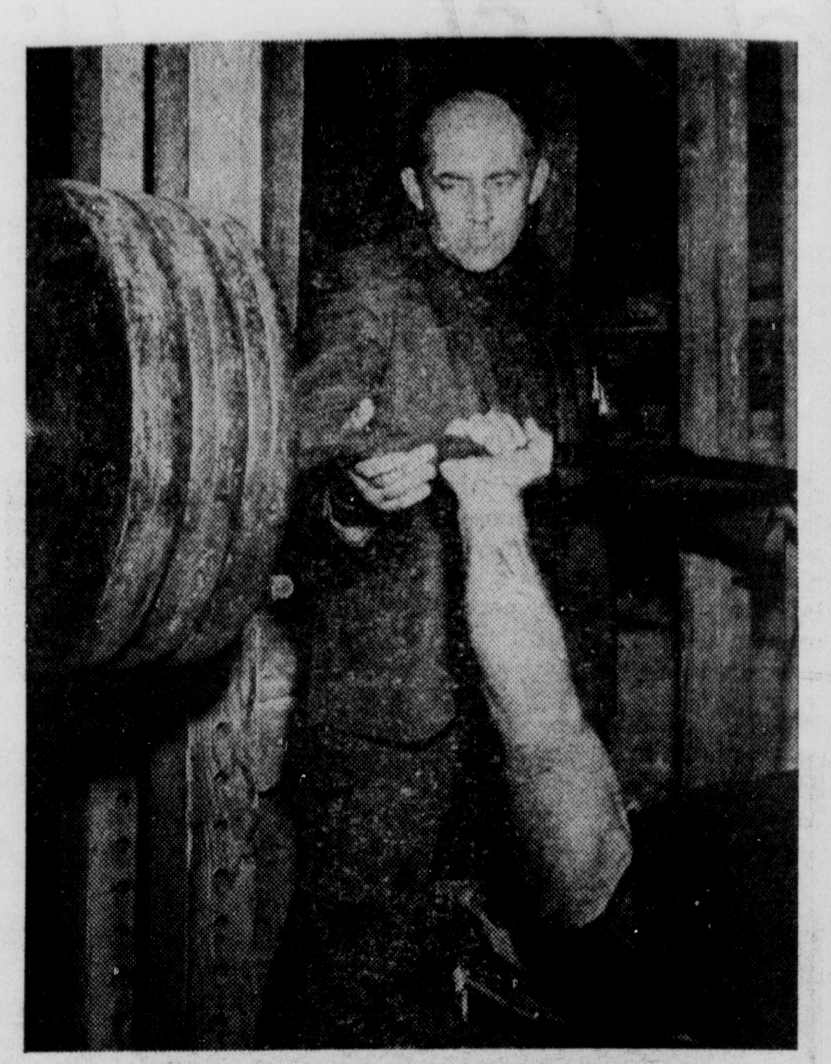
"We can't leave it up to the kids — letting them find their own way. The adults of the community should get together to push for sound recreational facilities," he said.

Would MacPhee go for a scaled-down version of his recreational complex idea?

"THAT WOULD be wrong," he said. "We need enough kinds of activities that would appeal to all kinds of people. There must be enough athletic facilities to cover all sports such as tennis, swimming, boxing, weightlifting, handball and so forth.

"People have been trying to get something like this in Marin County for 35 years. It's nothing new."

But he admits he wonders if it will ever happen.



IN THE BASEMENT gymnasium at his San Rafael home Jack MacPhee checks the poundage being hoisted by one of the muscular weightlifters who work out there. MacPhee developed an enthusiasm for weightlifting as a Stanford University student and for a number of years was the sparkplug of the Marvel Athletic Club which twice won the Pacific Coast weightlifting title and once captured the national teen-age championship.

COVER PHOTO

THERE must be more to the stuffing for the holiday turkey than just seasoned bread crumbs, believes Pierre Giavina, head chef and partner in San Rafael's Dominic's Harbor Restaurant. And so, with ingredients before him, he prepares some of the meat dressing featured with the Thanksgiving bird on the Dominic menu. Chef Giavina shares his much prized recipe for the dressing with Marin Magazine readers on this page.

Pierre Giavina's Meat Dressing Is Perfect For The Holiday Table

But no less important upon the holiday table is the dressing or stuffing for the bird.

And, in the opinion of Pierre Giavina, head chef and partner in Dominic's Harbor Restaurant at 507 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, the dressing must be something far more than the slightly seasoned bread crumbs for which some cooks settle.

Giavina, who has studied and worked in some of Europe's finest hotels and restaurants and who just recently became a partner at Dominic's, has his own seasoned meat stuffing for the holiday turkey that he says is deserving of equal billing with the king of birds it complements.

IT IS, HE adds, a recipe he learned as a young man during his early training as a chef at the National Hotel in Montreux, Switzerland.

It is the dressing that diners will be enjoying at Dominic's this Thursday.

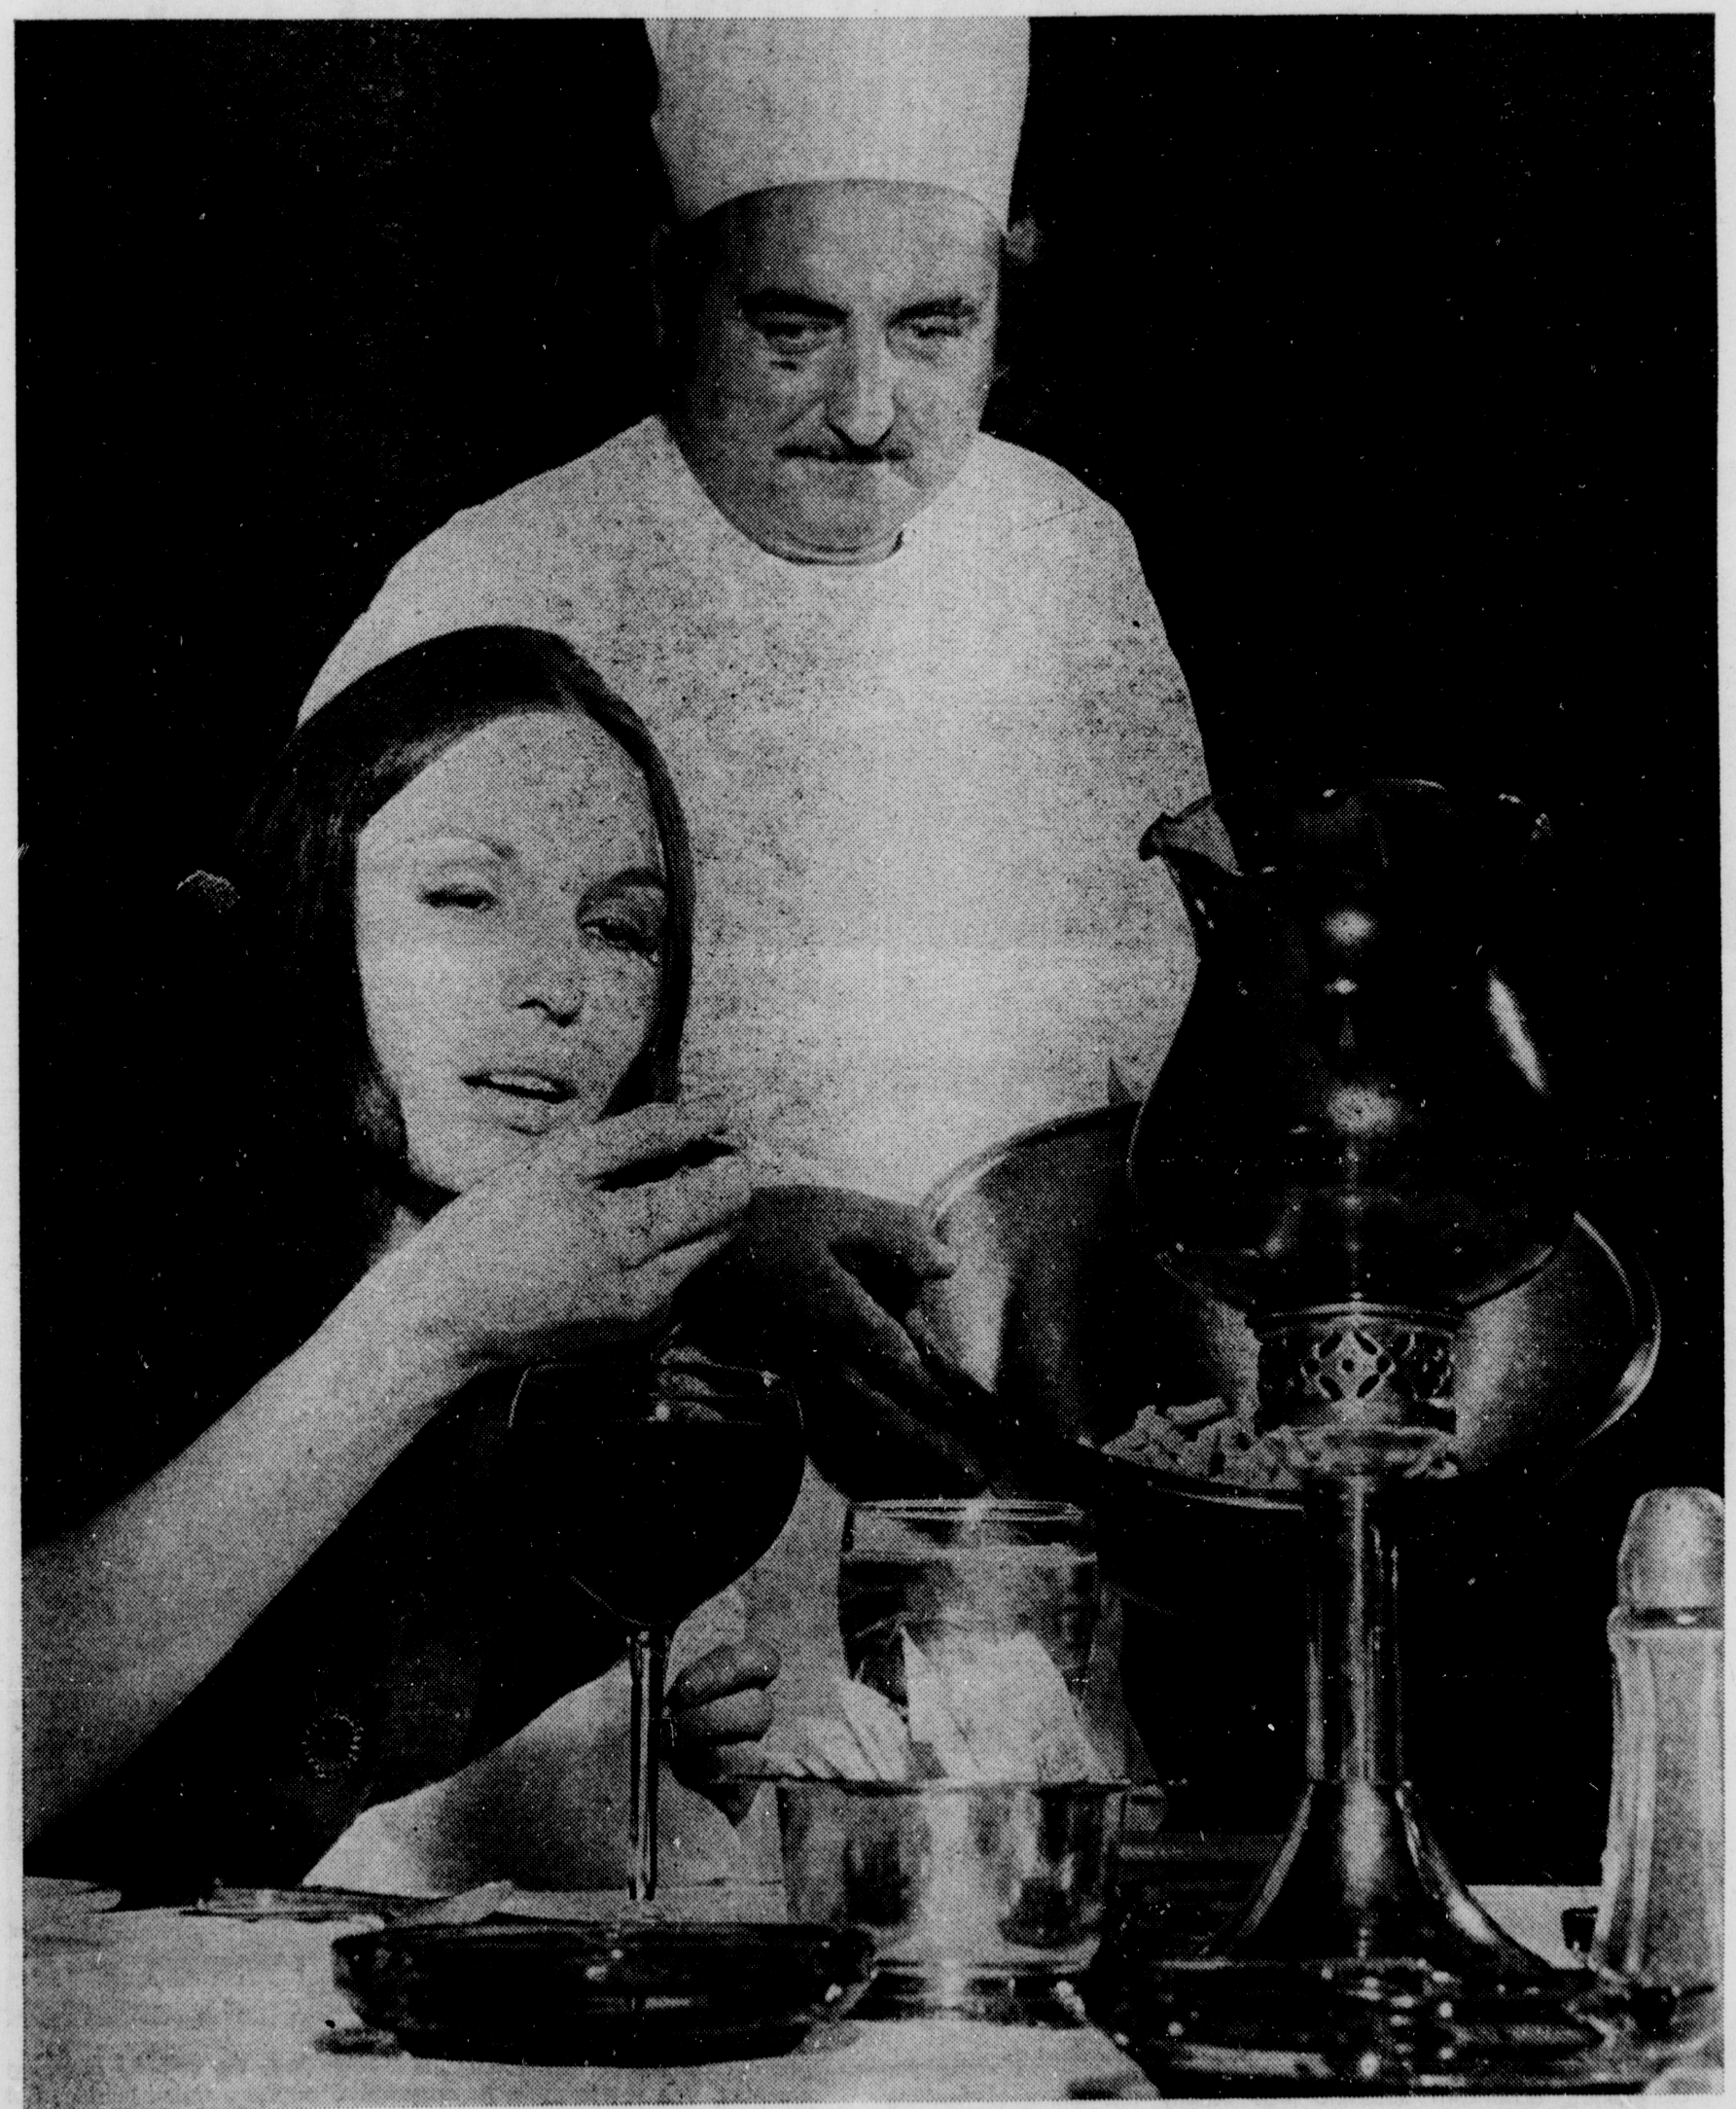
And, flush with the spirit of the holidays, Chef Giavina is sharing it with Marin Magazine readers so that they, too, can enjoy it, if they choose to dine in their homes Thanksgiving Day.

Here are Giavina's ingredients and proportions for a medium-sized turkey:

Eight ounces of pork.
Four ounces of fat.
Six ounces of veal.
Two slices of lean bacon.
Four slices of white bread.
One tablespoon of chopped onions.
One tablespoon of chopped fresh parsley.
One tablespoon of chopped celery.
One cup of whipping cream.
Two eggs.
One ounce of cognac.
One-half tablespoon of thyme.
One-fourth tablespoon of allspice.
One-fourth tablespoon of Italian herbs.
Salt and pepper.

THE BREAD and cream are placed in a large bowl and allowed to soak. The veal, pork and fat are ground or minced, and blended together with the pre-soaked bread. Then add the celery, onions, parsley, spices, salt and pepper to the mixture, and stir well. Dice and fry the bacon in a pan until it is crisp, and then pour it into the stuffing. Add the eggs and cognac and mix in well. The stuffing is then ready to go into the turkey.

And, says Giavina, you have a dressing that might well steal the show from all the other delicacies on your Thanksgiving Day table.



SHARON MAZZA submits to her taste test the bread crumbs that have been given his own special seasoning for his turkey stuffing by Pierre Giavina at Dominic's. The chef anxiously awaits her verdict, before proceeding with the recipe that he learned as a young man during his early training in the culinary arts in Montreux, Switzerland.

THE IMPACT of the railroad and of the ferryboats could be seen in this photograph of Sausalito's commercial Water Street taken in 1905. Businesses were thriving. And at this time gambling, along with the beauty of its setting and the charm of its buildings, was an attraction that lured visitors to Sausalito for recreation and refreshment.

IN ITS HEYDAY as a railroad terminal and as a ferryboat center for commuters, downtown Sausalito was usually the scene of bustling activity with heavy vehicular and foot traffic. It is still a busy place today, although much of the traffic is likely to be provided by tourists attracted to the charming bayside town. At the time the early photograph above was taken, the Village Fair, the colorful shopping complex, was yet to make its appearance on the wooded hillside. But prospering business places already lined Bridgeway, capitalizing upon the trade of the residents from the hillside and from Old Sausalito, as well as from the commuter traffic through the town.

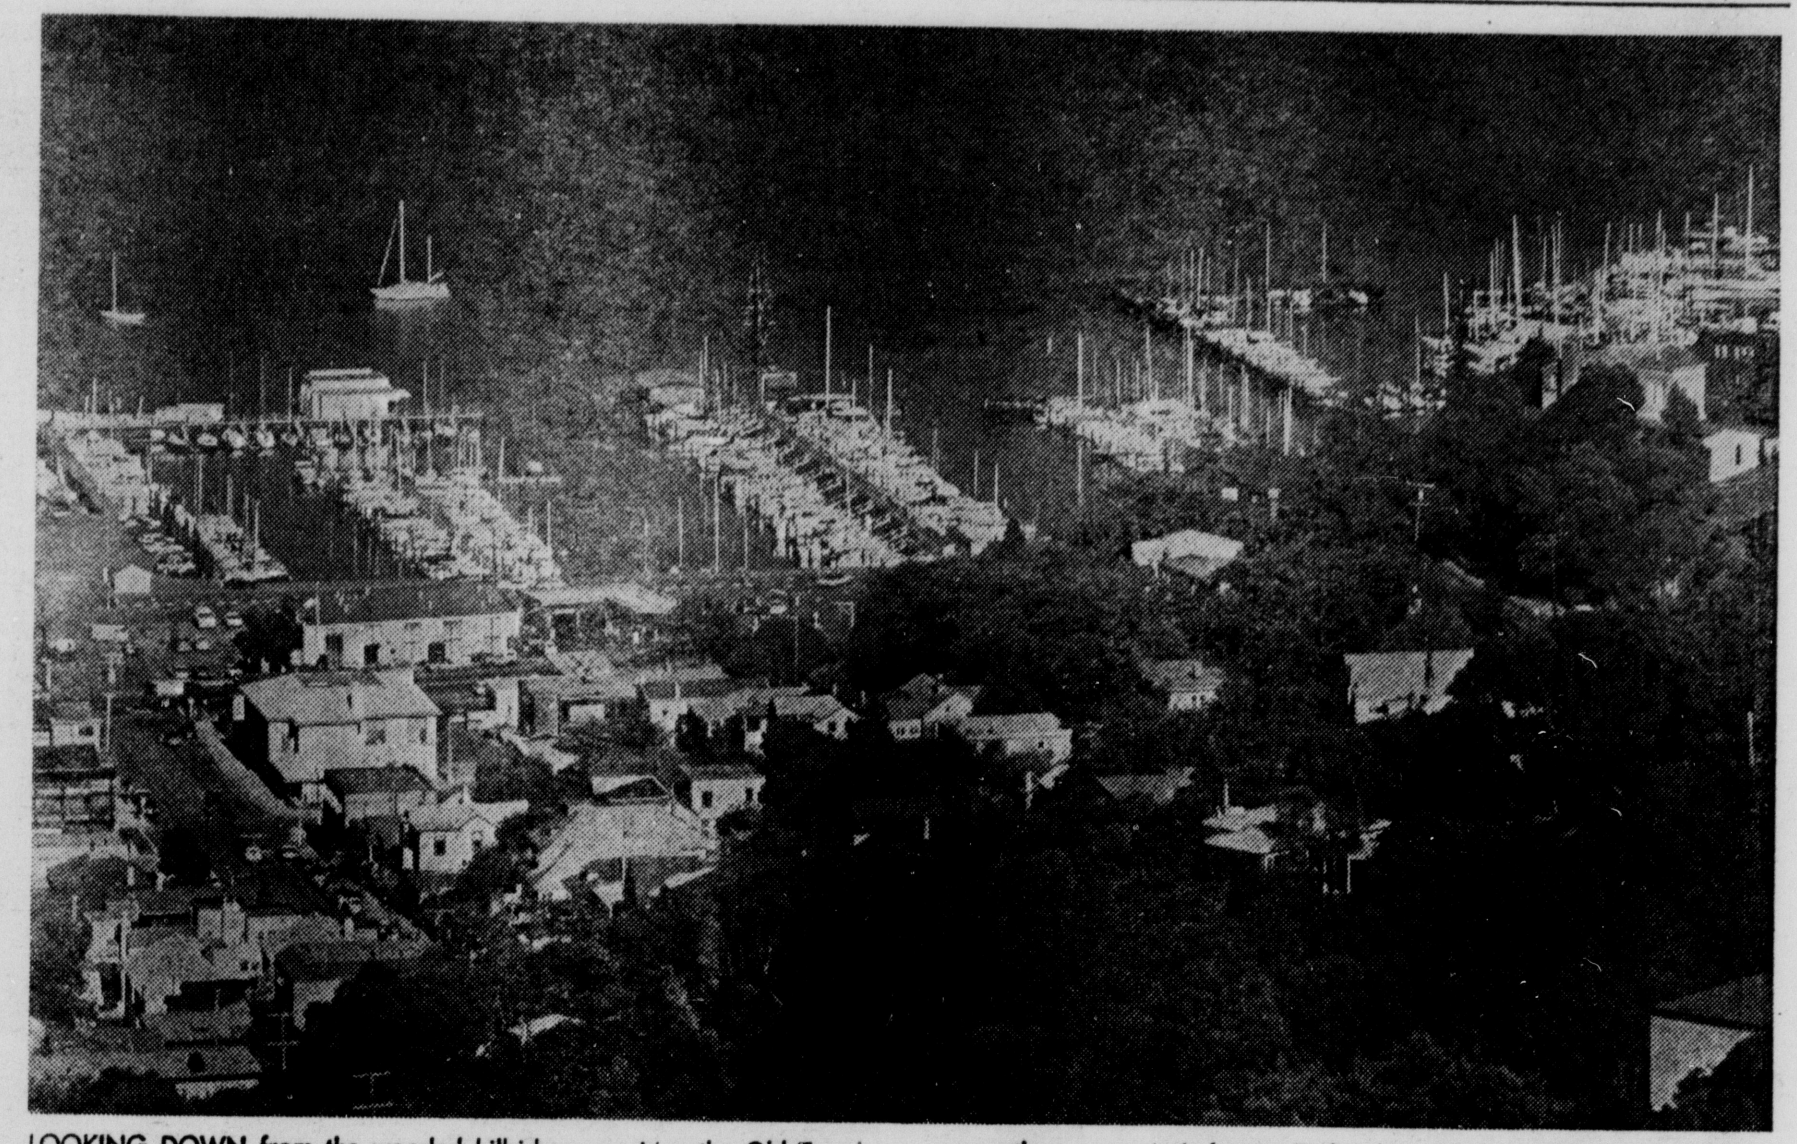
Sausalito: Its State Of A City Report—

Past, Present And Future

(Editor's Note: This is another in the series of "state of the city" reports on Marin municipalities that have been appearing weekly in the Independent-Journal's Marin Magazine. The reports were originally prepared by officials of the municipalities for publication in the I-J's special progress edition, but failed to make that issue for reasons of space. The report below on Sausalito was prepared by that city's mayor, Alexander Imlay, and covers the history, progress and future prospects of that municipality.)



LOOKING DOWN from the wooded hillside, one views the Old Town or southern sector of Sausalito, and beyond it the boat harbor and waters of the bay that have played such important roles in the city's past and present, and which will continue to exercise a strong influence upon the community's future. Today most of the craft that moor along the Sausalito waterfront are pleasure craft, although it continues to serve as headquarters for a small fishing fleet.

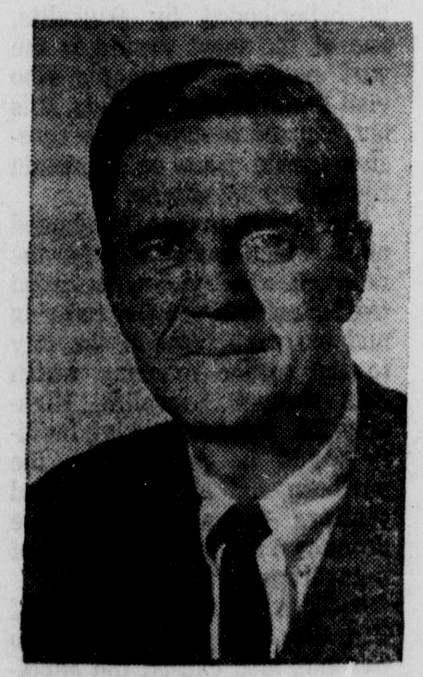
By ALEXANDER IMLAY

The history of Sausalito is tied directly to the Gold Rush era of San Francisco.

During that period, San Francisco experienced substantial population growth. With increasing numbers of people came the need for increasing public services, one of which was an adequate water supply. Located at the tip of the peninsula, San Francisco did not enjoy natural lakes or streams to draw upon for a water supply, but Sausalito a short distance away across the Bay was recognized for its abundance of natural springs.

For many years, boats plied between San Francisco and Sausalito carrying full casks of water to San Francisco for the domestic demands.

DURING THE 1870s the Sausalito Land and Ferry Co. secured vast holdings in Sausalito, subdivided the land and offered it for sale. To lure prospective purchasers to Sausalito, it was necessary to provide a means of transportation. Accordingly a small boat was constructed named the Princess. It carried prospective purchasers who soon became residents of the area to the foot of a primitive roadway which is now called Princess Street, named after the original boat.



MAYOR Alexander Imlay, an attorney, was appointed to the Sausalito City Council in 1964, elected to a full term in 1968, and chosen as mayor in 1970 after serving as vice mayor for two years. He prepared the "state of the city" report appearing on these pages with the assistance of City Mgr. Albert R. St. Cyr and other city officials.

Gradually a small colony of summer homes nestled in the Sausalito hills was developed. The protected nature of the Sausalito waterfront lent itself admirably to the development of ship-building facilities and with it came the fishing fleets which plied the Bay and the Pacific Ocean.

During the 1880s and 1890s the majority of the development occurred within the south portion of the Sausalito community, an area which is still today called Old Town. During the 1890s a railroad was completed between Sausalito and Eureka to tap the vast reaches of timber in Northern California.

With the advent of the railroad a whole new realm of employment was created and Sausalito rapidly became the home for hundreds employed in the transportation field.

During the same period, the Southern Marin County area continued to develop as a second home area catering to the wealthy from San Francisco. After the turn of the century the rail network was expanded to the nearby communities of Mill Valley, Ross, Larkspur, Manor, Corte Madera, San Anselmo, Fairfax and San Rafael and to the recreational areas in the Russian River area. To reach these areas residents and visitors alike had to pass through Sausalito.

Increasing numbers of people required the addition of more and more ferryboats whereby firming Sausalito's position as a transportation hub.

THE DOWNTOWN Sausalito area developed during this period and a substantial number of commercial buildings were developed. Many still remain today.

By the 1920s several thousand people resided within the Old Town area and the hill area behind the central business district. During the mid '20s the automobile had become commonplace in Sausalito and to accommodate that form of transportation, additional ferryboat service was added for the transportation of cars. Old-timers recall massive traffic jams extending from Sausalito all the way to Corte Madera on summer weekends when motorists would patiently await their turn on the next boat back to San Francisco. Caledonia Street just west of Bridgeway was then the principal street in that portion of Sausalito and a large number of stores were built on that street. They catered both to the residents of the area on the hills to the west and to the visitors on weekends.

Continual increases in auto travel brought pressures for a bridge across the Golden Gate. The dream was realized in the late 1930s and Sausalito returned to a more tranquil state.

A PICTURESQUE shopping district, at left, of boutiques, specialty shops and fine restaurants, charms visitors to downtown Sausalito. So much so, in fact, that on fine weather weekends, when thousands pour into the village center to enjoy its Victorian atmosphere, the traffic can create jams of serious proportions. Even on week days, as pictured here, the sidewalks and roadway of Bridgeway are busy with foot and vehicular traffic. But to the residents of Sausalito, their city remains, first and foremost, a beautiful place in which to live, in homes that range from the old Victorian dwellings of Old Town to handsome contemporary architecture such as the dwellings pictured on the right located along Spencer Avenue. Today Sausalito's population exceeds 6,000, with many of them commuting to and from San Francisco for their work.

The construction of the Bridge provided strong competition with the commuter railroads and ferryboats and by the early '40s these services were abandoned.

THE ADVENT of World War II brought the development of a major shipbuilding facility in the northern portion of Sausalito. Originally called Manzanita, the area was renamed Marinship. Shipbuilding activity boomed between 1942 and 1945. The cessation of hostilities prompted the closure of the shipyards and again Sausalito returned to a more tranquil state.

Little change occurred in Sausalito between 1945 and the mid '50s. However with increasing leisure time and due to the unique characteristics of the community; e.g. the abrupt meeting of land with water, the beautiful vistas across the Bay to San Francisco, the Victorian nature of the downtown area, the sheltered harbor for pleasure craft; Sausalito was "discovered" by tourists and visitors and since that time the downtown area has been transformed from a residential shopping area to a diversified array of specialty shops and boutiques catering to the whims and fancies of both visitor and resident alike.

Ironically the district which constructed the Golden Gate Bridge, in an effort to reduce traffic across the Golden Gate Bridge, has reinstituted ferryboat service between San Francisco and Sausalito. Residents are again afforded the opportunity to commute by boat to their offices and stores in San Francisco and visitors are afforded the opportunity to visit Sausalito without concern for parking and congestion.

TODAY, SAUSALITO is the home for 6,159 persons. Due to its close proximity to San Francisco, many Sausalitans are employed across the Bay, in professional positions. There is no industry per se in Sausalito except for the stores and shops which cater to visitors. In recent years, however, a growing trend has been the relocation of smaller professional firms engaged in such diverse fields as planning, architecture, landscape architecture and law to Sausalito.

Among the problems presently experienced by Sausalito, one of the most vexing is the vast numbers of people who visit the area on weekends. It is not unusual to experience massive traffic jams on the main routes into the village.

The city has recently adopted plans which would call for the redirection of visitor oriented traffic away from the twisting and narrow streets of the City to the major roadway which cuts through Sausalito, Highway 101. A large parking facility would be provided in the northern end of the City and visitors transported to the downtown area on some form of mass transit shuttle vehicle.

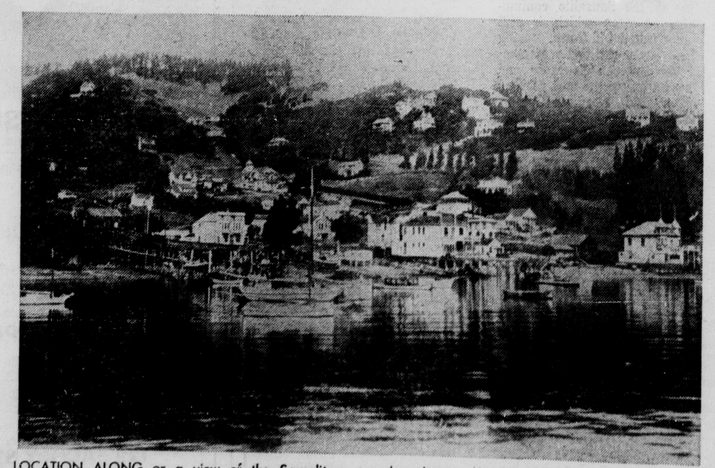
THE ATTRACTIVENESS of Sausalito as a place in which to live has also caused the subdivision and development of many privately owned open areas. The preservation of open space areas for public use and enjoyment is extremely costly, both from the standpoint of acquisition and maintenance. Nevertheless, Sausalito boasts some 27 park and recreational areas and several more are being planned.

Additionally, our city provides most municipal services including police and fire. The cost of providing these services continues to increase. In 1960, the city's budget was $388,000 and the budget for 1971-72 is $1,753,622. The city's assessed valuation in 1960-61 was $12,443,975. The assessed valuation for 1971-72 is $38,067,689.

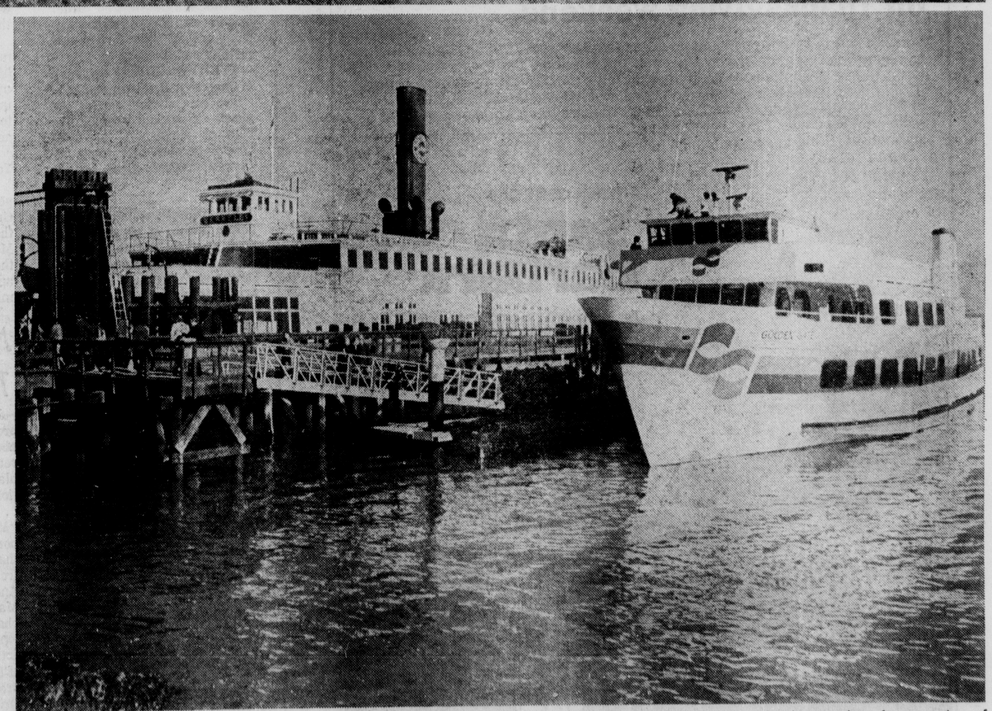
A comparison of these figures will indicate that expenses have been increasing at a rate of four and a half times while the assessed valuation has been increasing at a rate of three times. The property tax has therefore not been responsive to the increasing cost of municipal services and the demands for more and better services. As a result of insufficient yields and basic inequities of the property tax, the search is on for other sources of revenues which will be more responsive to inflation and additional service demands, and at the same time provide more equity in taxation.

THIS SEARCH is not restricted to local units of government but to all levels of government.

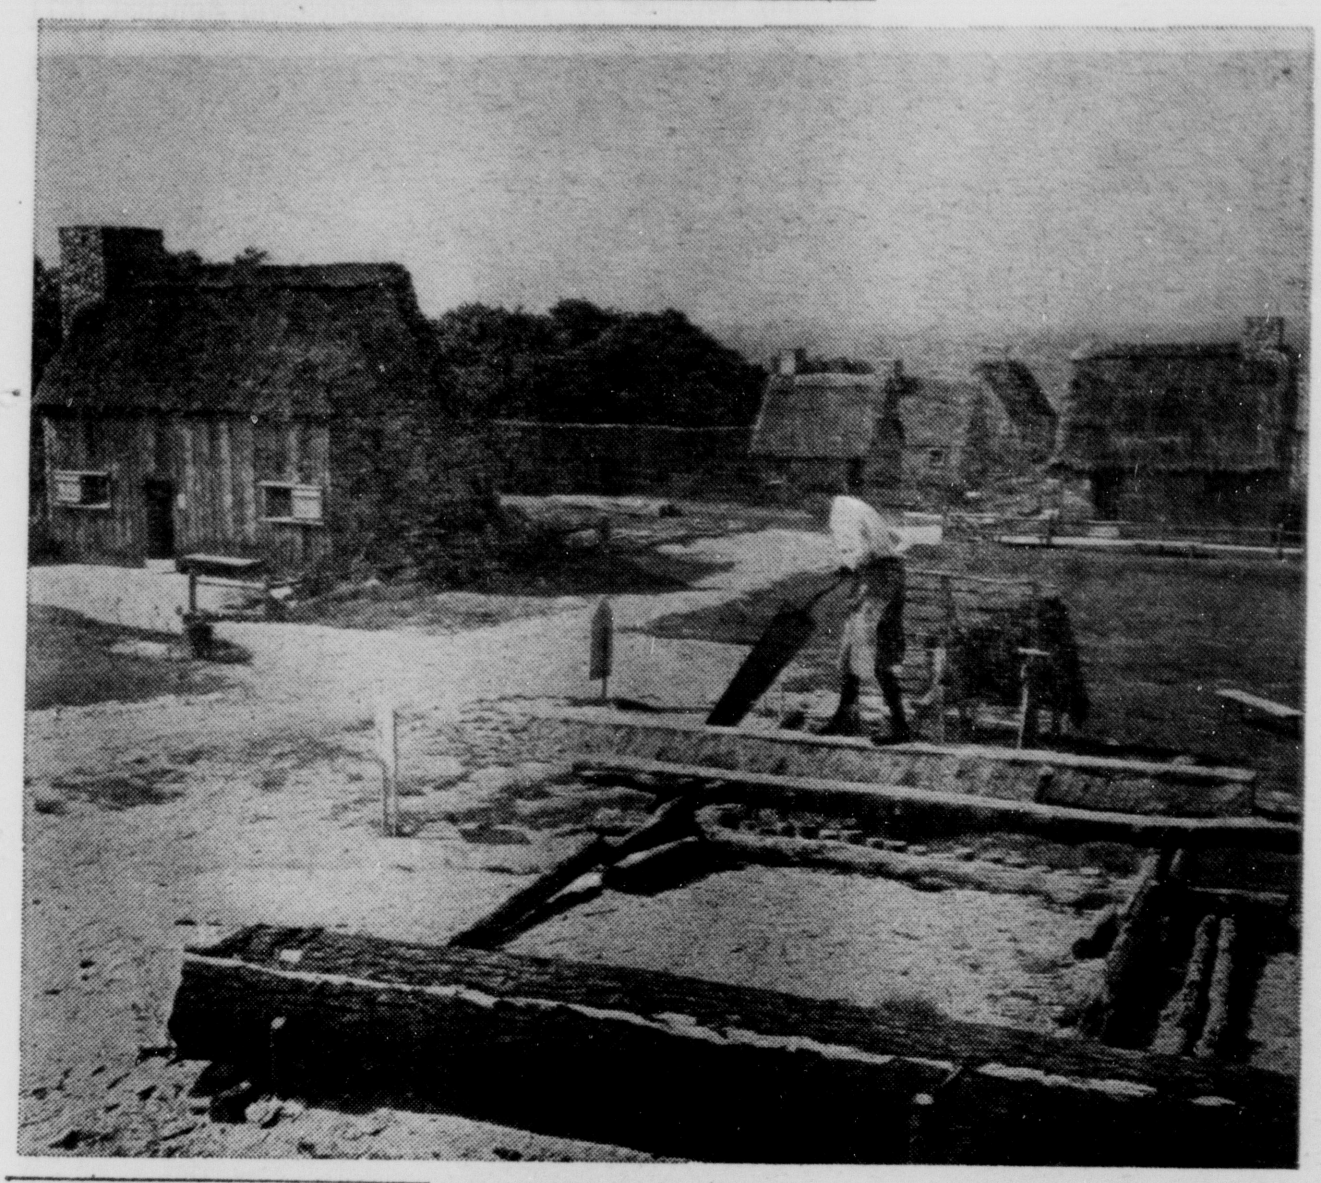
If more responsive and more equitable revenue sources are not found, I believe that future budgets will have to be balanced by decreasing the service levels which are currently being provided.



LOCATION ALONG or a view of the Sausalito shoreline has always been a prime factor in Sausalito's development, as indicated by this early-day photograph of boats in the water, hotels and other structures along the shore, and homes perched upon the hillside for the vista of the bay.



FERRYBOATS HAVE been a colorful part of Sausalito's history. And they remain very much a part of its life today. The venerable old Berkeley, at left, is anchored on the shore as a floating store. But the sleek new Golden Gate, at right, continues the longstanding ferry service of transporting passengers to and from San Francisco under Golden Gate Bridge District auspices.



IT WAS THE Pilgrim Fathers who started this whole thing of a Thanksgiving Day observance. While the celebration has remained, its character has changed along with the way-of-life of the American people. But one place where a relatively authentic depiction of the colonial culture still remains is Plymouth Plantation at Plymouth, Mass. In a recreated Pilgrim village, the old skills and crafts are still demonstrated. All of Massachusetts is one large museum of American history.

Ruins Of Yucatan Awe The Visitors

By SYD ALBRIGHT

"Don't call them ruins!" says Ricardo Guiterrez, head of Merida Travel Service, when talking about the famous Mayan and Toltec cities of Mexico's Yucatan, now partially restored.

"How can you say 'ruins' to a civilization that built these magnificent cities?"

To Ricardo Guiterrez, they are not ruins; they are his "children" and he's proud of them as a new father.

But his "children" are a thousand years old. From stone, the Mayans built great palaces, stately courtyards, towering pyramids and solemn temples. They were followed by the Toltecs who built over the Mayan structures and sacrificed their people to the gods.

THE GREATEST of these monuments to civilizations long gone are at Uxmal and Chichen Itza, not far from Merida.

The well-kept road from Merida snakes through fields of spiney agave plants, source of sisal fibre, then across long weary miles of relatively flat lands covered with dense brush. Mayan villages where the people speak the tongue of their forefathers flash by.

"Mishabel?" substitutes for the Spanish "como esta usted?" — how are you? And the mud-and-reed huts with thatched roofs are little changed from the ninth century.

Suddenly, above the brush ahead appears the top of the Great Pyramid of Uxmal, then the House of the Governors, Nunnery Quadrangle, Temple of the Magician and other structures. Mayan wall carvings tell of life and death, fertility and the gods.

EVERYWHERE IS the motif of Quetzalcoatl, the serpent god.

Swallows flutter out of the gloom of ancient rooms, like bats at sunset. A three-foot iguana perches in a stone alcove overlooking the square dominated by a huge stone phallus.

The same swallows swoop across the top of the swimming pool gulping in water at the Hotel Hacienda Uxmal a half-mile away. The lush trees and bright tropical flowers around this converted hacienda make it an oasis in a generally drab and dry landscape.

Chichen Itza is different. It's bigger, more impressive and its stone carvings more readily tell the story of its people. Heavy in the mood of the place is the knowledge that untold thousands died here — human sacrifices to the gods; most giving their lives willingly.

DOMINATING THE scene is the Temple of Kukulkan, a well-restored pyramid with a Mayan substructure that contains the famed Red Jaguar Throne, inset with discs of jade. A steep clausterphobiac stone stairway deep within the pyramid leads to it.

"These ancient cities are all the more remarkable because they were built without the use of the wheel," explains Luis Pasquel, vice president for Western Airlines in Mexico. "The Mayans had the wheel but it was the symbol of the sun. Its use as a wheel would have been a sacrilege."

Those braving the steep climb up the outside stairs of Kukulkan find a commanding view of the entire countryside. And they experience the dramatic realization that from that very vantage point, the high priests of the Toltecs carved out human hearts and rolled the bodies down the steps to the polulace below.

A QUARTER OF a mile distant — down the Sacred Way — is a deep waterhole called the Well of Sacrifice. It was there that others were adorned with jewelry and fine clothes before being offered to the rain god below.

These chilling thoughts must be kept in perspective with the knowledge that those sacrificed believed they would achieve everlasting life in another world.

Another of the great structures of Chichen Itza is the stone Ball Court. Carvings on the walls depict the game once played there. Figures reveal that two teams of seven players each competed to put a rubber ball through a stone ring high up the wall of the court, without the use of hands. (It was so difficult, games often lasted a week.)

The captain of the winning team is shown being rewarded with eternal life by having his head cut off by the losing captain!

IN MARKED contrast to these grim customs is the delicacy and sophistication of the wall carvings and the stories they tell.

The ancient people knew of microbes, of the evolution of life from primitive creatures to man; of astronomy — as seen in the well-preserved Observatory nearby — and they knew of acoustics and physics.

Where did the Mayans and Toltecs go?

"We're not sure what happened to them," says Ricardo Guiterrez. "There were many thousands of them at one time. Maybe the climate changed and the waters dried up. Game disappeared and there was famine, disease and war . . ."

The loveliest place to find yourself on Thanksgiving weekend.

Sun and surf to relax you. Mountain vistas to restore you. Old Spanish charm to regale you. Visit the stately Queen of the Missions, the fascinating Moorish Court House. Feed the animals in the children's zoo. Go hiking, riding, boating, fishing. Take a side trip to beautiful Lake Cachuma and the Danish Village of Solvang. No Welcome Mat For The Litterbug

By MURRAY J. BROWN

Americans planning to travel this winter, take warning: litterbugs are persona non grata overseas as well as at home.

And authorities everywhere are cracking down hard on the careless or unthinking litterers as part of the overall battle against pollution. Penalties range from heavy fines to possible jail sentences.

IN ENGLAND, for example, persons who litter in public can be fined up to 10 pounds sterling or about $25 at this writing. The English are even tougher on "dumping or abandoning" things, with fines ranging from up to 100 pounds sterling (about $250) for a first conviction to a 200-pound fine (about $500) and three months in jail, or both for subsequent convictions.

On the other side of the world, litter-prone Americans in Japan may run afoul of a law that prohibits "dumping or heaping refuse or filth in a conspicuous place in scenic zones." The fine can run as high as 2,000 yen.

Of course, 2,000 yen may be only about $6 in U.S. money but suppose the traveler is picked up for violating article 43 of the Japanese Road Law. That one prohibits any act of "soiling a road without permission." The article does not define "soiling" but conviction could cost up to one year in prison and a 30,000 yen (around $85) fine.

THESE ARE some of the facts unearthed by Keep America Beautiful Inc., the national anti-litter organization in the United States, in comparing notes with its counterparts overseas in search of ways to combat litterbugs.

Allen H. Seed, Jr., executive vice president of the non-profit KAB, said the oldest anti-litter law reported in the informal survey goes back more than 500 years. It was an ordinance enacted in 1446 by the city fathers of Antwerp, Belgium, ordering all citizens who kept pigs within its walls to get rid of them in 14 days "because pigs dig into litter and spread it everywhere."

Seed noted that some of the strongest, as well as strangest, litter prevention techniques are to be found in the Far East. The Nationalist Chinese island of Taiwan punishes littering and air pollution with penalties ranging from heavy fines to life imprisonment.

IN CEYLON, the preventive scheme is apt to be more psychological, he said. For instance, a sign posted at the entrance to the Pleasant Gardens of Ceylon says:

"If you with litter will disgrace
And spoil the beauty of this place
May indigestion rack your chest
And ants invade your pants and vest."

There is no report on whether the curse works on the despoilers of the scenery.

Seed said he was surprised to learn that Switzerland, where some beautiful Alpine lakes already have a pollution problem, has no national anti-litter law. However, officials told him that individual Swiss municipalities do prohibit what is called "wild deposits" of trash.

The Travel Pages

THERE ARE anti-litter laws in most other European countries and in our northerly neighbor Canada. Be especially alert in Ontario and Manitoba where not only stiff fines can be levied for conviction of littering but drivers' licenses can be suspended.

Heavy fines and jail sentences also face litterbugs in New Brunswick.

And if you plan to travel in the United States, KAB advises that all 50 states, as well as most local communities, have anti-littering laws.

Littering could cost you time and money.

Episodes In History

THE AMERICAN WEST edited by Raymond Friday Locke; Hawthorn, 255 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

"The American West" is part of Hawthorn Books' new The Mankind Series of Great Adventures in History edited by Raymond Friday Locke.

The books are collections of essays and articles upon scattered facets of history, somewhat less voluminous than are most such compendiums. They tend to be pieces that detail an event or episode, or which offer a minority viewpoint differing from the accepted historical version of an incident or a personality. Their common source is the publication Mankind Magazine.

Thus "The American West" includes Jake Barnes' "A New Look at the Outlaws of the Old West," denouncing Jesse James as "a cold-blooded killer," but, more surprisingly, giving Billy the Kid a much better press, and ranking Ann Bassett well above the infamous, and homely, Calamity Jane as an outlaw queen. Kent L. Steckmesser paints James as a much more daring figure in his "America's Robin Hood," also included in the collection. Other articles in the book range from Palmer Orr's "The Agony at the Alamo" to Robert Hardy Andrews' study of Frederick Remington, and vary rather widely in their value.

The other books in the new series are "The Birth of America," most noteworthy for Andrews' unusual and sensitive depiction of Benedict Arnold, and for the study of the generally forgotten and volatile John Adams in the presidency by the same busy writer; "The American Indian" with pieces by Locke, Ronald Leal, Norman Wiltsey and others; and "The Human Side of History", the liveliest of the four, delving into such offbeat and diverse subjects as valentines, college football, prehistoric disease, cosmetics and television.

The series, it is clear, is not aimed at recording great writing or exceptional historical research. It is quite baldly a bid for a popular readership. As such, most of it is entertaining, if not always totally trustworthy. It suffices as amusement, and even as useful supplementary reading to more reliable texts. It should not, however, be regarded as a primary source of serious historical information. Nor, apparently, is it so intended.

Nicholas Mosley's Impressionist Novel

NATALIE NATALIA by Nicholas Mosley, Coward, McCann and Geoghegan, 316 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Alice Dalbey.

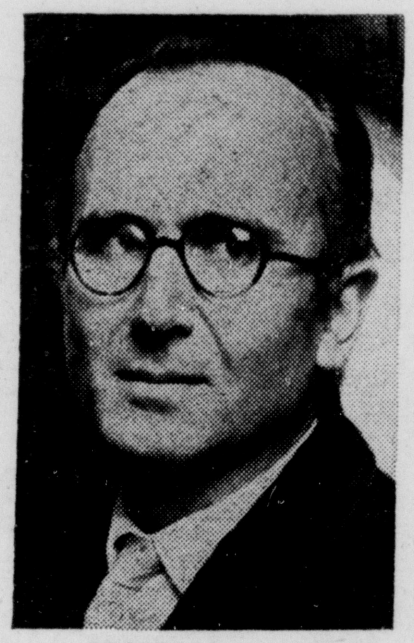
Natalie Natalia is a two-faced, two-minded woman. Her lover is an expert on Africa and also a member of Parliament who hopes to escape the hypocrisy of politics.

His difficult career and frustrating love affair with Natalie (he is married to a long-suffering, perfect wife) force him into a "nervous breakdown" — a long drawn-out session of soul-searching that leads to a semi-solution but not to the peace with God which he is seeking.

The confused, self-centered characters in this novel are the creations of Nicholas Mosley (Lord Ravensdale) and few of them are believable — but they aren't meant to be. Rather, they are unhappy doubles for today's everyman and everywoman.

Mosley's protagonist speaks in the first person and, much of the time, in simple sentences that become repetitive and boring, despite the symbolism they illuminate.

But Mosley does have a poet's gift for phrasing. Of the lovers he says, "We groped beyond each other to some image of ourselves behind us." And of time they spent together, "We were by a sea with ruined pillars."



NICHOLAS MOSLEY
Avant garde darling

Sentences such as these make this highly impressionistic novel an occasional delight. Mosley, also author of "Accident" and "Impossible Object," is a current darling of avant garde critics; and, if you relish symbolism, introspection and world-weariness, you'll find his revelations about Natalie and her lover worth close attention.

Man's Origins — And Their Impact

THE IMPERIAL ANIMAL by Lionel Tiger and Robin Fox; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 308 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Jeff Greer.

Two young anthropologists who admit their names have caused many jokes, have produced a book that highly polishes a train of thought that had its forebears in Robert Ardry's "African Genesis," Desmond Morris's "The Naked Ape" and other works.

The though pattern holds, in essence, that man's culture is molded by his biological wellsprings as a primate turned hunting animal. Tiger and Fox flatly deny that an infant is a "tabla rosa" that could be shaped to conform to any culture, however artificial. They contend the need to work, the need to hunt (in the savannah or at a corporate board table), the need for parenthood and other characteristics are part of man's "biogrammar," planted through long evolution.

In outlining this biogrammar, the two scholars predict a troubled road ahead for women's liberation movements, education and many other facets of a highly artificial society that also possessed several means to species suicide.

This reader found "The Imperial Animal" less sensationally argumentative than "The Naked Ape," partly because the ideas presented no longer are so novel. Neither does the book bear the drama of Ardry's works — Ardrys is a stage writer turned naturalist and anthropological historian.

But more than its forebears that I have read, "The Imperial Animal" offers a directional sign toward one possibility that mankind can know and so save itself.

The Typewriter That Tells The Facts Of After-Life

A WORLD BEYOND by Ruth Montgomery; Coward, McCann and Geoghegan, 210 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

"There is no heaven, hell, or purgatory, except of the soul's own making . . ."

So the psychic Arthur Ford supposedly communicated to the living after death through Ruth Montgomery via automatic writing.

"A World Beyond" is Miss Montgomery's record of her series of communications with Ford in which the medium supposedly revealed through her the facts of after-life.

Ford supposedly also brings us up to date on the present circumstances of such deceased personages as the Kennedy brothers, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Winston Churchill, Josef Stalin, Bishop James Pike and Napoleon Bonaparte.

Whether one accepts Miss Montgomery's claim to serve as a "relay" for messages from beyond as espoused in this and earlier books is a personal matter. Such acceptance isn't easy. But unquestionably, Ruth Montgomery does make with almost seriousness a fascinating presentation, including some Ford predictions for the future: Nixon's re-election in 1972, Jordan's absorption by Israel and Syria, Castro's fall in Cuba, a cancer cure breakthrough, and a major shift of the world's axis in the 1990s with drastic climatic reverses.

As for the book's fundamental topic, Miss Montgomery's typewriter, supposedly under Ford's control, wrote:

"The types who have the hardest adjustment to make in coming over here are those who either failed to believe in a life hereafter or were so totally unprepared that they will not try to adjust to the unexpected conditions."

About The Hang-Ups Of Writers

THE TENANTS by Bernard Malamud; Farrar, Straus and Giroux, 230 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Francis M. Dozier Jr.

When in a creative dry spell, a writer can always turn to the subject of a writer having problems writing.

Such must be the case here with Malamud. For added thrust, though, he writes of two writers writing. One is a Jewish recluse who has enjoyed some success; the other a crude but promising ghetto Black.

Think of the possibilities. After a tentative friendship formed by the two as the only dwellers of an apartment house, have them become intense rivals. How better to get more mileage out of the supposed schism between the two races?

More Satire From Hoppe On President And Issues

MR. NIXON and MY OTHER PROBLEMS by Arthur Hoppe; Chronicle Books, 226 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Francis M. Dozier Jr.

With election time only a year away, it's time for some resolute, and, what may well be, parting, shots at Nixon. A feature film deriding the President has recently screened in San Francisco and there is small doubt that other printed works are being readied, before Nixon may be left only to the historians.

Hoppe, of course, as a syndicated political columnist, has had almost daily opportunity to deal with Mr. Nixon and what his administration has wrought in his inimitably witty and lucid parables.

After lamenting the lack of anything truly funny about Nixon, some fatal flaw, as in other presidents, Hoppe then exhibits an even dozen of his best satirical efforts.

Those "other problems" confronting Hoppe, not surprisingly, come under the headings of the environment, modern living, sex, patriotism and the war. But the essay of the remaining 88 having the most impact is the famous anti-war piece "To Root Against Your Country." Since original publication, it has achieved singularity for its calculatedly resigned perversity of sentiment on the Vietnam involvement.

THE BOOK PAGES

A Civilized Man Comments On Publishing And Authors

By DON KEOWN

"Civilized" is the adjective that comes first to mind in describing publisher and editor Cass Canfield after reading and enjoying his "Up and Down and Around."

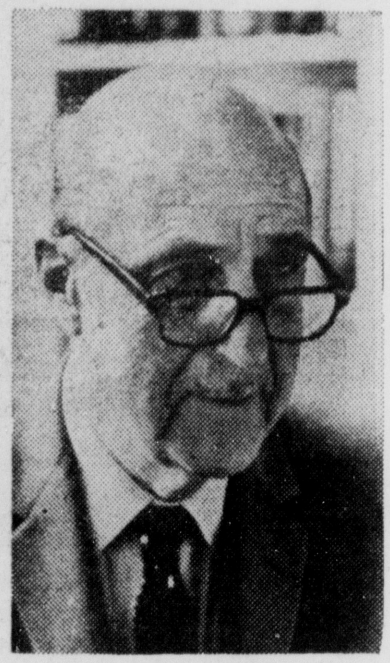
"Civilized" in the sense that he is a refined, cultured and urbane raconteur who spins tales and offers opinions tht are amusing if hardly momentous.

His book is part autobiography, part a history of the publishing profession, part the story of Harper Brothers which became the publishing house of Harper and Row with which Canfield has been so long and so successfully associated, and part a presentation of the author's own ideas on books and their issuance.

Canfield himself emerges as a most decent and humanitarian-minded man, a liberal, but one more knowledgeable than perceptive, more a creature of intellect than of emotion.

Deliberately, it seems, he keeps both the tone and content of his book light so that it makes for pleasant, entertaining reading that does not tax the minds of his readers and might leave some of them thinking that Canfield has underestimated both himself and them, and might have extended himself a bit more in the writing of his book.

Still, it is a treat to share Canfield's recollections of the literary and other greats with whom he has been associated, fleeting though the impressions sometimes are.



CASS CANFIELD
An urbane raconteur

In the pages of the book appear the likes of Eleanor Roosevelt — "we were impressed, as was everyone who knew her well, with the quality and generosity of her character" —, Leon Trotsky, Adlai Stevenson, Sumner Welles, John Gunther, E. B. White, Thornton Wilder, James Thurber, Glenway Wescott, Svetlana Alliluyeva, Aldous Huxley, Edna St. Vincent Millay, George Bernard Shaw, Sinclair Lewis, Ludwig Bemelmans, Jacques-Yves Cousteau, Alice B. Toklas and many others.

Canfield selects and tells his anecdotes well. He gives a brief account of the sticky Harper-Kennedy confrontation over William Manchester's "The

UP AND DOWN AND AROUND by Cass Canfield; Harper's Magazine Press, 272 pages, $8.95.

Death of a President," includes episodes about his own involvement in Democratic Party politics and in the wartime government bureaucracy, and provides accounts of some of his travels.

His younger years, too, are accounted for, and these were pretty much the typically silly and pampered youth of the offspring of the well-to-do of his era. Young Canfield did, even then, exhibit some of the intellect that was to carry him to the top in publishing, and did demonstrate a propensity for adventure that has remained with him through the years and provides an interesting edge to his otherwise "cool" character. An around-the-world voyage and walk with another young man included some near-fantastic feats.

"I've had a good time," Canfield says of his life, and, indeed, it sounds as though he has.

As for his opinions on books and book publishing, they are, perhaps, not as deep as one might have hoped, but nonetheless provocative.

Throughout these disucssions runs one theme — the importance of keeping the controls for book publishing in the hands of bookmen — not accountants.

"Too many mergers have recently taken place, in my opinion," he writes, "for publishing firms are most profitable and contribute most when managed by men who know books, rather than by accountants, no matter how able."

Canfield remains basically the editor — a connoisseur of writing. These special talents he demonstrates when he selects as an example of prose of distinction a beautiful passage from the English novel "Precious Bane" by Mary Webb, published in 1926, that begins:

"For lambing time is the shepherd's trial. In the black of night, in the dead of the year, at goblin's time, he must be up and about by his lonesome. With mist like a shroud on him, and frosty winds like the chill of death, and snow wispering, and a shriek on this side of the forest and a howl on that side, the shepherd must be walking . . ."

Cass Canfield, it is clear, has made a substantial contribution to the enviable prestige Harper and Row enjoys in publishing and with book-lovers.

His own book constitutes another contribution on his part to the enjoyment and understanding of the written word. Whether Canfield might have extended himself further and delved deeper is a possible subject for debate. But we must be satisfied, at least for the time being, with what we have received.

One personal quibble: Although Harper and Row publishes the most impressive list of mysteries and suspense novels of any American house, Canfield makes not one mention of them, nor the fine craftsmen responsible for this excellent work. This seems to us a perpetuation of an unjustified and unfortunate bit of snobbism that has been with publishing and the literary cult too long.

JULIA AND DEREK PARKER, husband and wife of London, England, are journalists, lecturers and authors who have compiled "The Complete Astrologer" (McGraw-Hill, $14.95). Billed as "the most comprehensive guide to astrology ever published," the big, 255-page "coffee-table-size" book is profusely illustrated and includes a history of astrology as a science (or pseudo-science), an astronomy guide, biographies of the more famous astrologers, birth charts with interpretations, and an almost overwhelming array of astrological tables from which the knowledgeable supposedly can work out their own horoscopes. Disbelievers will be impressed, but hardly persuaded or interested sufficiently to invest $14.95. But for believers, "The Compleat Astrologer" will represent the last word in living by the zodiac. And unquestionably, belief and interest in astrology has zoomed in recent years.

INTEREST IN unidentified flying objects seems to have slackened sharply, but if such is not the case in your specific instance, you might be intrigued by Paris Flammonde's "The Age of Flying Saucers," subtitled "Notes on a Projected History of Unidentified Flying Objects."

"The golden age of the flying saucers is gone," admits the author, adding that it was an era marked not so much by the sightings of UFOs as by the public excitement such reports stirred and the general inclination to believe in them.

Now, he adds, even should the UFOs some day prove, indeed, to be inter-stellar vehicles, the finding would be anticlimactic.

The craze was "not merely mythic, but legendary — a tale told by romantics, full of hope and symbols, signifying fear." And the dream ended, "crushed in the vise of anti-dream, and science turned the screw."

In other words, when man himself could zoom and orbit about space, he ceased to need the dream of other creatures who could accomplish a feat seemingly denied to him.

But before he reaches that conclusion Flammonde provides an exhaustive record of the claimed sightings and the sometimes nearly hysterical excitement that accompanied such reports. He rejects outright none of the theories and proposes a couple of his own for consideration.

Flammonde is best known for a previous book that defended Jim Garrison's conspiracy theory in the John F. Kennedy killing, shortly before the New Orleans district attorney's case collapsed. Hawthorn Books is the publisher of "The Age of Flying Saucers" and the price is $8.95.

THE TITLE of George Sullivan's "The Complete Books of Autograph Collecting" (Dodd, Mead, $4.95) is by necessity a misnomer. It would be impossible to write and organize a truly "complete" book about an activity as diverse and as far-flung as autograph seeking, and this is a rather thin 154-page work. But the author has succeeded in packing a great deal of information and advice into those pages — how to obtain signatures, how to detect forgeries, how to establish the value of autographs, how to select your specialty, etc. There is a special chapter on presidential autographs. It is, no doubt, a helpful guide for the beginner. But, again, it is by no means a "complete" guide.

Sleuths & Suspense

There's a special kind of pleasure in recommending a promising new suspense novelist to fellow buffs of the genre.

"Promising," however, is not exactly the best description for June Thomson. With her first novel, "Not One of Us," this Englishwoman appears to have arrived upon the "who-done-it" scene with her talents already full-blown.

With extraordinary competency and sensitivity she spins her tale that begins with the discovery of a teen-age girl's body in the woods outside an Essex village. As her strangler the villagers suspect the strange young man who has been living a hermit-like existence in an isolated cottage, more because of his long hair, beard and iconoclastic ways than for any really substantial reason.

suspect, but still pursues the manhunt doggedly.

Mrs. Thomson's picture of English rural and village people and their parochial lives is memorable — compassionate yet honest. Even her denouement, while low-key and ironic, fits the mood of her fine story. We haven't read a better detective yarn in years.

Books For Cooks —

By MAXINE KEOWN

A blockbuster among the cookbooks this Christmas season is Dover Publications' exact facsimile reproduction of Charles Ranhofer's haute cuisine classic "The Epicurean."

It is an unabridged reprinting of the now very rare 1893 edition of this great book in which Ranhofer set down the choice recipes from the bills of fare from 1862 into the 1890s of famed Delmonico's where he was for so many years the master chef.

There are 3,500 specific recipes. But there are also directions and explanations of cooking techniques that made Delmonico's the most famous American restaurant of the time.

Dover is noted for its ressurection of rare works threatened with extinction. But generally those reprints appear in softcover. "The Epicurean" has been given a handsome hardcover treatment, and it runs to 1,183 pages including some 800 illustrations.

As a historic piece, it is impressive. But it has its practical potential as well. Such great dishes as the Delmonico sirloin steak, ham a la Benedict, oysters stuffed a la Mornay, Breton cake, Italian mousse and Boston brown bread have more than stood the tests of time and tastes.

"A Franco-American Culinary Cuisine" claims the frontispiece, which is exactly what it is.

Dover has priced this great book at $17.50, and, from the standpoint of bulk or the quality of its content, that figure seems most reasonable. The serious cook, with an interest already whetted by Julia Childs, will flip over a gift of this master work.

AND WHILE soups are one food field in which the processors have done well by us, producing some really tasty preparations easily available in cans and packages, there is, nevertheless, something especially appealing about homemade soup that has simmered on the kitchen stove. Especially in the winter-time.

Marin's Coralie Castle offers a large and diverse array of soups in her softcover cookbook entitled simply "Soup" and published by 101 Productions of San Francisco.

The range is from Icy Watermelon Soup to Family Minestrone. The bean soups, the vegetable soups, the lentil soups, the cold soups, the Oriental soups, the chowders, the stocks, the purees, the fruit soups — they are all there. Plus such exotics as Peanut Butter Soup and Seafood Gazpacho.

Mrs. Castle also provides some background material on soups and their role in man's history, but the recipes, diverse appealing, are the thing. The book is not only available at bookstores at $3.95, but also from the Marin Community Workshop for the handicapped at 70 Woodland Avenue, San Rafael, which shares in those proceeds.

"NEW CASSEROLE Treasury" (Harper & Row, $7.95) is a revised, updated edition of Lousene Rousseau Brunner's successful cookbook published six years ago. There are more than 400 recipes of many ethnic origins, most of them aimed at the more serious and more prideful cook. The format is especially well-planned and helpful, the directions clear and well-ordered. In no instance must the reader-cook turn the page to complete a recipe.

Samples from its pages run from Baked Oysters with Potato Topping and Ham Casserole with Wine to Quick Green Bean Casserole and Deviled Corn Pudding. But generally they tend to range on the elegant side and to require some investment of time from the cook.

An added bonus: A table of herbs and their recommended uses.

"BRUNCH" HAS come to be one of the most pleasant words in our language. Spoken it brings to mind a late awakening, an unhurried late morning or noontime meal of festive-type foods, with a relaxed day ahead. The range of appropriate foods is a wide one, and yet not all dishes are appropriate for the brunch table. Some are out of place, while others undeniably belong.

June Roth, a veteran author of cookbooks, gives you an appetizing assortment of selections in her "Let's Have a Brunch" cookbook. Her menu suggestions take on a special flair in that they are proposed for holidays and special occasions, or have a national theme. And, indeed, a brunch is the perfect way to get a celebration off to a great start. But the menus and recipes, nonetheless, can be used for any weekend when the brunch-fancy strikes.

Who could fail to respond to waffles with ham and fruit sauce on Thanksgiving morning? Or steamed snowball pudding on Christmas Day? Or a Viennese casserole? Or macaroon coffee cake?

Simon and Schuster is the publisher and the price is $5.95.

"MEAT" BY the Lobel Brothers is considerably more than just a collection of recipes, although it does contain some 300 of those. It is a manual on meats — how to buy, store, prepare and serve them — as prepared by M. Lobel & Sons, the famed New York butchers, and edited by Alice Richardson.

Hawthorn Books is the publisher and the price is $7.95.

Vegetarianism may be enjoying a considerable popularity these days, but for most of us the meat still makes the meal. And the Lobels have put together an exceptionally informative guide as to how to get the most from this important course. Along with the fundamentals there's an appetizing collection of meat, poultry, wild game and sauce recipes that many will find in themselves well worth the price of this well-done, very sound book.

The Lobels, incidentally, are now down to two, Stanley and Leon. But behind them is a family tradition of more than four centuries of dispensing meats and advising their customers.

ONE HAS only to attend a church "social" in a city, town, hamlet or country church to realize again that the very best, no-nonsense cooking takes place in the kitchens of American homes presided over by down-to-earth, dedicated housewives. Beatrice Vaughan, cookbook collector and compiler, has long recognized this and demonstrated it with her "Yankee Hill-Country Cooking" and other cookbooks. Now such is back with more with "The Ladies Aid Cookbook," ($6.95) and her publisher is again Stephen Greene Press of Rutland, Vt.

Her sources are the members of women's organizations in New England and the South, and the recipes are the kinds that have stood the tests of time and taste through generations. It should be noted that the recipes are for family meals, not for fund-raising, mass-feeding events. It is the kind of book in which she expects to find oyster stew, sour cream pie, baked beans and oatmeal cookies. And you do. Along with a lot of other favorites of mothers and grandmothers of two regions justly noted for their cuisines.

SUNSET'S Lane Magazine & Book Co. has abridged its popular hardcover gift book, "Sunset Cook Book for Entertaining," and now offers it in softcover at $1.95.

It is the fast-selling compendium of 250 menus with recipes and party plans plus entertainment ideas. And there is no denying the taste appeal of the choices of the Sunset editors — Brazilian baked trout, Swiss cheese salad, Chocolate-mint fizz, Veal Veronique, Honey-pecan cornbread sticks, etc. If you don't own the original version, here is the chance to pick up the best of it at a bargain price.

A TEMPTING illustration in the "New Casserole Treasury" cookbook compiled by Lousene Rousseau Brunner and reprinted in a new revised edition by Harper and Row shows Bouillabaisse, just one of its more than than 400 recipes.

RECIPES THAT can be made now, served later, are apparently more and more in demand in these time-conscious times. Better Homes and Gardens (Meredith) takes advantage of this interest with a "Make-Ahead Cook Book."

This is one of those rather slim, tastefully designed, reasonably priced ($1.95) cookbooks for which Better Homes has found a brisk market. Busy housewives are certain to find a number of helpful ideas and recipes in its pages. For instance, Lime Chicken that can be prepared entirely in advance. Or Coffee Eclairs that require but 10 minutes for final assembly.

Better Homes and Gardens' experience and feeling for the needs and interest of the housewives are reflected in the quality of this excellent addition to its publications.

JUNE ROTH is the author of the "Let's Have a Brunch" cookbook, published by Simon and Schuster under its Essandess Special Editions label.

FOR THE health food crowd is "The Whole Wheat Heart of Yasha Aginsky" (Dutton, $4.95) compiled by Carrier Rose with the help of artist Melinda Peterson as a vegetarian cookbook. It is in softcover and in handwriting and handprinting, and it avoids meats (but not fish) while making extensive use of the products on the shelves of the health food stores.

There are things like cheese bread, spinach salad, egg and nut pate, barley and mushroom pilaf, carrot cake, apricot chutney, split pea stew and Jared's black bread. And even if you are not prepared to enlist in the vegetarian ranks, you'll find many recipes that sound good and wholesome enough to share space with your meat entree upon your dinner table. It is a clever, attractive book that makes more creative, yet practical, use of whole wheat flour, honey, yogurt, sunflower oil and miso than do most such books.

AT THE other end of the cooking spectrum is "World's 50 Best Meat Recipes," a small booklet that originally appeared in Dutch by Ben J. Kuyper and has been translated into English by Jane Heller and published by Herder and Herder.

In softcover, it offers a rather exotic array of meat recipes from many lands and many peoples, and they are definitely of a kind not usually encountered in American cookbooks — the stiphado of Greece, the tjap tjae of Indonesia, the hallacas of Venezuela. It is for the cook who really likes to vary her menus and to try something different. And it is part of a "World's 50 Best" recipes series — cheese dishes, soups, salads, pancakes, etc.

The Hellebore Family: Evergreen, Distinctive

Gardening Page

With most flowers, warming temperatures and longer sunny days bring out blooms.

It's just the opposite with members of the Hellebore family — Christmas Rose, Lenten Rose, and Corsican Hellebore. With the arrival of cool weather and shorter days they start busting out all over.

From December to April, one or all are likely to be in bloom, which makes the Hellebore clan a delightful addition to the winter garden. They are distinctive additions in both flower and foliage; and during the wet season continue to hold their blossoms high through any rain or wind storm.

The Christmas Rose (Helleborus niger) displays masses of two-inch flower cups on single stems which are mainly white, but often tend to plum and purplish hues.

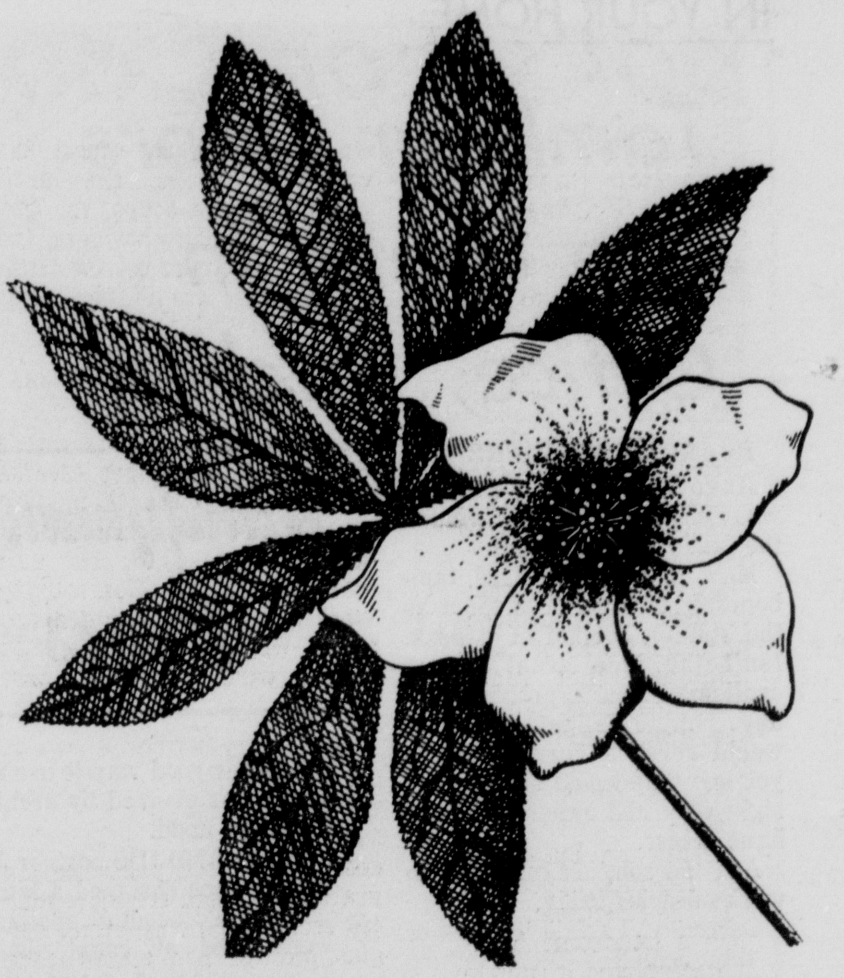
Lenten Rose (Helleborus orientalis) produces plenteous blooms, several per stem, and can be found in several unusual shadings. Flowers are primarily greenish or greenish-to-purple or purple-rose. Pink, white and maroon flowers are occasionally to be found, too.

Corsican Hellebore (Helleborus lividus) is the largest of the three and bears clusters of appealing pale green flowers like nothing you've ever seen.

THE DEEPLY-cut leaves vary in size by variety, and the evergreen foliage is attractive throughout the year. Christmas and Lenten Roses stay under two feet in height and serve nicely as low, spreading landscape shrubs. Corsican Hellebore is more shrub-like in appearance, growing to three feet, and is an ideal low-growing garden feature.

The California Association of Nurserymen advises that members of the Hellebore family are especially excellent choices for partially-shaded areas in the landscape. But avoid planting them where they'll receive direct or reflected hot afternoon sun in summer, however.

The plants like more shade then sun, appreciate moisture and an acid soil — which are modest requirements for such extraordinary contributors to the beauty of your garden, and to your enjoyment.



THE LENTEN ROSE or Helleborus orientalis is a member of the distinctive Hellebore clan and produces profusions of blooms in unusual shadings that might be greenish, greenish-purple or rose. (Drawing courtesy of California Association of Nurserymen)

Green Plants Do Job Of Noise Abatement Well

Excessive noise levels in homes and offices have an extremely detrimental effect on tempers and efficiency, according to recent studies by the World Health Organization. In addition, aggravating noises have been linked to tension-related diseases.

With the volume of noise in our environment reaching greater levels each day, the need for effective sound-reducing agents is becoming more and more critical to our well-being.

Among the most efficient noise abatement agents is nature's own green growing plant life.

In homes, planted thickly in dividers or along playrooms, around windows and other noise areas, they help block the sounds of radios, televisions, appliances, voices and other household sounds. They even help reduce outside noises.

CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

✔ If you would like to grow some plants from seed, you can sow Sweet Alyssum, Bachelor Button, Clarkia and wildflower mixtures into the open ground now after the first rains.

✔ Shop for a living Christmas tree while the selection is at its best — like now. If you would grow it in a tub or box through several Christmases, select an attractive container large enough to allow for growth. A bag of commercial soil mix makes planting easy.

✔ Continue the garden clean-up. Now is a good time to spray certain deciduous trees and shrubs. Your nurseryman can recommend the plant protection chemicals to use.

✔ Double check long canes on climbing roses to make sure they are secured. Winter winds and rain might loosen and damage them if you don't.

Tambour Doors Are Useful In Office, Kitchen

Handyman's Pages

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY

Have you ever wondered what ingenious person invented the tambour door system?

Most of us have used tambours or at least seen them as the roll-top section of a desk. Isn't the idea great? Some craftsman had a problem one day: how to design a door that would cover a curved surface yet one that would slide out of sight when the owner wished to have access.

And the solution continues to work miracles today.

Currently, I spend the best of a day behind a 20th Century roll-top desk. It's a Herman Miller product, slim, handsome with the main working space coverable. A nice device when the day's work isn't quite culminated yet you must leave it until morning. Simply pull the tambour down and, voila, the office looks visitor-perfect.

THE TAMBOUR or roll-top desk is especially helpful in an office such as mine where the walls are glass toward the street and toward the inner reception area. It's always on display as corporate executives and their guests come and go during he day and early evening.

Tambours are practical at home. How often do you start some paperwork or tax prepration only to have to interrupt your labors to attend to family-matters? Lucky are the gals or guys with a roll-top desk: They can slip away knowing that the papers will go undisturbed and unnoticed.

Another good way to use tambours was evolved by architect Thornton Ladd.

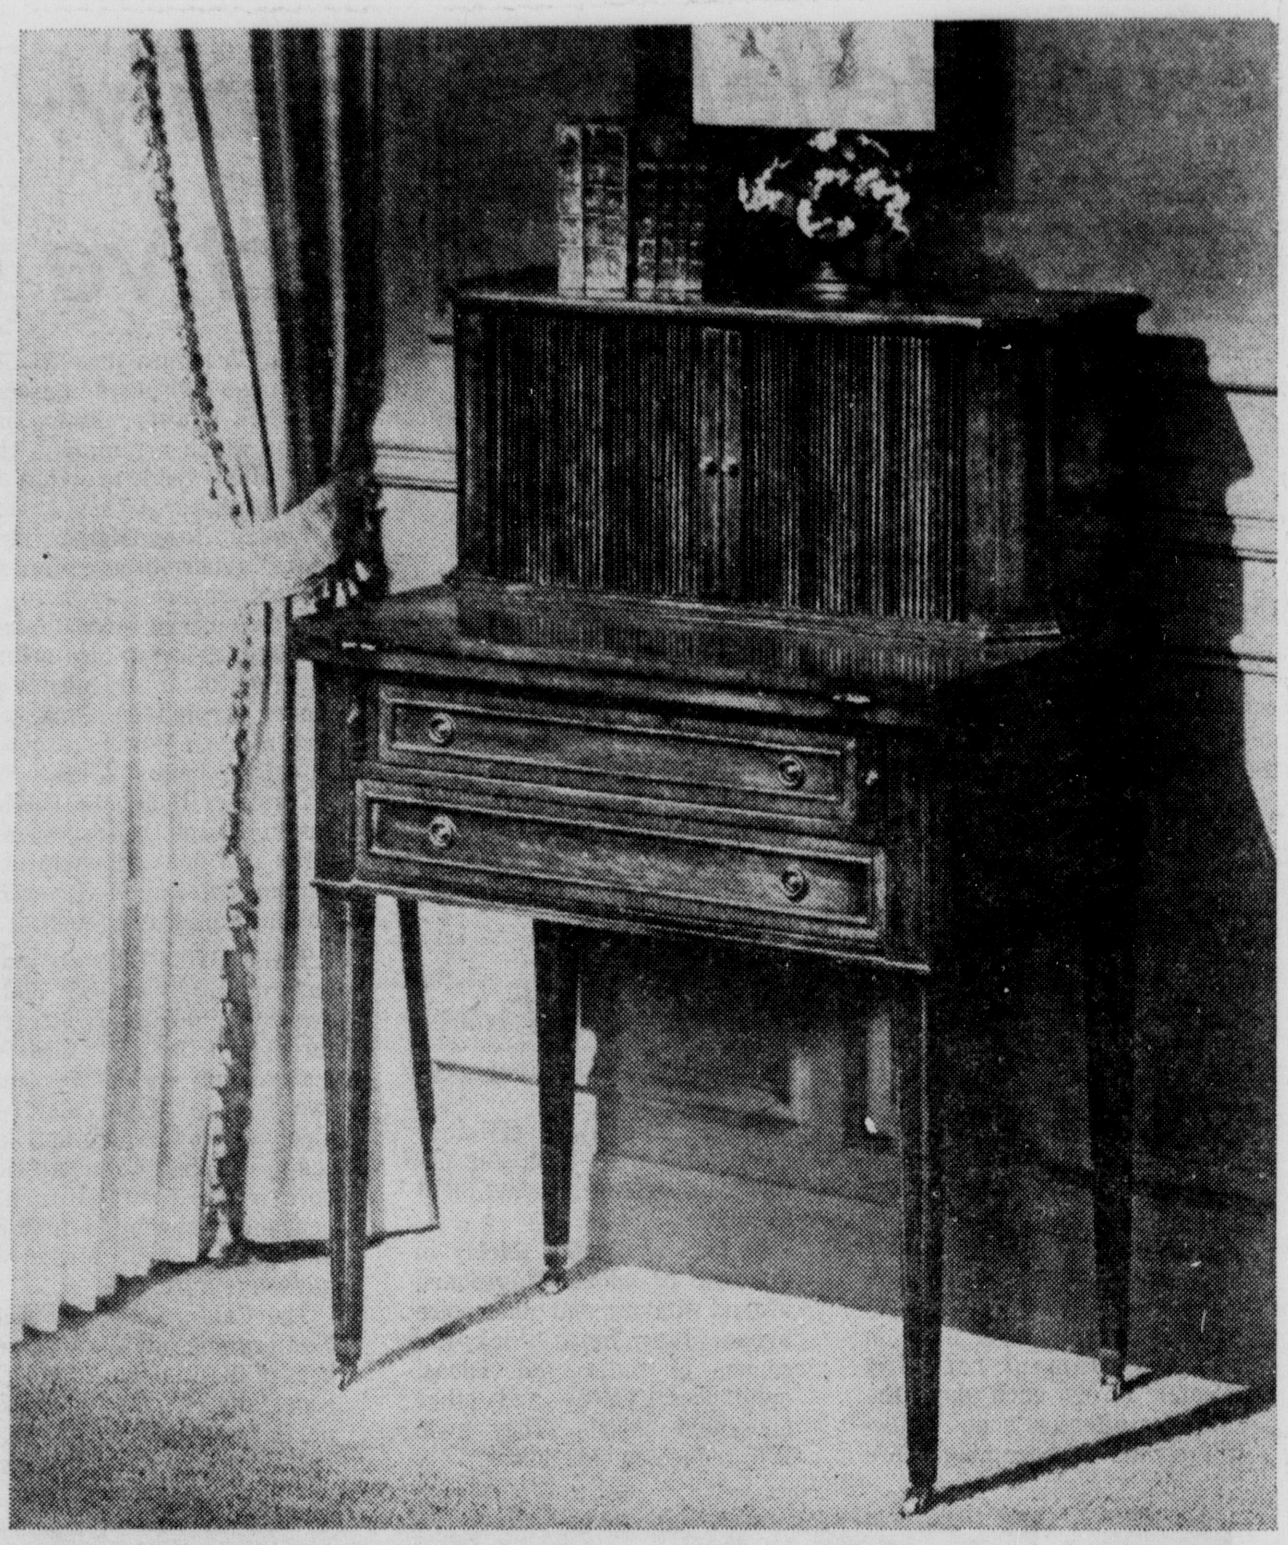
LADD AND HIS partner John Kelsey once designed a kitchen where all needed appliances were filed at counter-height. They devised a series of recessed cupboards in back of the sink counter which they fitted with a strip of plug molding. Each recess was sized to hold a specific cooking tool such as an electric frying pan or a blender. Tambour doors slip out of the way when the owner wants to use the appliance, but when food preparation sessions were finished, the counters were nicely cleared of all the odd-size gadgetry.

The visual assets were obvious, but even better in this design was the saving of energy and time, the appliance provided the busy home owner. No lifting, no scrambling around looking for the extension cords or the plugs. It left a lot more time for creative cooking and food presentation.

I've wondered if the home craftsman could create a tambour.

ON OBSERVATION, they seem to be a series of dowels glued together or adhered to a very thin sheet of wood veneer or tough fabric. That may be oversimplification but with a system of tracks on which the trip of dowels could run, I believe it could work.

The tambour components seem to vary in thickness or diameter. The desk shown today by Brandt Cabinet Works makes use of very tiny tambours, for a refined version of a roll-top desk. The writing surface flips open to double in size, and two drawers offer storage space for the accouterments of letter writing.



A MAHOGANY DESK by Brandt, part of its Society Hill furniture group, provides the perfect hideaway for those private papers. The desk features tambour doors that conceal a pair of small, secret-keeping drawers.

Platform For The Appliance

Platforms of wood are constructed easily for appliances such as freezers or washers and dryers installed in garages.

The platforms will keep appliances off the floor in event of a ruptured water tank or other flooding, and will raise them for convenience of taller persons. Platforms also may be used to keep garbage cans off damp floors.

For lower platforms, runners of two-by-six or two-by-eight-inch Douglas fir or western pine, on edge, can be covered by decking of two-by-fours laid flat. Higher platforms may have legs of four-by-four-inch posts, top frame and cross-braces of two-by-fours, and decking of two-by-four or two-by-six-inch fir or pine.

Use Cozy Corner For Hobby Nook

The corner of a room is all the homemaker needs to create an interesting and functional hobby area.

Such a cozy nook, requiring no more than 50 to 75 square feet, can be used by all members of the family. It will add function to a living or recreation room without seriously subtracting from the overall space.

How to accomplish such an attractive, functional spot?

You just "earmark" the space, suggests Norma Brown, homemaking consultant to Masonite Corp., by adding distinctive walls, installing a desk, hanging a cabinet overhead, and buying a table and chair ensemble.

Because this corner will receive more than ordinary use, it's a good idea to have walls that are both attractive and wear-resistant. Widely used for these reasons, and because they are easily maintained by damp-wiping, are wood-grained or textured hardboard panels.

These prefinished panels may be installed over existing walls or directly to studs in new construction.

The colors and patterns are in good taste anywhere. They make an excellent background for hobby and game activities, Miss Brown declares.

"Making good use of existing space," she suggests, "is the mark of a homemaker's common sense and talents. Converting a plain corner into a cozy nook will give every member of the family a lift."

FOR ONE all-too-brief time of the year, neighborhoods in many cities turn into dazzling fairylands, ablaze with lights and sights. If your block is not one of these fantasy areas, perhaps you can start a trend by erecting your own outdoor Christmas spectacle this yuletide. A good starting point is a Steve Ellingson pattern or patterns. For the three large pictures that make possible the St. Nick Flyer train display shown on the right, send $3 to Steve Ellingson, San Rafael Independent-Journal Pattern Department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409, and ask for No. C-5. Then it is a simple matter of affixing the pictures onto plywood and coloring them by the paint-by-numbers method. It is a holiday setting that is waterproof and will last you for years. But don't delay. Time is growing short if you are to recieve your pictures in time for the 1971 Christmas season.

New Roofing Is Not A Job For The Home Handyman

There are home improvement tasks that the handyman can tackle with confidence and with minimum risk.

But roofing is not one of them.

If the top of your house is in need of attention, go looking for a reliable, experienced professional roofing contractor.

The roof is much too important to the snugness and safety of your home to risk an amateur job. Besides, applying roofing is hazardous work.

ROOFING contractors are properly equipped and their mechanics are specialists in the proper application of quality roofing. And any home, new or old, castle or cottage, deserves quality on top.

Heavyweights are more massive — when applied, they weight 290 pounds or more per 100 square feet of roof area instead of 235 pounds for standard shingles — and are designed to last up to 25 years. Their greater mass gives them deep shadow lines and a rich texture that adds "class" to any house.

CHOOSE YOUR roofer as carefully as you do your roofing material. No matter how you find him — through newspaper advertisements, in the yellow pages, or through a friend or neighbor, make sure he's an established businessman with references you can check.

A booklet with detailed information about quality roofing, including how to choose it and how it should be applied, is available for 25 cents from SR&A, Box 3202, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y., 10017.

Hollywood Divorcee Hope Content With Family, Career

By VERNON SCOTT

Hope Lange, who gave up the ghost in "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir" for a flesh and blood husband in "The New Dick Van Dyke Show," is a divorcee in private life.

Off-screen the well-rounded blonde is less square than the characters she's played in the two series.

Her beaux have included Glenn Ford and Frank Sinatra.

SHE HAS BEEN married twice: to actor Don Murray and to producer-director Alan Pakula.

Hope lives in a two-story, New England-type home in the western suburbs of Los Angeles with her two children by Murray, Christopher, 14, and Patricia, 12. It has been their home for almost seven years.

At the moment the house is being transformed from New England white (that's very white indeed) to barn red (a bright, bright red). There are four bedrooms in the house, a sauna and swimming pool, and separate servants quarters for a housekeeper.

HOPE HAS furnished her home with a conglomeration of antiques and modern things. Posters and old lithographs of women and children can be found throughout the house.

Despite domestic help, Hope does all the family cooking, and with mouth-watering dexterity.

"When I was a child," Hope explains, "my mother ran a

HOPE LANGE
She's not so square

restaurant in New York's Washington Square. She cooked in the little kitchen and I waited table. My sister was the cashier and my brother ran deliveries. The place was called Minette of Washington Square."

IT WAS IN that kitchen Hope learned to cook home-made soups, cheese and egg pie and other delicacies.

There is only one element to mar Hope's domesticity.

"The New Dick Van Dyke Show" is shot entirely in Arizona at a new studio near Phoenix because Van Dyke lives near there.

Hope must spend six months a year in a rented home on the desert.

LAST SPRING Hope left the children in charge of her housekeeper and commuted every weekend to be with her family.

Next season Chris and Patricia will live with her in Arizona and attend school there. Hope looks forward to having a family to return to each night. Her hours on the set are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. — and 10 p.m. on the night the show is taped before a live audience.

Moving her family to Arizona is no small matter. It means the transport of a horse named Missy, Patricia's pet, a toy poodle, Reilly, and Sasha, a German Shepherd.

"I'VE BEEN single for two year now," Hope says. "Both Don Murray and Alan Pakula visit the children regularly."

Hope dates fairly often, going out for dinner and to movies with some of Hollywood's best known stars. Her favorite evening is to entertain four to six people at home for dinner.

Most of Hope's wardrobe is tailored, and some of the clothes she wears are those made specifically for her role in the CBS series.

She wears hot pants during the day but disapproves of them for night wear.

There is every possibility Hope Lange will marry again. But for the time being she is content to raise her family and pursue her career.

On The Stereo Scene

By WILBUR G. LANDREY

Hector Villa — Lobos contributed as much as any composer, perhaps more, to the development of a national classical music in Brazil.

Born in 1887, he taught himself to play the guitar as a boy and joined the wandering street musicians of Rio de Janeiro in defiance of his mother's wishes that he should study medicine. Later he travelled around Brazil, taking his guitar with him, to collect folk melodies.

Still later, he turned his attention to classical music. His debut as a classical composer in Rio in 1915 did not impress the audiences but it did impress Arthur Rubenstein, who happened to hear him there while on a concert tour. At his death in 1959, he enjoyed world renown.

From the early period of playing in the streets, bars and hotels there is the Schottisch-Choro. From his period living in Paris in the late 1920s, there is an etude, and from the period after he returned to Brazil there are five preludes composed in 1939-40. Finally, there is a more elaborate concerto for guitar and orchestra played with the London Symphony orchestra, Andre Previn conducting.

THE COST OF recording classical music in this country is steep, and earlier this year Angel Records announced it would not renew its contract with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. Each musician gets $95 for a three-hour session, which is several times the rates in Europe.

The latest Angel release of a Chicago Symphony record is of the orchestra under the direction of Seiji Ozawa playing Leos Janacek's "Sinfonietta" on one side and Witold Lutoslawski's "Concert for Orchestra" on the other (S-36045). A well-done record.

Other releases: Alexander Kipnis, the Russo-American basso prominent in the first half of this century, singing lieder of Handel, Schubert, Schumann, Brahms and R. Strauss, recorded in the late 1920s (Columbia Masterworks M 30405).

TV NOTES

By JACK GARVER

Look for Helen Hayes on a forthcoming CBS "Here's Lucy" episode. The theater's "first lady" will be seen as a widow who is not only a devotee of spiritualism but also is a suspected swindler.

NBC thinks that a change of title may improve the rating of its Thursday night "Nichols" series. It is now known as "James Garner as Nichols," hopefully banking on its star's reputation earned in past video and movie performances to get the series off the gound.

Sally Field, who was a flying nun in her last television series and the adolescent Gidget before that, has been injected into ABC's "Alias Smith and Jones" skein in the recurring role of Clementine Jones, a character best described as a con woman.

Now it is television for "Anna and the King of Siam." CBS has ordered from 20th Century-Fox a half-hour pilot film designed to lead to a weekly series. Yul Brynner, the original co-star of the notable Rodgers-Hammerstein stage version, "The King and I," again plays the 19th Century Siamese monarch who learns about Western ways from an English governess. Presumably, the video version stems only from the original book and has no truck with the beautiful score of "The King and I." More's the pity.

models for every taste—and every budget!

All chassis tubes are out—replaced by solid state circuitry designed to perform longer with fewer repairs.

Backed for one year by RCA.

We have such confidence in the reliability of XL-100 we're backing each set in writing for a full year, covering both parts and labor. Here are the basic provisions of our XL-100 "Purchaser Satisfaction" warranty ("PS" for short)'

If any thing goes wrong with your new set within a year from the day you buy it, and it's our fault, we'll pay your repair bill - both parts and complete labor.

You can use any service shop in which you have confidence - you don't have to pick from some special authorized list.

If your set is a portable, you take it in for service. For larger sets, your serviceman will come to your home. Just present your warranty Registration card and RCA pays his repair bill.

If your picture tube becomes defective during the first two years we will exchange it for a rebuilt tube. (We pay for installation during the first year - you pay for it in the second year).

In short, the warranty covers every set defect. It doesn't cover installation, foreign use, antenna systems or adjustment of customer controls.

THANKSGIVING

Falling leaves . . .
Little girls' curls
Blowing in the wind . . .
The first Thanksgiving . . .
I remember when
The wagon rolled out,
The horse stood grim —
It was seven miles
To Waterloo —
Fields dotted
With pumpkin gold —
Oh, What a sight!
Pleasants and turkeys
Hung from the rafters . . .
Baskets of nuts and
Jugs of cider . . .
Plum puddings and
Dates from foreign lands . . .
Glass jars filled with
Wintergreen and rock candy.
It seems dim now —
Called out of bed
To peel the apples
And clean the shed,
Where the horses from town
Would be unbridled and fed.
Uncles and aunts —
Cousins, too!
It was a glorious day
For fun and play.
Then all was quiet,
A prayer to day —
God did bless
This Thanksgiving Day.

Senate Halts Tax Bill Move

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Senate rejected proposals today to eliminate or tone down provisions in President Nixon's tax bill which will cut corporate taxes by billions of dollars in years to come.

The action came in a Saturday morning session which followed a 12 hour Friday hassle that ended when the Senate agreed to vote Monday on a plan to finance presidential election campaigns through tax dollars.

Defeated this morning after less than two hours of debate were proposals to:

—Kill a provision permitting firms to defer tax payments on half their profits resulting from exporting if the profits are reinvested in export-generating activities. Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., said most of the tax saving of $100 million a year or more would go to about 100 firms.

—Water down a provision allowing firms to depreciate their assets for tax purposes in 20 per cent less time than now required —creating a $1 billion a year tax saving.

On Nov. 12, a proposal to trim back the new depreciation rules was defeated by only two votes. Another vote a few days later preserved that section by only a one-vote margin.

But today, the Senate turned back Nelson's challenge to the rules by a 55-25 vote.

Then, it voted 65-22 against his attempt to kill the exportinducement idea.

The proposals are contained in Nixon's tax bill which was altered in more than a week of Senate debate —would cut individual and business taxes by more than $27 billion over the next three years.

Many Democrats joined in rejecting Nelson's proposals.

The Democratic strategy appeared to be to give Nixon all he sought in business tax relief in hopes he would not veto the bill if the Democrats succeed Monday in attaching a provision to finance presidential election campaigns through tax funds volunteered by taxpayers.

Sen. Wallace F. Bennett of Utah, the Republican floor leader for the tax bill, told reporters he did not know if President Nixon cut short his Florida weekend in order to try to pick up Democratic votes against the campaign financing plan.

"If by returning he can help give us another soldier or two, that's fine. That's what we need."

The outnumbered Republicans agreed late Friday to let it come to a vote on Monday but only after extracting a condition that consideration be given to a proposal by Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., that taxpayers be able to designate which party would receive the funds.

"You can sell it to the indians —but you can't sell it to Pastore!" shouted fiery Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., when they first offered the deal at the end of a long day's wrangling.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., bolted from his seat, ran to Pastore and in an animated conversation convinced him to take the Republican offer.

Throughout the day, the Republicans had stalled a vote by forcing votes on amendment

Orr Blasted In Testimony

Sergeant Claims A Leadership Crisis

By LARRY MOWELL

A veteran Fairfax policeman testified yesterday and today of a leadership and morale crisis on the force while James R. Orr was chief.

Sgt. Paul E. Simpson, on the force since 1963, today told a hearing into Orr's dismissal: "I have to, in all honesty, say the morale has been lacking in the department in the last few years."

The officer, taking the witness stand for the second day, blamed departmental problems on poor administration by the chief.

The testimony, before the city board of review, followed introduction yesterday of a letter written by another officer which pointed to leadership difficulties on the force. Although authored by Sgt. Andy Grimes, who has yet to testify, the letter was read during Grime's first day on the witness stand.

The board, hearing Orr's appeal, sits as judge and jury, having final say over whether the dismissal by city officials was justified.

Orr, chief for nine years, was fired Sept. 30 by City Administrator Robert E. Crowe — an action ratified four days later by a 3-to-2 vote of the city council.

Grime's letter, remarking on departmental conditions in May 1969, was read into the record by City Atty. Wallace S. Myers.

It said, "It is my personal opinion that we, administrators, are directly responsible for the inertia and loss of esprit de corps that has gradually appalled our organization like a cancerous growth.

"While I do not believe we necessarily created this situation intentionally, we have done so through the creation of one gigantic leadership circle, giving the implied consent to disregard what few policies and procedures that existed and presently exist. This leadership circle has been promoted through our lack and ineffectiveness in planning, organizing, directing, staffing and coordinating among other causes."

Simpson said that while Grimes wrote the letter alone, "this is the effect of complaints by the men that were given to him."

Struck Catholic Teachers Await Move By Mediator

Efforts to settle the six-day-old strike of lay teachers at Marin Catholic and six other Bay Area Catholic high schools marked time today while teachers awaited official moves from a federal mediator.

Meanwhile, student body officers of six of the schools involved formally called for the schools to remain open.

The Archidiocese of San Francisco requested mediation yesterday at a meeting of the principals involved.

Rev. Francis A. Lacey, principal of Marin Catholic in Kentfield, said the U.S. Mediation and Conciliation Service promptly agreed to appoint a mediator. He said any future meetings between the archdiocese and the teachers must be called by the mediator.

Jack Breen, a director of the striking Secondary Teachers Association, said today the teachers would not comment on the mediation development because they have received no official word either from the federal office or from the archdiocese.

Breen said the association, now affiliated with the American Federation of Teachers, had received official strike sanction from San Francisco labor officials.

Student body officers of six of the seven schools — including Paul Matthew of Marin Catholic — met yesterday in Kentfield to draw up a position paper.

The students stressed that "we are taking no sides," but called for the schools to remain open and for prompt settlement of the dispute.

"It is out chief concern to maintain the Catholic secondary educational process... which can only be accomplished by keeping our schools open," the students wrote.

"We feel that meaningful negotiations by both sides should have been made before school started," the youths declared.

The students criticized both the teachers and the archdiocese as "selfish in their methods of negotiation" and said students, parents and the public should have been more fully informed about the dispute.

"It is also our belief that there should be no reprisals"

San Rafael Bridge Fares Cut: There's More Traffic

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — The state Toll Bridge Authority yesterday cut passenger vehicle tolls on the San Rafael-Richmond Bridge and approved a toll-free, priority lane plan for car pool commuters on the San Francisco-Oakland span.

The San Rafael-Richmond toll, now 65 cents, will drop to 50 cents each way for passenger vehicles, effective Jan. 1. Toll for passenger cars pulling trailers also will drop by 15 cents.

Monthly commute books will cost the same — $6.

E. R. Foley, chief engineer for the Toll Bridge Authority, said the fare cuts would be offset by increased traffic, which has risen 9 per cent in the past three months and is 8 per cent higher than a year ago.

The toll reduction was the second in a year, the one-way fare dropping from 75 cents in 1970.

The San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge toll-free plan will apply to westbound cars containing three or more passengers between 6 a.m. and 9 a.m. weekdays, also beginning Jan. 1. The authority will use its computers to help East Bay residents form car pools to qualify for the experiment.

Both Gov. Ronald Reagan and James A. Moe, state director of public works, hailed the car pool experiment as a way to speed commuting to San Francisco, reduce traffic volume on the bridge and help combat smog.

(Dale W. Luehring, Golden Gate Bridge District general manager, said he was pleased both with the Bay span car pool experiment and with the reduced San Rafael-Richmond tolls.

(He said the reduced toll on the San Rafael span would lighten traffic somewhat on the Golden Gate Bridge.

(As to the free car pool idea for the Golden Gate Bridge, Luehring said, "I hope we'll be looking at the same idea shortly. It has a lot of merit. Of the 17,000 commute vehicles crossing the Golden Gate Bridge in the morning, only 340 cars carry four or more passengers and 750 to 800 have three or more."

(Luehring said one of the main obstacles to the toll-free car pool plan is the gate span's shortage of lanes at the toll plaza. "The Bay Bridge has surplus lanes," he noted.)

Teen Voters Just Like Parents

Marin County voters in the 18-to-21 age bracket turned out in exactly the same ratio as their elders for the Nov. 2 election, County Elections Officer Peter C. Meyer reported yesterday.

About 2,600 young voters were registered to cast ballots for the first time. Meyer reported that "49 per cent — exactly the same as the countywide total turnout" of the under-21 voters went to the polls.

Not even the novelty of being able to vote for the first time made the young citizens much different from their elders, Meyer said. "We're all the same kind of animals," he said.

Paul M. Cohen, Tamalpais High School student and chairman of the Marin County Youth Commission, said the under-21 turnout was not a disappointment. He believed there was a lack of major issues or contests in the election, and that "we didn't really expect any better."

"We hope by June we'll have more interest" and more registrations among the approximately 8,000 youths of voter age in Marin, he added.

Only two under-21 candidates were on the ballot Nov. 2 — Joseph J. Franaszek Jr. and Christian G. Fritz, both 18.

Amchitka Test Caused Slides

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The underground weapons test of Alaska's Amchitka Island affected bird and marine life as expected, but there were surprising cliff and turf slides, according to an Atomic Energy Commission report.

The AEC report Friday said in general the effects of the blast on wildlife was expected. Dead creatures counted include 18 sea otters, four seals, 16 birds and hundreds of fresh and salt water fish.

But the AEC noted that the shock of the explosion produced larger cliff and turf slides than expected along a two-mile stretch of Amchitka's coast on the Bering Sea.

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

The Golden Gate Bridge District's local Marin bus service may cost the county up to $725,000 a year, or almost six times the original estimate.

The district's general manager, Dale W. Luehring, reporting new cost estimates to a committee of bridge directors, hastened to add his "more realistic" estimate that the county's annual cost will be about $450,000.

Directors nevertheless were taken aback. Marin County Supervisor Michael Wornum, sitting as chairman of the joint transportation and finance-auditing committee, said he was "slightly shocked."

Fellow supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. said that "somewhere along the line the cost escalation has to stop."

Luehring explained that "frightfully high inflation" and more service than planned caused the projected sharp escalation in cost. He stressed that the actual cost will not be known until after the local service, to start Dec. 13, has been running for several months.

Service will be provided each half hour, weekdays only.

Under the cost-sharing formula adopted last year by the district and county, the number of total passengers carried on the bridge district's total system, including commuters, will be divided into the number carried on the local service in Marin. The ratio then will be multiplied by the deficit to produce the county's share.

District and county officials attempted last month to work out a simpler formula, but were stymied by new legislation freezing the old formula into state law.

The role of inflation, especially in drivers' wages, was evident in the updated estimate for the annual deficit for the system of 154 buses. Previously figured at $1,052,000, it now stands at $3,022,257.

Also sharply up was anticipated patronage on the local system in Marin, with 1,262,000 passengers expected in the first full fiscal year of operation. The original estimate had been 675,000.

The original estimates for cost and patronage were made by the Marin County Transit District in its "optimum bus plan," upon which the bridge district system will be based.

New estimates by the district staff for costs just from Dec. 13 through next June for the local service were $581,967 with depreciation and $480,799 without depreciation. The committee compromised in a unanimous recommendation to the full board that Marin pay one-third of the depreciation, or about $33,500, if these figures hold up.

The compromise would be conditioned on the bridge district getting an offsetting federal grant covering two-thirds of the capital cost of the new system, or a grant of some $6.1 million.

The new costs apparently will use all county transit district finances by 1974, Arrigoni noted, but he added that enough money still will be available under a new state law extending the sales tax to gasoline. Marin and its cities will get about $1.5 million a year for

India Is Blamed

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Communist China has blamed interference by India in the affairs of Pakistan for causing an estimated 9.7 million East Pakistani refugees to flee to India.

Although he did not mention India by name, Chinese representative Fu Hoa, in his first speech in the U.N. General Assembly Social, Humanitarian and Cultural Committee, accused India of ignoring Pakistan's "repeated" proposals to relax tensions in the area.

The flight of East Pakistani refugees to India, now estimated by India to number 9.7 million, was "due to a certain country's interference in Pakistan's internal affairs," the Chinese diplomat said in a speech lasting less than three minutes.

Fu strongly reiterated China's pro-Pakistan position. Both China and the United States have supplied arms to Pakistan.

Rockefeller 'Slain'

PORT MORESBY, New Guinea (UPI) — Michael Rockefeller, son of New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, was killed and eaten by cannibals in New Guinea in 1961 in revenge for the killing of three tribal chiefs by a Dutch patrol, a magazine said today.

The magazine, "Focus", published today, said Rockefeller, 23, was reported by officials to have died trying to swim ashore from a broken-down motor-canoe in November of 1961.

The official report lied, the magazine said.

"He got ashore with a tribal chief's fishing spear embedded just below his left collarbone. The cannibals took him up one of the minor tributaries of the Eilanden River, killed him with an axe, and ate him," the magazine said.

Focus said its source for the story came from a missionary who claims to have worked for several years in the area piecing together the facts. The missionary withheld use of his name because he feared repercussions from the Dutch, or the powerful Rockefeller family, the magazine said.

Top Indian Post

RENO (UPI) — Lee Cook, an Indian activist who resigned from the Bureau of Indian Affairs in protest of its policies, has been elected president of the nation's largest and oldest Indian organization.

Cook, 32, a Red Lake Chippewa from Minneapolis, won a landslide victory Friday over five other candidates at the 28th annual convention of the National Congress of American Indians.

The new president said he will "have a lot to say" as head of the group.

Cook was deputy director of economic development in the BIA for about a year until he quit earlier this year "in good conscience and in the interest of my own self-respect."

Reptile Endangered

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (UPI) — The last breeding pond of the long-toed Salamander that lives only in Santa Cruz County is in danger of becoming a trailer court.

Stephen Matthews of the Santa Cruz County Youth Commission said Friday his group would go before the Santa Cruz board of supervisors Nov. 30 to protest destruction of the pond.

"If the pond is destroyed," he said, "this will wipe out the reptile."

The Santa Cruz long-toed salamander, called Ambystoma Macrodactyum Croceum, was declared unique in 1954 by biologists James B. Anderson and R.W. Russell who said it was a relic of the Ice Age.

Matthews said the tiny creature, about five inches long, used to have another breeding pond but that was destroyed by a freeway.

Belfast Dragnet

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — The British Army sealed off a Roman Catholic monastery in the snowy Northern Ireland countryside for the second day today looking for escaped prisoners and illegal weapons.

About 200 troops and 50 policemen moved into the grounds of Our Lady of Bethlehem Abbey, 35 miles northwest of Belfast, before dawn Friday. They carried out a day long search of the Cistercian monastery and its 200 acres dotted with farmhouses and sheds.

The search began hours after police held two of the monastery's 45 monks, the Rev. Thomas O'Neill, 45, and brother Patrick Skeehan, 43, on charges of assisting two prisoners who escaped Tuesday from Belfast's Crumlin Road Prison.

Charges Dropped

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — Charges have been dropped in the first prosecution under Michigan's new Halloween trick or treat child safety law.

Raymond J. Kowalewski, 39, an unemployed father of four children, had been accused of placing a razor blade in an apple. The charges were dismissed in district court Friday after Kent County sheriff's officers said the results of a lie detector test administered Thursday indicated he was innocent.

Opposition Dissolved

BANGKOK (UPI) — Thailand's revolutionary party which came to power in a bloodless coup, dissolved all opposition political parties today and banned the establishment of any new ones.

The party, which took over Wednesday, also approved a 29,000 million baht ($1.45 billion) budget for 1972, based on one drafted by the old government, and met to work out mechanics for replacing Thailand's limited democracy.

The Revolutionary Party abrogated the constitution, dissolved the cabinet and Parliament and imposed martial law throughout Thailand.

NICE HORSEY

Despite the cold and blustery winds sweeping the streets of Detroit yesterday, 24-year-old Geraldine Burke couldn't resist the temptation to pause and pet the large hourse sculpture. The horse is made from old car bumpers, and is "hitched up" to a lamppost outside a downtown art gallery. (UPI Telephoto)

Murderer Testifies At Santa Rosa

SANTA ROSA (UPI)—A convicted murderer from Massachusetts testified Friday that the Justice Department interfered with evidence in the trial of Joseph B. Baron, 39, charged with killing an unemployed construction worker.

William Geraway, 36, serving a life sentence at the Walpole, Mass., State Prison, told the Sonoma County Superior Court jury, "Both the FBI and Justice Department are not beyond reproach and they frame people."

Baron was accused of shooting Clay Wilson, 26, and burying his body near a Glen Ellen creek on July 5, 1970. Authorities said the killing ended an argument over $250,000 in stolen securities.

Geraway said he was at Walpole with Baron from late July 1970 to September 1970. He said they had adjoining cells and talked together "from 10 to 15 hours a day."

The convict said Baron told him he "planned the murder, set it up, shot him (Wilson) three times in the head and then buried him."

Geraway said he had documents for the Sonoma County district attorney and he gave them to Massachusetts State Police Capt. William Bergin. He said Bergin gave them to Edward F. Harrington of the Justice Department.

Harrington, a member of the department's task force against organized crime, handed the documents over to Baron's attorney, Geraway said.

Butz 'A Threat To Environment'

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Earl L. Butz' nomination as Agriculture Secretary has matured into a major issue, with Republican governors supporting President Nixon's choice and one GOP senator reporting that some Democrats openly against Butz are for him in secret.

As hearings recessed Friday until Monday, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., disclosed a speech made by Butz in which the Purdue University dean criticized the food stamp program and Nixon's welfare reform proposal. The speech was made in Minneapolis April 26 before the National Agriculture Advertising and Marketing Association.

In releasing excerpts from the speech, Proxmire said Butz "could be a far more serious threat to the environment than the family farm." The senator cited the Minneapolis speech in which Butz also defended the use of chemicals and antibiotics in farming.

At French Lick, Ind., the Republican Governors Conference adopted a resolution backing Butz and attacking "partisan political harassment of a presidential selection."

Govs. Ronald Reagan of California and Nelson Rockefeller of New York initiated the resolution, which struck hard at "potential presidential candidates" critical of Butz.

And Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., said some Democrats secretly want Butz to be confirmed to make him a scapegoat in the 1972 campaign.

Mars Is Shaping Up— As An Egg

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)— Mars, still a dust bin but much more egg-shaped than scientists ever realized, showed scant more of its desert landscape Friday night as Mariner 9 swept the planet on its 12th orbit.

"We're getting more dark spots on our computer-enhanced photos," said a spokesman at the Jet Propulsion Labratory," but it's nothing to get excited about."

Still, the extended carpet of dust over the planet—obscuring television pictures—seemed to be abating, according to the experts.

There is definitely water or water vapor on Mars' southern pole, concluded the panel at a JPL news conference Friday.

The experts also found that Mars' reddish deserts "bulge" at the equator so that the planet has an elliptical shape and rotates on three axis. But, like the Earth, Mars' polar caps are squashed.

Nobel Holder Says Black IQ Inferior

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Dr. William Shockley, a Nobel Prize winning physicist, feels there is great reluctance in the scientific community to study his theories that intelligence varies according to race and that heredity, rather than the environment, is the prime factor in IQ.

The Stanford University professor told a group of engineers Friday that the National Academy of Science, which has several times refused his request to study hereditary and racial factors in intelligence, had a "moral obligation" to investigate his theories in order to devise sound social policies.

The National Academy last month tabled a resolution proposed by Shockley that it examine one of his papers for accuracy and methodology.

Shockley repeated his contention that studies show that each 1 per cent of Caucasian ancestry in low IQ Negro populations raised the average IQ by one point and that intelligence varies "more than twice as much" from genetic differences as from environmental ones.

'Secret Meeting' Plea Is Repeated

The Marin County Human Rights Commission again has called for investigation of alleged secret meetings by the county's housing authority and the redevelopment agency.

Executive director Gerald J. Hood of the human rights department said the commission "expressed dissatisfaction" with a recently completed investigation of the agencies by the district attorney's office.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas said last week that his office's probe showed "no intent" by the housing authority board to violate the Ralph M. Brown Act during an unannounced meeting in August.

Hood said the commission was dissatisfied because the district attorney's investigation concerned only one meeting, held Aug. 7 in Corte Madera.

He said he was directed by the commission Thursday to request again that the district attorney and county grand jury look into charges of secret meetings.

The Marin County Human Rights Commission Also:

LEGAL AID — Unanimously supported a resolution calling for county support to the Legal Aid Society of Marin, operating at a deficit.

RESIDENCY — Heard a report that the department will insist action be taken by the San Rafael City Council to remove the city's illegal two-year residency requirement for county public housing programs.

WORKSHOP — Set Dec. 14 at 9 a.m. for a workshop session with the county board of supervisors to discuss commission goals.

SPACE — Heard a report that the department's request for additional working space had been rejected by county officials. The department currently has a staff of 10 working in a small conference room in the administration building.

MEETING — Set its next meeting for Dec. 9 at 8 p.m. in the planning commission's chambers at the Civic Center.

Angela 'Badgered By Illness'

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)--The personal physician of Angela Davis says her health has deteriorated while in jail and she had been "badgered by frequent viral infections."

Dr. Tolbert J. Small said yesterday Miss Davis has been suffering from "chronic chest pains" aggravated by smoking four packs of cigarettes a day.

Miss Davis, 27, was held in Marin County jail after being accused of supplying the guns for the 1970 courthouse shootout which left four persons, including a judge, dead.

"I am concerned with the punitive environment effect on Miss Davis's health," said Small. He said she had lost 20 pounds since being jailed in November, 1970, and that the jail had inadequate medical facilities.

The general practitioner said that during the past 30 days a fungus infection "spread to every part of Miss Davis' body — her legs, back, arms, chest and scalp." But he said the infection "responded quite quickly to antifungus medicines."

Lone Bandit Robs An Oakland Bank

Magee Is Visited By A Physician

A physician visited Ruchell Magee at San Quentin Prison yesterday to treat "serious physical injuries" allegedly suffered by Magee last Sunday. The nature of the injuries was not disclosed.

At the request of one of Magee's advisory counsels, Robert D. Carrow of Novato, Judge Richard E. Arnason yesterday granted permission for Dr. Michael Jacobs of Redwood City to treat Magee, a codefendant in the Aug. 7, 1970, Civic Center shoot-out.

An affidavit by attorney David A. Applen, Carrow's associate, said in part: "I am informed and believe that serious physical injuries were inflicted upon said Ruchell Magee on or about Nov. 14, 1971 . . ." Applen declined to elaborate to reporters.

Joseph O'Brien, information officer at the prison, said yesterday, "I have no information that there is anything wrong with Magee or that anything unusual happened to him." He said he did not talk to the doctor who attended Magee and has no information on what the doctor found.

transit under the new law, and this presumably will be available for the local bus service.

Under the contract between the county and bridge district, the county's property taxes can be tapped to pay for costs of the local service. The contract, however, also allows for cancellation of the service if no longer wanted by the county.

Arrigoni assured the committee that Marin was "not treading on thin ice" in its ability to finance the local service.

The joint committee's recommendation that Marin pay only one-third of the depreciation costs will go before the full board at 10 a.m. Tuesday in toll plaza offices. The Tuesday meeting will be instead of the regular session next Friday.

Also referred to the Tuesday meeting of the finance-auditing committee at 9:30 a.m. was the possibility of eliminating the discount on bridge commute books after the commuter bus system starts in January.

The Golden Gate Bridge District's joint transportation and finance-auditing committee also:

TIBURON — Deferred action on a request from the City of Tiburon that the district's Sausalito ferry call midday at Tiburon to replace service dropped by Harbor Carriers during winter. The city should appeal first to Harbor Carriers, the committee said. Wornum added that "our problem is we have one ferry and we're trying to run a system."

FREE TICKETS — Recommended that two free tickets good for either the district's bus or ferry systems be given out with each bridge commuter ticket book.

Reagan And Rocky — Old Foes — Unite

FRENCH LICK, Ind. (UPI)— Nelson A. Rockefeller and Ronald Reagan, two powerful governors who were pitted against each other at the 1968 Republican National Convention, have closed ranks behind President Nixon in an elaborate display of unity.

Reagan and Rockefeller drafted the concluding resolution at the Republican governor's conference that blasted Democrats in Congress for "reactionary, stubborn refusal" to pass Nixon's program to share federal revenues with the states.

They co-authored a second resolution commending Nixon's "effective moves to end the war and win a lasting peace," pledging their "full efforts to the re-election of President Nixon in 1972."

The two governors—Reagan, of California, and Rockefeller, of New York, put their heads together to win conference adoption of a resolution demanding that senate Democrats "stop playing partisan, obstructionist politics" and confirm Earl L. Butz as Secretary of Agriculture.

The governors elected William G. Milliken of Michigan, a curly-haired moderate who has publicly taken issue with the party in past years, as their chairman for the critical election year.

Finch In Rio

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)— U.S. presidential adviser Robert Finch has arrived in Rio de Janeiro following a two-day visit to the interior capital of Brasilia that included a 50-minute talk with President Emilio Garrastazu Medici.

STRIKE

against anyone connected with the strike, the students declared. Gerald Killian, president of the striking association, charged yesterday there had been reprisals against student sympathizers at Marin Catholic and other schools. The claims were denied by Father Lacey.

Breen reported today the dispute centers on annual raises for the next three years, differential between veteran teachers and new faculty members, and rules for substitute teachers.

He charged that the archdiocese proposed in 1967 to tie lay teachers' pay scales, on a three-year basis, to a figure 95 per cent of the pay in the highest-paying 10 public school districts in the four West Bay counties.

The Catholic teachers' pay never caught up to the 95-per cent figure, Breen charged. He said the teachers asked in January for a three-year package with raises of 17, 5 and 5 per cent, which had been modified since to calling for a two-year pact with 6 per cent raises each year.

Breen claimed the archdiocese's latest offer provided no raises this year, and raises of from 4 per cent to 6 per cent the following two years. The teacher union members received 6 per cent raises in 1969 and 3 per cent last year, he said.

Rev. Bernard Cummins, superintendent of the archdiocese schools, said the offered raises for 1972-73 and 1973-74 ranged from 8 to 10 per cent.

Pickets at Marin Catholic said yesterday that some delivery truck drivers were beginning to honor the picket lines. An Independent-Journal reporter observed a truck for an armored car service pause outside the building, while a school secretary carried packages through the pickets to the truck.

U.S. Jets Swoop Down On Convoy

SAIGON (UPI) — American jet warplanes and helicopter gunships swooped down and battered a North Vietnamese convoy of antiaircraft guns and trucks moving in daylight nine miles below the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) separating North and South Vietnam, the U.S. Command said Saturday.

The attack was disclosed as the U.S. Command began pulling out troops of the 101st Airborne Division, the American unit closest to the DMZ. North Vietnamese troops have been showing increasing audacity near the DMZ since U.S. troops began leaving the buffer zone area last summer.

In Cambodia government troops Saturday reoccupied with "almost no resistance" the rail town of Tuol Leap 12 miles from Phnom Penh. The town had been the center of Communist resistance in 10 days of fighting with Communist forces outside the Cambodian capital.

U.S. Command spokesmen said an Army observation helicopter scouting the jungles and hills below the DMZ Friday morning spotted the convoy of three Communist trucks and three 37mm guns, the largest antiaircraft pieces spotted in the region, two miles east of Laos.

In the air attack that followed, the three artillery guns and two of the trucks were destroyed, the command said. No U.S. casualties were reported.

In Cambodia, Lt. Col. Am Rong told newsmen that government troops in the Phnom Penh area outnumber Communist soldiers 8,000 to 3,000. "I don't think it is possible for the enemy to attack Phnom Penh," he said.

Lt. Col. Lon Non, younger brother of Cambodian prime minister Lon Nol, said that it appeared the North Vietnamese had abandoned the beleaguered town of Tuol Leap "but were still in the area."

Lon Non said his troops had lost 40 killed and 109 wounded in the twg days of fighting it took to reach the town, but when they arrived Saturday, they found it abandoned.

"We have spent the day taking out our dead," Lon Non said. "The town is destroyed. But you have to expect that. You have to destroy sometimes—it is unavoidable."

The high command said action throughout Cambodia Saturday had been light. But heavy bombing raids were flown in the Tuol Leap area and directly across the Mekong River from Phnom Penh.

In the capital itself, one Buddhist monk was killed and another wounded early Saturday when a plastic charge exploded.

Pay Panel's Wage Ruling Defended

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Pay Board Chairman Judge George H. Boldt defended Saturday the panel's decision to curb the number of workers who could collect retroactively wages and other benefits lost during the 90-day wage-price freeze.

Boldt told the joint economic committee of congress, the five public members of the Pay Board did not feel the contract settlement approved for the coal industry would set a pattern for decisions on future contracts.

Committee Chairman Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., told Boldt he viewed the coal settlement as averaging about 16 per cent an hour increase in the first year, adding it would have a "profound inflationary effect" on the economy.

By contrast, Proxmire said honoring retroactive contract provisions would amount to a one time payment of between $1. billion to $1.5 billion.

Boldt replied this would be unfair to persons who are not covered by contracts and who suffered during the freeze.

"In my judgement, it would be inequitable, and unfair as a matter of principle ... to allow a limited number of people to recover in full when millions of people will not recover anything."

Proxmire said the board's decision on the coal industry contract "must appear to Americans to be very soft.

"How in the world can we have a stabilization program if the Pay Board in its very first decision goes three times over its guidelines?"

Boldt replied he abstained from the vote but he agreed with the board's four other public members that the settlement was excessive. The five business and five labor representatives voted for approval.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce branded the contract "obviously inflationary" the agreement affecting 80,000 soft coal miners. The board decided it was "not unreasonably inconsistent" with antiinflation guidelines and labor leaders hailed the decision.

"The Pay Board's approval of the soft coal agreement puts the future of the antiinflation program in serious doubt," said Arch N. Booth, the business organization's executive vice president. "The increase in pay and benefits is substantially in excess of any acceptable guideline and obviously inflationary."

Booth accused unions of using "arrogant threats of coercion" to get their way.

"... It is difficult to conceive how the vast majority of the American people can be expected to show the restraint necessary to make the antiinflation program work," Booth said.

and a list of 12 suggested improvements Simpson gave to Grimes. He said situations in 1969 were remote.

Simpson said meetings were held on updating procedures and firming up the chain of command, but nothing was done.

Under cross-examination by Shaw, Simpson said that despite the lack of written rules, he believed every officer on the 10-man force is competent in the use of police equipment.

Moreover, he admitted telling friends he believed the Fairfax force is the best in Marin. And although Simpson testified that rules and procedures in effect when he joined the force in 1963 have not been updated, he said under Shaw's questioning that he had become competent without such rules through on-the-job training and police academy courses.

Among 26 charges against Orr are incompetency and inefficiency for allegedly failing to establish proper administration and security of the office.

Under cross-examination, Simpson said Orr posted memoranda, published other directives and held occasional departmental meetings.

Simpson said that keys used by police were kept in an unlocked cabinet inside a rear door usually left unlocked under Orr, but acknowledged that some security shortcomings were due to a money shortage.

The sergeant also supported testimony by the city's first witness, former cadet Douglas Miller, that Orr pointed a gun at Miller without provocation last year, and that he saw Marsha Kittleman, a department clerk, doing outside work during office hours and that he sometimes saw the chief's car outside her home when the two were off-duty.

Asked about Orr's conduct during the gun incident, Simpson said, "It was belligerent. Why I don't know. He was in a state of semi-intoxication. It was a very frightening incident."

Under cross-examination, he said that Mrs. Kittelman was an undercover narcotics agent who sometimes met after hours with Orr and other agents to plan drug busts.

Orr is charged with improper conduct with Mrs. Kittelman and with showing favoritism to her.

Other charges against Orr include drunkenness on duty, threatening officers, and becoming so drunk on two social occasions that he had to be restrained.

The fourth session of the board of review is set for Nov. 29 at 7:30 p.m. in the Women's Club.

Two Road Sections Will Be Resurfaced

Sections of two Marin highways will be resurfaced, the California Highway Commission has announced.

Shoreline Highway both 7.5 miles south and 2.2 miles north of Point Reyes Station will be resurfaced at a cost of $127,000. Route 37, between 2.5 miles east of Highway 101 and 0.7 miles south of the Petaluma River Bridge, also will be resurfaced, at a cost of $31,000.

after amendment to the Pastore plan. All but one were defeated.

Democratic presidential hopefuls quit the campaign trail to be here to block the Republican amendments.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, who earlier in the day had announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination, scrubbed long-laid plans to fly to Florida, which has a primary he feels he must do well in to stay in the race.

At issue in Monday's vote is a plan to provide $20.4 million to each major party for the presidential campaign, if the candidate agrees to accept no private campaign contributions.

Novato Tennis Court Hopes Are Voiced

San Francisco contractor Attilio Quartaroli, who plans a $3 million private tennis development near Novato, said yesterday he eventually hopes to provide public courts.

Speaking before a group of businessmen and civic officials at the Holiday Inn in San Rafael, Quartaroli contemplated making 12 courts available to the public on a fee basis.

The public courts could come in "phase two," after he completed a planned development including 27 tennis courts, a 5,000-seat stadium accommodating major tournaments, swimming pool and clubhouse on 33 acres southeast of Olive Avenue and Deer Island Road.

When his audience showed interest in having public courts, Quartaroli said he couldn't finance that job until he reached a full private club membership of 1,000.

Charter memberships in the club, named Olive Ridge Tennis Club, are $1,000, he said.

Novato City Councilman David Price Jones said it appeared that the proposed tennis complex would be "a real asset."

Development would be on 13 acres, leaving ample area for parking during major tournaments, Quartaroli said. As for traffic, about 200 cars would use the area during an average weekday and about 300 — possibly 500 — on weekends, he said.

Architect Joseph F. Angello, who designed the layout, said there would be enough parking for 2,000 cars during tournaments. He explained the major development would be on the front 13 acres, leaving 20 acres open for possible later development of public courts.

Quartaroli said it is possible that the 5,000-seat stadium could be available for community events, and the 25-meter pool open for swimming meets.

If the project is approved, Quartaroli plans to start work next spring and have the development completed by next fall. Since the area will be served by the Novato Sanitary District, it probably will be annexed to the City of Novato.

The first hurdle will be to gain approval from the Marin County Planning Commission for commercial recreation zoning on Dec. 8.

U.S., Russia Will Meet On Space

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—U.S. and Soviet experts will meet in Moscow Nov. 29 to Dec. 7 to work on a system that would enable Russian and American capsules to rendezvous and transfer crews in space.

U.S. and Soviet space vehicles now use different systems for rendezvous and docking. The experts are working on a compatible system which would make it possible for spacemen to conduct joint missions and to rescue castaways in space.

Dr. Robert R. Gilruth, director of the Manned Spacecraft center, will head the 19-man U.S. delegation at the conference with a Soviet Academy of Science group headed by Boris N. Petrov.

The two groups met June 21-25 at the space center to begin work on compatible systems for rendezvous and docking, radio and optical reference, communications, life support and transfer of crews from one space capsule to another.

"Progress is expected also on the definition of a possible joint flight mission which might test a compatible docking system," a space center spokesman said.

Senate Acts On Muir Woods

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — The Senate approved yesterday omnibus park acquisition legislation that would add nearly 50 acres to Muir Woods National Monument, heading off a proposed commercial development.

The measure was passed on a voice vote without dissent and now goes to the House.

It proposes expansion of the 502-acre monument by 49.7 acres at a cost of $1.1 million, and would enable the National Park Service to move the facility's parking lot and concessions outside of the redwoods, and to provide picnicking facilities.

The expansion is planned at the monument's southeastern corner, now privately owned and planned for a commercial project.

The acquisition originally was proposed under legislation by Reps. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, and Don H. Clausen, R-First District, but that measure was incorporated into the omnibus package this week.

The omnibus measure also calls for boundary revisions or increased spending for land acquisition involving 18 other projects in the national parks system.

Schools To Act On Controversy

The Mill Valley School District board will take action Monday on complaints, concerns and criticisms voiced at three special meetings called to discuss innovation and education in the district.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. at Edna Maguire School.

Charges were made at the three meetings — at which the board listened but took no action — that innovative programs were failing to provide proper instruction in basic academic skills.

The board also will consider a policy that it grant one-half year sabbatical leaves this year and another that it allow teachers to accumulate a 50-day illness leave reserve.

Olema Man Jailed In San Anselmo

San Anselmo police yesterday arrested Linn T. Millburn, 24, of Olema, on a warrant charging a Selective Service violation. Officers apprehended the youth on a city street.

While booking him, police said, Millburn was found to have what is believed to be marijuana and hashish in his possession. He was booked into Marin County Jail on the federal warrant, suspicion of possession of the drugs and on $680 worth of traffic warrants. No bail was set.

Marin City Man Draws Sentence

Frederick Washington, 25, of Marin City, must serve a year in Marin County Jail and remain on supervised probation for three years for committing felony battery against sheriff's deputies last July 23.

Superior Court Judge Thomas F. Keating sentenced Washington Thursday. The defendant got credit for 38 days he already has spent in jail, and is eligible for the work furlough program, which allows inmates to work during the day and serve time at night and weekends.

Washington, arrested after a fracas in Marin City on July 23, was convicted by a jury last month of one felony battery and three misdemeanor charges.

Innocent Plea To Forgery Charge

George D. Beauchamp, 27, no known address, has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to a forgery charge.

A preliminary hearing has been set for Nov. 30.

Beauchamp was arrested Nov. 17 in Reno on a San Rafael arrest warrant. San Rafael police said he forged a $300 check at the Bank of Amrica in San Rafael in October.

Two Convicts Will Enter Stabbing Plea

Earl Billy Gibson and Lawrence Justice — two San Quentin convicts who allegedly fatally stabbed a correctional officer guarding a wounded inmate they are said to have assaulted earlier — will enter pleas Wednesday in Marin Superior Court.

The pair has been indicted by the Marin County Grand Jury in the knifing death of guard Leo Gaston Davis, 38, and in the earlier assault of Herman Earl Johnson, 28, the wounded inmate.

Davis was guarding Johnson in the prison hospital July 21 when the fatal knifing occurred. Two days earlier, Johnson was knifed in the prison exercise yard, apparently in retaliation for testifying in the trial of seven Soledad Prison inmates accused of killing a guard at the facility a year earlier.

Gibson, 28, is serving a life term for first degree burglary in 1965 in Los Angeles County. If convicted, he would face an automatic death sentence because he is a life termer.

Justice, also 28, is serving an indeterminate term for two felony assaults and grand theft in Los Angeles County in 1968.

Two Injured In Petaluma Crash

A two-car accident in Petaluma early today slightly injured two persons, police reported.

Officers said the collision on Lakeville Highway just north of the Highway 101 overpass occurred at 4:53 a.m. when an auto driven by Victor Colli, 24, of Santa Rosa, crossed the center line and struck the side of a car driven by Garrett Batula, 21, of Fairfield. Batula's car rolled over at least once, but he was uninjured, police said.

Colli and a passenger in his car, Bill Asbra, 18, of Santa Rosa, were treated at Hillcrest Community Hospital for cuts and bruises.

She Wanted To Look Like Beauty

By EUNICE FARMER

Each year, I repeat this column for those of you who missed it the previous year.

One of our readers decided she wanted to look like the beautiful women pictured in magazines while she was at home. In other words, instead of jeans and a shirt, she wanted a great looking at-home costume.

She wrote that she suddenly developed an intense dislike to the way the media shows women in glamorous hostess skirts while relaxing at home. The first night she put hers on for dinner, her children wanted to know what time she and daddy were going out. When she told them she was spending the evening at home, their eyes almost bugged out. Somehow, they couldn't believe she was looking pretty just for them.

The rewards were more than expected. She was suddenly the queen and was treated with new dignity by her children and her husband.

There's a message here. We all tend to think of beautiful clothes in relation to some special occasion or a special invitation, and usually just make do with anything when we are staying at home. Why not buy some exciting fabric and make an elegant at-home skirt.

The fabrics from which to choose are limitless, and these skirts are perfect for all, even the little girls. You can use quilted cottons, satins or velvets, and wool is beautiful, especially in the new tartans, plaids or tweeds. Try using wool challis, silks or velvets for your long skirts. There are also the fabrics that are easy to take care of including printed polyester satins and knits with lurex threads woven in.

Please try making a long skirt for at-home wear and watch for the compliments. Drop me a note to let me know how it worked with your family. Every day can be a special occasion.

My daughter just made a long skirt for her 82-year-old great-aunt. We can't wait to see her face light up on Christmas morning when she finds this under the tree.

MRS. JOHN J. Keegan, Waterbury, Conn., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her sewing suggestion:

"To remove the old bugaboo of bra straps showing beneath sun dresses or evening dresses, replace bra straps with the same material of the dress. Straps of the identical material aren't as unsightly should they happen to peek out occasionally. If need be, they can be replaced easily after summer has faded away."

DEAR EUNICE,

I wish to use a water repellent cotton for a ski-jacket. However, it must be warmer than cotton but not much heavier. What would you suggest for an interlining? MRS. P.E.

DEAR MRS. P.E.,

I love the non-woven polyester fleece as a backing for any sports jacket when you want warmth without extra weight. It is also marvelous as a backing for any kind of quilting. You will notice that most ski-jackets are quilted. Since you already have your fabric, you could back it with the fleece and actually quilt it yourself.

Most fabric shops will have a pre-quilted water repellent fabric available for outerwear. This could save you many hours of time so check into it.

I remember when I wanted to quilt fabric years ago, it was necessary to buy a huge bundle of fluffy filling that was formerly only used for quilts. Today, the fleece interlining is available by the yard in your fabric shops.

DEAR EUNICE,

I made several satin blouses this fall because I have seen many of them in the better clothing departments, but I am very distressed about the way they keep sliding and pulling out from my skirts. I love a nice trim look, but my blouses always look bunchy at the waist. Is there any I can prevent this? MRS. D.A.

DEAR MRS. D.A.,

Yes, there is a simple way to avoid this. Change your blouse to a pant-blouse. This requires making a finished band of fabcic about four inches wide and long enough to fit through the crotch area from front to back of your blouse. Stitch this strip of fabric to the hem of the back of the blouse at the very center. Finish the other end of the strip with snaps that will be snapped to the lower edge of the front of the blouse at the exact center.

This works on the same principle as any stretch pantshirt and can be done with any type of blouse. It will make you so much more comfortable and will certainly improve the overall appearance of your garment.

CARL WOLZ presides over a class at a workshop sponsored by the Hawaii State Dance Council —an organization funded by state and national funds and dedicated to "creating an atmosphere for statewide participation in dancing." A MOVEMENT IS UNDER WAY

Keeping The Family On Its Toes

By RUTH YOUNGBLOOD

HONOLULU (UPI)—A veteran dancer would lcke to see more families up on their toes, learning to dance and bridging the generation gap at the same time.

Carl Wolz, an associate professor of drama at the University of Hawaii, is spearheading a movement "to bring dancing back to the people." He is president of the Hawaii State Dance Council, an organization funded by state and national funds and dedicated to "creating an atmosphere for statewide participation in dancing."

"INTEREST in dancing has declined over the centuries with increasing technology and subsequent distractions," Wolz said. "But it seems to me that the more people dance, the fewer personal problems they have in their lives. Many Americans have lost the ability to express themselves through movement." The Dance Council is reawakening interest in all forms of dancing through workshops in ethnic dances of Pacific and Asian countries, European folk dances, ballet and modern dancing. These workshops are held several times a month and attract a cross-section of the community, proving that dancing is fun, even for the inexperienced.

A NATIVE of St. Louis, Mo., Wolz came to Hawaii after years of professional dancing in New York City. He started the Dance Council five years ago, but it only recently received a state charter.

"The workshops are open to anyone. We get mothers, fathers, their sons and daughters, students and professional dancers," Wolz said. "It's something the whole family can do together and enjoy, as well as learn about their own bodies and the dances of different peoples."

Although the workshops are conducted by highly skilled teachers, Wolz said, "there's no grading, no tests, no pass or fail, and if nothing else, the participants have a good time."

ETHNIC DANCES are particularly popular. Hawaiian, Filipino, Chinese, Japanese, Korean, Okinawan and Samoan dances tend to generate the most interest in the islands because the state has such racial diversity. But Wolz said "other states could have similar programs, emphasizing the dances which represent the ancestries of their inhabitants." And he plans to expand the program in Hawaii to include dances of Africa, Israel, Macedonia and Scotland.

The dance council also coordinates festivals that bring professional dancers to the community, and hopes to introduce a regular dancing program in the public school system.

"It's the process that's important, not the product," Wolz said. "Dancing makes the child aware of his body and his movements. We spend 12 years teaching English, but nonverbal communication is practically ignored."

WOLZ SUGGESTED that a child start out with creative dancing in the elementary school curriculum and more complicated dancing in junior high and high school. "There's no wrong or right way to dance creatively," Wolz said. "The child learns about his body without fear of failure or frustration."

MARIN APPEARANCE

Partice Munsel A Fine Entertainer

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Former Metropolitian Opera soprano Patrice Munsel proved a great entertainer and sparkling personality at yesterday morning's second program in the Family Service Agency-sponsored A.M. series at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building.

In a sleeveless black jumpsuit and looking surprisingly youthful for a mother of four children ranging in age from 12 to 18, she thoroughly captivated an audience of several hundred women.

In her program titled, "From Grand Opera to Baroque Rock," Miss Munsel sang, frequently as medleys, a large selection of numbers from the many kinds of musical presentations in which she has starred.

Her forte now seems to be musical theater and popular songs, such as those from the nostalgic 1930s and 40s through various contemporary styles from the Beatles to "Hair."

Less effective were her operatic arias, particularly her opening number, Musetta's Waltz song from Puccini's "La Boheme," for her voice was breathy and had considerable vibrato and a throaty quality in the lower register. These characteristics may be useful in musical comedy and in various kinds of contemporary singing, but they are not pleasing in most operas.

However, her other operatic selections were better. These were "O Mio Babbina Caro" from Puccini's "Gianni Schicchi," an aria from Menotti's "The Telephone" and one of Philine's arias from "Mignon," the singer's first role with the metropolitan opera.

Among highlights of her program were many selections from musicals, such as "Mame," "My Fair Lady," and "Sound of Music," and the contemporary songs like Bobby Russell's hilarious "Saturday Morning Confusion."

Throughout the program, Miss Munsel's racy anecdotes and comments on the music, delivered with dramatic flair, added greatly to the audience's enjoyment.

Two unusual features required the assistance of her piano accompanist, Lynn Crigler, who occasionally played too loud. One was his performance of the Back French Suite as illustration of the Baroque sound heard in Baroque rock, followed by Miss Munsel's singing of the Beatles' famed song "Yesterday," over Baroque rock background.

The other was the musical monologue she sang on what things were like in the 1930s and 40s, followed by some of the songs from those periods.

Stories from her life as a teen-ager whose greatest ambition was to be an "artistic whistler" — with that talent briefly illustrated — and her first singing lessons in New York were the spice of the program.

The 'Can't Keep' Secret Myth Hit

The notion that women can't keep secrets and that men can is a myth, says Dr. Joyce Brothers, psychologist writing in Harper's Bazaar.

The ability to keep a secret depends on birth order and has nothing to do with gender, says Dr. Brothers.

Only children and first-born children are the most reliable confidants, she says. Later born children never lose the habit of telling important news to older siblings, the psychologist reports.

Studies show that people who reveal secrets about themselves are usually better liked than reticent persons, she said. Men develop fewer close friendships than women because they are taught as youths that to display feeling is a female trait, Dr. Brothers said. Some researchers believe that the male's limited circle of intimate friends contributes to the sharp rise in suicide rates among older men, she said. The moral is that silence may be golden, but it's also dangerous, the psychologist stated.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

They're Taking Away Church Bells, And She's Very Angry

DEAR HELEN:

I'm so mad I could scream.

Last night I read they're going to prevent churches from ringing bells in our area because of "noise pollution."

They allow motorcycles, riveting machines, planes, trains, sirens, etc. Church bells are soothing. These other noises insult your eardrums.

Just because a few people get irritated about being awakened on Sunday morning, our lovely bells and carillons may be silenced. If I knew who were the complainers, I'd go run my power lawn mower right under their windows — at 7 a.m. — FIGHTING MAD

DEAR MAD:

Now is that the Christian spirit?

I love the sound of church bells, too, and have wondered why, in recent years, we hear them so little. Instead of fighting back with your power mower, why not initiate a petition to the powers that be—at City Hall? — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I'm not lovelorn—I'm shopworn.

I just returned from another grocery "special" hunt—without half of the specials. The reason? "We just sold out," clerks told me. Or else the specials are so well hidden that the only place you can find them is in the newspaper ad. Or else "prime, full cut round steak" at 89 cents per pound is about one-fourth bone and fat — no bargain, but it lured me to the store.

Isn't there something we can do about "leader" items that either aren't there or are "misleaders"? — SHOPPING MAD

DEAR SHOPPING MAD:

The Federal Trade Commission has ruled in shoppers' favor. A law adopted last July states that food stores offering grocery "specials" must make them readily available at the stated price or lower—and so-called "rain checks" are not the answer, for this lures the customer back to the store the second time.

If your market is quite regularly "out" of specials (and offers no substitute of comparable quality and price) you should contact the F.T.C. in Washington, D.C. or the district attorney in your county. — H.

P.S. The F.T.C. has also ruled that stores cannot limit the quantity of special items sold to a customer, except via special coupons.

DEAR HELEN:

Am I too possessive, or should a wife allow her husband to buy Playboy and take business associates to topless bars? I haven't any reason to mistrust him, but why isn't a perfectly good wife enough? If he's looking, isn't he yearning? — HURT

DEAR HURT:

... Not necessarily. Don't you enjoy flowers at the park without wanting to steal a bouquet? Leave your husband his scenery — so long as he's only a spectator "sport." — H.

DEAR MRS. B.:

I'm shocked at your statement, aimed at the two who wanted to marry outside of their religion. You said, "For me, which route you take to the Great Hereafter isn't nearly as important as how you navigate the Here and Now." Don't you know you can't enter the Kingdom of Heaven unless you are a born-again Christian? So how could you imply that you accept those "foreign" or non-Christian beliefs? — B.A.

DEAR B.:

Sorry. I think an honest, kind, right-doing person earns his passport to whatever good "eternities" the Great Hereafter holds, no matter what his specific religion or faith. Would a just God discriminate? — H.

Marin NOW Has New President

Barbara J. Hosmer of Greenbrae is newly elected president of the Marin County Chapter of National Organization for Women.

A member since the chapter's inception two years ago, she has served as recording secretary and a member of the committee on employment and job discrimination.

Purpose of the organization, according to the new president, is to bring women into full equality in the U.S. in equal partnership with men.

Marin Chapter of NOW sponsors monthly discussions on women's and men's liberation and equality, and it has a speakers' bureau. Plans are to continue campaigns against discrimination against women in areas of employment, education and law; to urge establishment of child care centers in Marin; urge women to become active in government and politics; and to educate men and women toward equality in all phases of society.

By continuing to watchdog hiring and promotion practices with regard to discrimination on the basis of sex and urging women to upgrade their skills and education, NOW members are working toward a goal of having women develop their full potential.

Men and women interested in NOW goals may join. A political workshop is planned on Nov. 28 at the home of Arthur and Barbara Padilla in Novato, and former national NOW president Aileen Hernandez will be a guest at the chapter meeting Jan. 19 at Redwood High School.

A native of San Francisco, Barbara was graduated from San Rafael High School and the University of California. She holds a master's degree in journalism from Columbia University and is women's editor of the Independent-Journal. The new president has lived in Marin for 17 years. ISRAEL AND Greece were the two nations visited by Lt. Col. (ret.) and Mrs. Leslie B. Rosenberg, who have returned to their Novato home following a two month's vacation.

In Israel the Rosenbergs visited the major universities with a staff-conducted tour of the archeology department of Hebrew Union College in Jerusalem. Rabbi S. Gitin, dean of men, presented the Rosenbergs with two pottery pieces from the King Solomon era.

They visited Gaza and Sinai, West Bank and the Golan Heights where the three major battles of the 1967 "War of Six Days" was fought. This was the Rosenbergs' first trip to Israel and they planned it in celebration of their 25th wedding anniversary this year.

Solids Too Soon For Babies May Bring Lifelong Problem

Starting a baby too soon on solid foods may head him toward a lifetime weight problem, according to a report from a Washington State Heart Association-sponsored research team that compared a group of overweight teenagers with those of normal weight.

Mothers of the obese adolescents said they had introduced solid foods at age six weeks to two months, while their normal-weight counterparts received no solids until the third or fourth month, reports the Marin County Heart Association.

Dr. S. L. Hammar and his research associates at the University of Washington's adolescent clinic pointed out that the production of fat cells occurs more rapidly in early life and that chronically obese adults have a greater number as well as larger-sized fat cells than persons of normal weight. This suggests that curtailing excessive weight gain during infancy and early childhood might help to prevent later problems, he said.

Commenting on the report, Dr. Hammar said, "It raises some questions about our present infant feeding practices." He noted a tendency among mothers to be competitive in advancing their babies by introducing new foods sooner than their neighbors. This sort of race is particularly common in housing projects where mothers meet frequently to compare notes, he said.

CALORIE COUNTER

If you are a calorie counter, remember that the calorie value of imitation ice cream is higher than that of regular ice cream because of the increased fat content required in the standards set for imitation ice cream, say nutrition consultants for Dairy Council of California.

Among the teen-agers studied, only 20 per cent of those with weight problems said they regularly ate three meals a day, while 70 per cent of the non-obese group did follow a meal schedule. The overall caloric intake was almost the same for both groups, but physical activity was markedly reduced among the obese.

More than two-thirds of the overweight children had obese parents, many of whom reported having used foods, particularly sweets, as a reward in discipline. These same parents regarded obesity as a protection against boy-girl problems during adolescence and were content that their youngsters did not date.

DANCE REVIEW

Ballet Excellence Shown In E. Bay

By MARIE RAMEAU

The Bay Area experienced a new level of excellence Thursday evening in the first of six performances by the Ballet of the 20th Century at the University of California's Zellerbach Auditorium in Berkeley.

The excellence consisted more of substantial and serious fare than of technique, for although the 58 dancers are accomplished technicians, a certain brittleness undercut their strong attack.

Brilliant exceptions were Carmen Roche in "Choreographic Offering," and statuesque Suzanne Farrell, former principal of the New York City Ballet. The latter's Balanchine bearing and long, clean cut lines imported an element of grandeur. Yet this company does not focus exclusively on "stars" — a forte rather than a weakness.

Still, the impact of the evening was in Paolo Bortoluzzi's performance as the Bird in "L'Oiseau de feu" ("The Firebird"). One rarely encounters such intensity and identity with the essence of a role. There it was — an ecstatic quality which, by virtue of his mastery of this magical power, draws and holds an audience. This peculiar magnetism is the property of very few, and Bortoluzzi brought down the house.

This season's all-Bejart repertoire is one of the troupe's finest assets, and these international artists surmount the most forbidding musical obstacles. This is largely to the credit of founder-director Maurice Bejart, whose thing is dance as communication — not the introspective stuff that frustrates more than it fulfills, but a sublimated and profoundly metaphysical exploration of the human scenario, which leaves one not only emotionally, but intellectually and aesthetically, satisfied.

Unlike many choreographers, Bejart does not strive for effects as an end. Rather, they evolve naturally and logically out of his central theme, as in his "Firebird."

"Le Sacre du printemps" ("The Rite of Spring") is staged by Bejart as a primordial, erotic hymn to life, death and humanity, seen through the eternally regenerative force of spring. Despite the score's baffling complexity, Bejart produced a work of explosive simplicity, a tribute to the composer's genius, the choreographer's skill, and to the vast potential in contemporary dance.

The Ballet of the 20th Century continues through tomorrow, offering also "Les Fleurs de mal," "Bhakti" and "Symphonie pour un homme seul."

$20,000 Pay Hike For Meany

MIAMI (UPI)—The AFL-CIO convention, in a direct challenge to President Nixon's pay board and its 5.5 per cent annual wage increase guidelines, has approved a 28.5 per cent $20,000 annual salary increase for President George Meany.

Without discussion and without dissent, the nearly 1,000 delegates to the convention approved a constitutional amendment Friday increasing the salary of the federation's president from $70,000 to $90,000, and boosting the pay of secretary-treasurer Land Kirkland from $45,000 to $60,000.

"We didn't even consider the pay board guidelines," said communications workers President Joseph Bierne, head of the constitutional amendment committee that proposed the salary increase—the first for the two top officers since 1965.

So, if you need cash for Christmas — or for any reason — the best way to borrow is through Union Home Loans — where the only red tape will be around the gifts you buy.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Alpha, Beta Cells Have Opposite Actions On Blood Sugar Level

Two pairs of cells — alpha and beta — found in the pancreas have diametrically opposed actions. Beta cells manufacture insulin that lowers the blood sugar; alpha cells produce an essential hormone, glucagon, that elevates the level. Researchers have concentrated on insulin for years, but glucagon is now getting their attention.

In the normal individual, there is a balance between insulin and glucagon. These hormones control the movement of glucose (a sugar) and certain fats and proteins into and out of cells throughout the body in accordance with energy needs.

WHEN FOOD is plentiful, there is increased secretion of insulin, to promote glucose storage and lower the blood sugar level. In starvation, the opposite occurs. Glucagon converts foods into glucose and releases it into the bloodstream to raise the sugar level. The activity takes place in the liver where glucose is stored.

Shortly after a person eats a normal meal, the blood sugar rises due to glucagon. But he hormone also stimulates insulin to bring down the level to normal. The diabetic has an insulin deficit and, as a result, his blood sugar level remains elevated for hours after eating. The excess is eliminated via the urine.

THERE ARE new theories that diabetes results from too little glucagon, not too little insulin. There is not enough of the hormone to stimulate the secretion of insulin when the blood sugar rises. In contrast, there also is evidence that in diabetes there are unusually high levels of glucagon that keep the blood sugar level high. If this is true, diabetes is a bihormonal disease — too little insulin and too much glucagon. By administering a glucagon suppressant, we might be able to lower the dosage of insulin needed by the diabetic.

Glucagon has an unusually wide range of action. It can be used in the treatment of hypoglycemia, a condition in which the blood sugar level goes too low. It is also a heart tonic and will be tried in the treatment of heart failure and cardiac arrhythmias.

SORE LIPS

K. C. writes: Can anything be done to relieve soreness of the corners of the mouth?

REPLY

Yes. There are several causes of irritation or inflammation of the lip angles, varying from contact with lipstick, dentifrice, the sun or to a vitamin B complex deficiency. Malocclusion or poorly fitted dentures may be responsible. Occasionally, a fungal or bacterial infection moves in. Appropriate treatments are available. For example, antibiotic ointments are useful when infection exits.

MONUMENTAL TASK

Mrs. F. L. writes: I'm 5 feet tall and weigh 230 pounds. Is there any chance of going back to the weight I used to be 37 years ago — 115 pounds?

REPLY

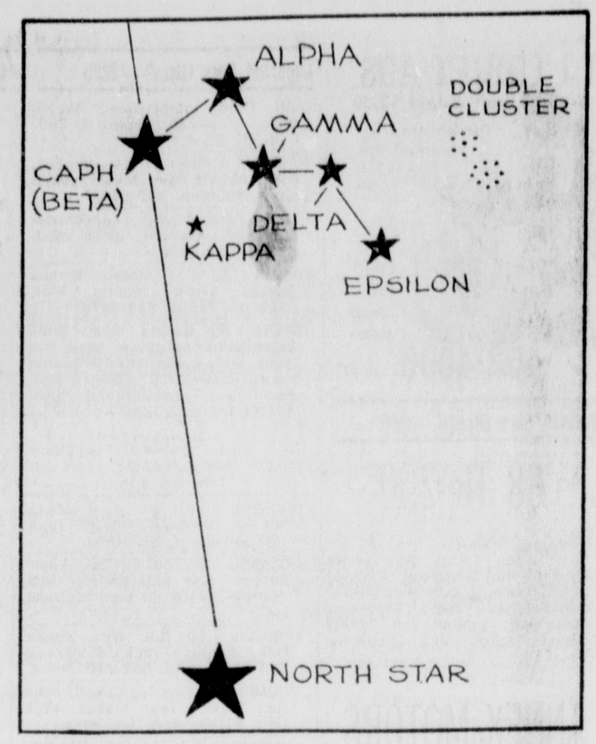
I doubt it; but if it can be done at all, it will require strict adherence to a diet. Success, however, is unlikely as few prople return to the slim figure of their youth.

TEMPORARY OR PERMANENT

P. J. writes: If an allergy is not treated, will it last throughout life?

REPLY

Not necessarily. Hypersensitivity to a specific irritant may last a short time and never recur; or it may be a lifelong affair. The physical and emotional health at the time plays a role.



STARS ABOVE

By SHERMAN WALKER

Cassiopeia, also called the queen and known by other names such as the chair and the rail fence, is another circumpolar figure that circles endlessly around the north celestial pole and never sets for middle U.S. latitude viewers.

It is an attractive grouping although it certainly looks much like a queen. It is most believable as a chair facing away from the pole, but in the older star maps this figure is always shown facing the pole.

Cassiopeia is the wife of Cepheus (the king) and the mother of Andromeda. She figures prominently in the story of the rescue of Andromeda which after millions of reruns is still as thrilling as ever.

To locate Cassiopeia, face northward at 9 p.m. and look at the regio of the sky that is between the North Star and the overhead point.

Casiopeia is roughtly but not exactly on the opposite side of the pole from the Big Dipper.

In November 1572, a new star suddenly blazed into prominence in Cassiopeia. It became so bright it could be seen in daylight. Tycho Brahe was the leading astronomer of this time, and he gave lots of study to this new star. It is still known as Tycho's star.

Such a star is called a nova from the Latin word meaning new. It is not really new. It was there all the time but for some reason began this flareup. They are sometimes called exploding stars.

Special Prayer Offered For Thanksgiving Season

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer

A prayer for this season:

That time is here again, O Lord.

The season we call "Thanksgiving."

By Act of Congress and solemn proclamation of the President, we Americans are supposed to join together Thursday in thanking You for the blessings You have bestowed upon us as a nation.

Actually, Lord, as You well know, most of us will put the holiday to more "practical" uses, such as starting a four-day weekend trip, or raking leaves, or watching a football game, or having the family in for a big turkey dinner.

We feel a little constrained about this business of being publicly thankful for what we have together as Americans.

Some of us —the younger ones especially —are not so sure what we've got is worth bragging about —or being thankful for.

Many more of us simply take it all for granted.

A few of us are embarrassed by the riches of a nation which, having 6 per cent of the world's people, annually gobbles up nearly 50 per cent of its goods. We wonder whether we should thank You for this largesse —or fall to our knees in repentance for failing to be more generous in sharing our wealth with hunger-bloated babies in Calcutta refugee camps and African children whose bodies are tortured by bilharzia.

Of course, Lord, there also are among us people who think we deserve to be richer and better-fed and better-housed than anyone else. We got here by hard work and good old American ingenuity, they say, so let's live it up and enjoy it, and don't kid ourselves about giving God any credit for it.

And that suggests something that a majority of us might agree that we can and should be thankful for on this coming day of national Thanksgiving.

We thank You, Gracious Father, for Your infinite patience with us.

We thank You for not having —yet —administered the kind of come-uppance to us which You were always doling out to the people of ancient Israel who dared to call themselves God's People, just as we, with perhaps greater temerity, like to refer to America as "a nation under God."

Give us grace, Merciful Lord, to apply honestly to our own nation and our own time the words of warning You spoke to the people of Israel 2,500 years ago through the prophet Jeremiah:

"I brought you into a plentiful land to enjoy its fruits and its good things.

"But when you came in you defiled my land and made my heritage an abomination ...

"This people has a stubborn and rebellious heart; they have turned aside and gone away ...

"They have become great and rich,

"They have grown fat and sleek.

"They know no bounds in deeds of wickedness;

"They judge not with justice the cause of the fatherless and they do not defend the rights of the needy.

"Shall I not punish them for these things? says the Lord,

"And shall I not avenge myself on a nation such as this?"

Not the most cheerful thought to ponder next Thursday between your turkey dinner and the football game. But it just might be terribly relevant.

CHURCH PAPERS, MAGAZINES

Postal Service Will Deal A Blow

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Senior Editor

The U. S. Postal Service is about to deliver a crippling blow to church magazines and newspapers.

These publications, which play an important role in adult religiousation, already are having a tough time financially. Now the Postal Service is preparing to impose a 146 per cent increase in second class mail rates, one of their principal items of cost.

It is doubtful whether postal officials —or President Nixon or anyone in Congress —really wants to put out of business scores of journals which have proved a highly effective medium of religious communication.

After all, the founding fathers set up a postal service —and provided a special low-cost category of mail for newspapers and magazines —precisely because they thought it in the national interest to encourage this method of disseminating ideas and information.

Yet the second class mail rate increases are still scheduled to begin to take effect Jan. 1., and as matters now stand will triple the mailing costs of magazines and newspapers by 1976.

These increases will be a severe blow not only to religious publications, but also to many fine secular magazines that have made great contributions to public enlightenment in America.

Many of these publications —religious and secular —are particularly vulnerable to postal rate increases because they rely almost entirely on mail subscriptions for circulation and have little sale on newsstands.

The recent demise of Look and the previous deaths of the Saturday Evening Post and Colliers showed that even mass-appeal magazines are caught in a deadly squeeze between rising costs and competition from television for national advertising dollars. Some publishers argue that use of broadcast channels constitutes a national subsidy of broadcasting, comparable in a way to the subsidy which the government up till now has provided the print media through low second-class mail rates.

Be that as it may, there is no argument over the fact that many fine religious publications —including The Christian Herald, The Christian Century, Christianity Today, AMERICA, Commonweal, The Episcopalian, Presbyterian Life and Together —are keeping their heads above water at present only by dint of desperate struggles, hard-won denominational subsidies, gifts from private individuals who appreciate their importance in the task of overcoming the religious illiteracy which abounds in this purported "Nation under God."

They find it particularly galling to face a 146 per cent hike in their mail rates when the postal service has seen fit to increase by only 25 per cent the third class mail rates paid by purveyors of direct mail advertising and pornography.

British Lutherans View Entry Into The Market

THIDDINGWORTH, England (LWF) — Britain's entry into the Common Market could stir churches out of their lethargy and into closer cooperation with continental Christian bodies, it was suggested here at the 13rd annual conference of the Lutheran Council of Great Britain.

Attitudes of the churches to British participation in the European Economic Community (EEC) was the main subject of the conference. It was introduced by Kenneth Johnstone, chairman of the Department of International Affairs of the British Council of Churches.

Christian concerns, the speaker said, should be related primarily not to political or economic questions but the matters of conscience which arise out of governmental policies. In this connection he pointed to the concern for peace, the need for stewardship of European resources, and relations with countries of Africa, Asia, and Latin America.

Citing divided public opinion over entry into the EEC, Mr. Johnstone called attention to questions raised by critics, mainly involving "third world" relations, relations with Eastern Europe and a disintegration of the relationship with Commonwealth countries.

Responding to Johnstone's address, O. M. von der Gablentz of the German Embassy in London emphasized the necessity of the EEC for maintaining a balance between economic growth and the need for the human quality of life.

The German representative maintained that an expanded EEC would not harm relations with Eastern Europe but would help maintain the balance of power and encourage further economic and technological growth.

Three main concerns as to the role of the church in an expanded EEC emerged from conference discussion groups: a ministry to migrant workers, emphasis on personal ministry in maintaining a serving church and effort to prevent the church from becoming only another welfare organization.

Is Your Church in Need of Reformation?
Test it with these five theses:
T F The Bible is without error in everything it says.
T F God declared mankind not guilty because of Christ.
T F Jesus Christ is true God and true man.
T F Faith in Christ alone without works saves.
T F Religious fellowship requires full agreement in doctrine.
According to the Word of God, these statements are true. See John 10:35, Romans 5:18, Colossians 2:9, Ephesians 2:8, and Romans 16:17.
If any of the teachings of the Bible are not accepted as God's truth in your church and your protests prove useless, He advises you to find a church which holds Him and His Word pre-eminent.
We have such a church and invite you to share its blessings. Sunday service at present is at 7:30 p.m.

'I've Earned Freedom,' Says Nubin

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —An Oakland ironworker, who had been ordered back to prison because of a technicality, was a "partially" free man today but said he was "angry as hell."

Frank Nubin, 46, was placed on parole for 10 months yesterday after being released unconditionally 22 months ago from San Quentin Prison.

"I've earned my freedom," he said bitterly. "I don't want any more parole.

"What do they want from me? They want my life. Sure I'm angry. I'm angry as hell," Nubin said.

"This is a slow death to me and my family."

Since Nubin's release, he has remarried and lives with his wife and two children. He earns $11 an hour as an ironworker.

"I rehabilitated myself," he said in a statement, "I was determined to succeed. They have no rehabilitation program for an inmate."

Henry Kerr, chairman of the California Adult Authority, announced that Nubin was placed on parole because he had showed "improvement" since he was released nearly two years ago.

Kerr denied that publicity about the case had affected the authority's decision.

Nubin's attorney, Salle Soladay of San Rafael, said he could be returned now to prison without a court trial if the authority determines he has violated parole provisions.

One of them stipulates that he not consume any alcoholic beverages.

Nubin has been in and out of prison since he was 18 because of two convictions—one for robbery and grand theft and one for assaulting his girlfriend with a deadly weapon —and parole violation.

He was last returned to prison in 1969 by the authority for violating parole by drinking and assaulting his wife—charges which were dismissed by a court.

After he served 14 months, he asked the authority on what date it had acted. Their return letter erroneously stated Jan. 31. The authority actually acted on Jan. 3, only hours before its jurisdiction over Nubin expired.

Using the letter, Mrs. Soladay secured Nubin's release through court action.

When the state discovered its error, it went to an appeals court which ordered Nubin's return to custody.

During a special meeting held by the authority, the panel gave Nubin two choices—either accept the conditions of the parole or go back to prison.

Nubin, a member of Alcoholics Anonymous, was reluctant to accept parole but was persuaded by his wife.

Mrs. Soladay said the authority's decision was an example of "stupidity—of what's wrong with the parole system."

She said she would continue to fight for Nubin's complete release.

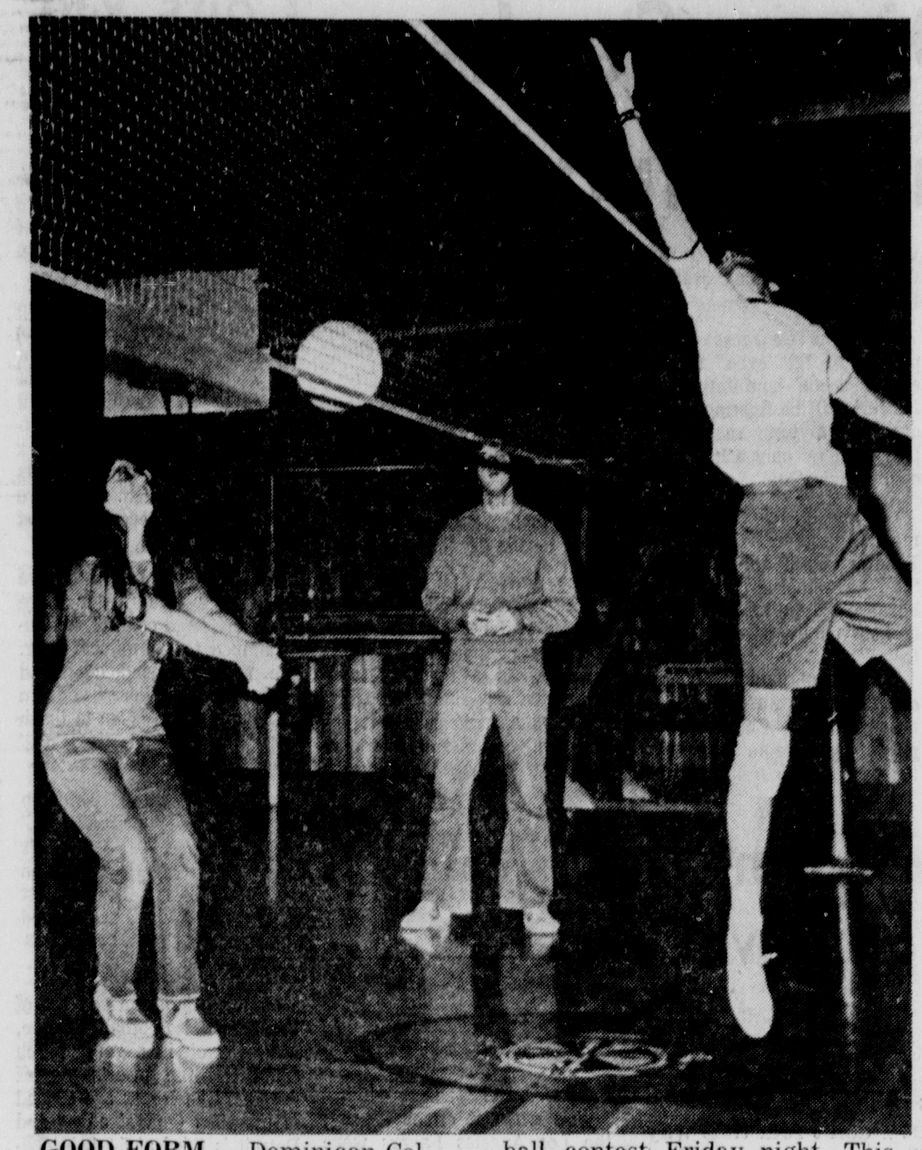
Male Influx Alters Dominican College Sports Look



GOOD FORM — Dominican College student Kathy Joseph ably lofted the ball as rival Bonnie Davis leaped to block the shot. Miss Joseph's teammate Mel Camgros looked on in the volleyball contest Friday night. This co-educational sport is one of several athletic endeavors both the male and female Dominican populace participate in jointly on campus.

Volleyball, Tennis Highlight Activity

By RON LENT

The liberation movement has struck Dominican College.

The San Rafael liberal arts institution, long known for its serenity and all-girls enrollment, has added 19 males to the populace.

These 19, intertwined with the other 981 students, give the 81-year-old place of higher learning a new look, particularly in athletics.

The men are involved in basketball, tennis, volleyball, softball, yoga, ski conditioning and aikido. The latter, an Oriental form of self defense, was popular on Dominican soil before, but now there are chivalrous men present to protect fair Dominican maidens.

Despite the influx, which began last year when San Rafael's Gary Fishel invaded the Music Department, aikido remains as a well-attended class.

Non-contact sports are also big at Dominican, especially from the male angle. For instance, tennis has caught both the student and faculty fancy. In this mixed sport, a teacher and a student team against their colleagues in doubles play.

The tennis program in general has also caught on well, according to team captain Doug Van Aman, 18. Van Aman enjoys his role but admits, "I felt a little funny at first, being the only guy to show up on the first day. I felt self conscious. But I did all right; I beat all the girls."

This political science major lives in close proximity to the fine college courts, maintaining a room in the school infirmary. "It's not that I'm sick," he began in explaining a long spiel on how he landed under the medical roof.

While Van Aman was espousing on his temporary housing status, one of his schoolmates,

POWERFUL HIT — New Dominican College male student Mel Camgros displayed power in slamming the volley ball into the net Friday night as teammate Aurora Gurdian anxiously looked on. Chris Edwards attempted to defend against the Camgros shot in the campus gym. Camgros was one of 19 male students added to the previous all-girl Dominican enrollment.

LEAD AT STAKE

49ers Visit Los Angeles In Quarterback Contest

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—First place in the National Football Conference's Western Division will be settled when the San Francisco Forty Niners and the Los Angeles Rams collide for the second time this season Sunday.

In a meeting at San Francisco's Candlestick Park Oct. 10, the Rams pulled a 20-13 upset. However, San Francisco, with a 6-3 record, holds a half game lead in the division over Tommy Prothro's 5-3-1 club.

Oddsmakers rate the game as even.

The Forty Niners are coming off a 26-20 defeat by New Orleans last weekend while the Rams are seeking their second victory in a row after upsetting Detroit 21-13.

A sellout crowd of more than 76,000 will turn out at the Coliseum to see San Francisco and Los Angeles meet for the 43rd time in regular season play dating back to 1950. The Rams hold a 24-17-2 advantage.

The Forty Niners won the NFC Western Division championship last season with a 10-31 record to the Rams' 9-4-1 mark.

They then upset Minnesota 17-14 before losing to Dallas 1710 in the NFC title game.

Brodie, now in his 15th season, has completed 52 per cent of his passes to 53 per cent for Gabriel, the most valuable player in the National Football League in 1969.

Despite a slow start caused by a rib injury and offseason knee and elbow surgery, Gabriel has hit 115 of 217 passes for 1,431 yards and nine touchdowns. Only five of his passes have been intercepted while defenders have made 12 interceptions of Brodie.

The ex-Stanford ace is 137 for 263 for 1,716 yards and 12 touchdowns.

Defensively, both teams have outstanding pass rushes with coach Dick Nolan's club sacking opposing quarterbacks 33 times to 30 for the Rams.

Only four regular season games remain for each club after Sunday so a San Francisco win would put the Forty Niners in particularly good field position.

Warriors Brace For Invasion By Mighty Milwaukee Tonight

OAKLAND (UPI) —Kareem Abdul Jabbar and the nearly invincible Milwaukee Bucks make their only appearance of the regular season Saturday night at the Coliseum-Arena against Golden State.

Jabbar showed why he is one of the greatest players in the game Friday night when he tallied 36 points and hit two clutch free throws with six seconds remaining to pace Milwaukee to a 108-107 squeaker over Seattle. That gave the Bucks a 17-1 record en route to the defense of their National Basketball Association title.

One thing is in the Warriors' favor. They have had more rest than the Bucks. Golden State turned back Portland 115-105 Thursday night and coach Al Attles told them to sleep until it was time to show up for the Bucks game. Ho-hum.

The Bucks had beaten the Warriors 12 straight before Golden State edged them in the fourth game of the NBA Wes playoffs last season.

With Oscar Robertson at guard and Jabbar in the pivot, the Bucks are basically the same team. This season. Lucius Allen, a teammate of Jabbar's at UCLA, has won the other guard spot with Milwaukee.

The Bucks top the NBA in both offense (115 points a game) and defense (101).

But the Warriors are a bit peppier this season than last with the addition of Cazzie Russell and Jim Barnett. Nate Thurmond will be given the tough task of trying to negate Jabbar, and Russell and Jeff Mullins will try to match Robertson and Allen.

Golden State plays two games with the Bucks at Milwaukee this season and two games on the West Coast. The other California contest will be a "home game" at San Diego Feb. 1.

VS. ARIZONA STATE

San Jose Seeks Another Shocker

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

San Jose State, striving to be the Pacific Coast athletic association representative in the Pasadena Bowl Dec. 18, could just about guarantee the bid by upsetting nationally eight-ranked Arizona State tonight.

Long Beach State, the other candidate for the bowl berth, is at tough Hawaii and also could use a strong showing.

Meanwhile, back in the PCAA, Fresno State calls on UOP tonight while San Diego State hosts Arizona in an evenly matched non-conference battle.

In other coast action, Santa Clara is at UC Santa Barbara, Sacramento State at San Francisco State, and Chico State at Sonoma State.

San Jose's rapidly improving team gained national attention last week by upsetting Rose Bowl-bound Stanford, 13-12, giving the PCAA one of its rare victories over a major-college power. That win, coupled with another shocker against Arizona State, would make the Spartans famous giant-killers.

That is a tall order, because Arizona State has one of the nation's most potent offenses, and has a 60-28 victory over New Mexico under its belt.

Trotters Vow To Stay On Strike

CHICAGO (UPI) — Members of the Harlem Globetrotters say they will stay on strike "as long as it takes" club owners to recognize the team's recently-formed independent union.

The team, whose zany antics are known to basketball courts around the world, walked out last Tuesday at Port Huron, Mich., charging management with poor working conditions and pay scales about half those of the National Basketball Association and the American Basketball Association.

"We're going to stay here (in Port Huron) as long as it takes," said Leon Hillard.

Swimmers Win Title For Marin Catholic

Out of the last 14 dual meets, the Marin Catholic High School girls swimming team has won seven and lost seven. But don't get the impression that this is an average team.

Last year, the squad was 0-7. This year, it was 7-0, and won the Marin County Athletic League championship. The clinching victory came Thursday, when Marin Catholic outswam Redwood, 69-44, ending any hopes Redwood had of tying for the title at 6-1.

"We had a lot of good freshmen come into school this year," said the coach, Rev. Alan Armstrong. "That made the difference."

One such freshman—er, freshwoman—was Jean Haley, who swims freestyle, individual medley and relays. She had the highest point total of any Marin Catholic swimmer, 118½ points including both practice meets and league meets.

Against Redwood she was a double winner, capturing the 100-yard IM in 1:06.5 and the 200 free in 2:10.7.

Another outstanding frosh is Jill Galli, who swims breaststroke and was third in the team point totals with 95. She won twice against Redwood, doing the 50 breast in 36.1 and the 100 breast 1:21.0.

"Aging veteran" of the team is Tammi McDuffie, a sophomore. She racked up over 100 points on the year, second best on the team, by swimming butterfly and backstroke.

"I was really pleased by a couple of other performances against Redwood," said Armstrong. "Teri McGee had her best time in the 100 free, 1:03.3, and her sister Karen did her best in the 100 fly, 1:14.8.

"I'm very proud of the girls," he continued. "I thought they all swam very well."

Marin Harrier Arago Third At Rockland

College of Marin's Mike Arago finished third in the Northern California cross-country championships yesterday, better than any Marin runner has ever done before.

Arago recorded a time of 20:56 for the four-mile, 190-yard course at Rockland, near Sacramento. He was 13 seconds behind the winner, David Garcia of Delta College, and six seconds behind Mike Schecher of West Valley.

Marin's Vian Collier finished 12th, and missed qualifying for the state meet by a bare three seconds. The top 10 runners go to the state, and Collier's 21:29 time was three seconds behind the No. 10 man.

The state meet will be held next Satuday, also at Rockland, with Arago as College of Marin's lone representative.

Fresno City College won the team title yesterday with 55 points and West Valley was second at 85. Marin finished tenth with 204 points.

West Valley was the winner of last week's Camino Norte Conference meet hosted by Marin, in which Marin finished fourth. Schecher was leading that race, but took a wrong turn and ended up third. Yesterday he kept his bearings and won.

Hawks Get Washington From 76ers

ATLANTA (UPI)—The Atlanta Hawks Friday traded their team captain, forward Bill Bridges, to the Philadelphia 76ers for Jim Washington, also a forward and a former Hawk.

Bridges, 32, has long been regarded one of the top rebounders in the National Basketball Association and has led the Hawks in that department the past five years. This season he pulled down 133 rebounds while averaging 9.5 points a game.

Washington was the Hawks' No. 1 draft choice in 1965, but went to the Chicago Bulls in the 1966 expansion draft. He was traded in 1969 to Philadelphia and last year averaged 13 points a game and grabbed 747 rebounds.

Atlanta Coach Richie Guerin said he hated to part with a player of Bridges' calibre, but said he felt that in Washington, "We have a young man with many good years ahead of him."

Bridges has spent his entire 10-year NBA career with the Hawks. He joined the team in 1962 while it was still in St. Louis after playing one season in the defunct American Basketball League. He played his collegiate ball at Kansas.

Carter Out; Seals Trek To Toronto

TORONTO (UPI) —"It felt like I had been electrocuted. I thought the shot went right through me and stuck in my ribs."

Goalie Lyle Carter of the California Golden Seals was describing how he was decked in the second period Thursday night when he stopped a hard shot by Buffalo Sabre rookie Rich Martin.

Now Carter's bruised ribs are wrapped like a mummy and he will be among four Seals, injured in that win against Buffalo, who will miss Saturday night's game here against the Maple Leafs.

SWIMMING UPSET

Japan Whips United States

TOKYO (UPI) — Better conditioned Japanese swimmers Saturday upset an eight member United States team in five of 11 events on the opening day of a two-day international swimming meet here.

Coach Frank Keefe of the suburban swimming club of Newton Square, near Philadelphia, said the American swimmers were not in good condition because they had started training only recently on a long range program for the 1972 Munich Olympic games.

"But they are swimming hard in an effort to win," Keefe said. "The Japanese swimmers are good and appear to be on a upward swing to the days of Furuhashi when he was the top world's swimmer."

Hironoshin Furuhashi held a number of world records in the few years following the end of World War II.

The American swimmers arrived by plane Thursday night.

Mark Spitz won both the men's 100 meter freestyle and butterfly but his times were slow, 55 seconds and 58.1 seconds respectively in contrast to his world records of 51.9 and 55.6 respectively.

The meet is being held in the heated 50 meter pool of the Tokyo swimming center, which invited the American swimmers.

Mayumi Aoki, 18, of the Yamada swimming club shattered her own Japanese national record in the women's 200 meter butterfly by clocking 2:24.4 as she beat world record holder Ellie Daniel by four meters. The Japanese girl's existing mark is 2:25.0.

Miss Daniel, holder of the world record at 2:18.4, led by a stroke at the 100 meter turn but Miss Aoki was ahead at the 150 meter turn and increased her lead in the last 50 meters.

The Results:

Men's 100 meter freestyle: 1. Mark Spitz, 55.0 secs.; 2. Noboru Waseda, Japan 56.6; 3. Akira Iida, Japan 56.8.

Men's 400 meter individual medley: 1. Rick Colella, 4:54.8; 2. Jiro Sasaki, Japan 5:04.7; 3. Shinji Tokumoto, Japan 5:22.1.

Marin Catholic Scene Improving

By LEW CODDINGTON

(Fifth in a series on Marin County Athletic League basketball prospects.)

Marin Catholic High School basketball figures to take a turn for the better this year under new head coach Dave Gonsalves, who enthroned a dynasty at the Class C level before moving up to the varsity.

But at the moment, Gonsalves is on the sidelines because of the Catholic lay teachers strike. Rev. Bill Isetta is the interim coach, and he is sticking to the program as it was mapped by Gonsalves.

"We will be quick this year," said Isetta, "and we'll use a variety of pressing defenses. On offense we'll go for the fast break more, but if we don't get it, we'll settle into a continuity (deliberate) offense."

Marin Catholic went 4-10 in the Marin County Athletic League last year, tied for the cellar with San Rafael and Drake.

Three starters are returning from last year's team. They are six-foot-four center Steve Vanni, 6-2½ guard-forward Jim Sullivan and 6-1 Mickey Hurley, who played guard last year but will also see some action at forward this season. All three are seniors. Sullivan received honorable mention in last year's all-league balloting.

Also returning are two sometime players from last season. Jack Stahl, a 5-11 guard, saw quite a bit of action as the sixth man, and 6-3 forward Dan Mahoney was an occasional starter.

Up from the junior varsity is 5-11 guard Paul Bartalini, and from the second-place "B" team comes an all-league guard, 5-8 Bill Ripley.

"We lack over-all size," said Isetta, "but we're very, very scrappy. There's a fantastic attitude on this team — they (the players) think they're going to win all the marbles. People will have their hands full trying to beat them."

Gonsalves had phenomenal success when he coached at the "C" level. He won three straight championships and will now attempt to apply his coaching techniques to the varsity.

Marin Catholic opens its season next Wednesday against the alumni. Interscholastic play begins next Saturday, with the Wildcats hosting St. Patrick's of Vallejo. MCAL action begins Jan. 7 at Novato.

THIS DAY IN SPORTS

Big Week In Marin Bowling

Bowling a game 100 points over your average is not an easy thing, but three Marin County keglers did it last week, one at each bowling establishment.

Jim Wade, with a 183 Blue Book average, rolled a 286 game en route to a 735 series at Country Club bowl. It was the highest lifetime game and series for the employee of Sohner Tree Serivce in San Anselmo.

Gloria Lima, who has a 138 average, recorded a 264 game at Nave Lanes while fashioning a 595 series. Top women's series for the week belonged to Marilyn Epindendio of Greenbrae, 633, while Sylvia Asay rolled 630 at Greenbrae and Mitzie Brown 602 at Nave.

Willie Coates, who is 11 years old, rolled a 257 game at Greenbrae, 106 pins over his average. His brother Cliff bowled a 256 and finished with the week's highest series for a junior, 638. Dave Mendelsohn had a 609, also at Greenbrae.

Anne Gildersleeve led Country Club's women with 593. Charlotte Warcup had 594 at Greenbrae but yeilded the spotlight to Epindendio and Asay.

VS. RAIDERS

San Diego Seeks Revenge Sunday

OAKLAND (UPI)—The San Diego Chargers, still high after a stunning 20-17 last-play victory Monday over St. Louis, come to town Sunday to see if they can keep right on rolling with a "revenge" victory over the Oakland Raiders.

The Chargers, who have won three of their last four games, seem out of the running for a division title but they'd like nothing better than to beat the Raiders, the AFC West frontrunners who whipped them 34-0 in the second game of the season.

The Raiders, 6-1-2 compared to San Diego's 4-5 record, however, are two touchdown favorites and go into Sunday's game—before another sellout crowd of 54,000—off their best victory of the year, a 41-21 triumph last Sunday over the Houston Oilers.

While the Chargers will be playing to "get even" for that early season humiliation, the Raiders will be fighting to stay atop the division race, which they lead by only a half game over Kansas City.

"Obviously, this game means more to us than to them," said Raider coach John Madden. "We have to keep on winning because we can't expect anyone to help us by beating Kansas City."

Last Monday night's victory over St. Louis was perhaps the best game the Chargers have played this season. Dennis Partee won it with a 45-yard field goal on the final play of the game but quarterback John Hadl, with his passing, and rookie Mike Montgomery, with his running, kept San Diego close.

Montgomery carried the ball 17 times for 98 yards and caught six passes from Hadl for 77 more yards. Billy Parks grabbed four Hadl throws for 61 yards to boost his season total to 40, tops in the NFL.

The Raiders, who've stuck mostly to a ground game this season, switched signals on the Oilers last Sunday and went to the air. As a result, Daryle Lamonica was able to hit Drew Buie twice on long TD strikes and Pete Banaszak bolted a yard twice more for scores.

Dolphins, Colts Vie For Lead

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Miami Dolphins' Super Bowl ambitions face a severe test tomorrow in the form of the defending world champion Baltimore Colts.

Miami leads the American Football Conference's Eastern Division with a 7-1-1 record, but the arch-rival Colts are right behind at 7-2. The game will match two powerful ground attacks — Miami with Jim Kiick and Larry Csonka and the Colts with Norm Bulaich. Baltimore has the NFL's second-stingiest defense.

The Colts and Dolphins have been bitter rivals ever since Baltimore head coach Don Shula jumped to Miami last year. The rivalry was accentuated when the Dolphins rose from the depths last season to finish 10-4 and challenge the Colts' supremacy.

Dallas travels to Washington to face the "over-the-hill gang," and a victory for the Cowboys would give them first place in the NFC East. After a fast start, the Redskins have slipped to 6-2-1, barely ahead of Dallas 6-3.

Chicago, the surprise team of the National Football League, hosts Detroit in a game which could end the loser's playoff dreams. The Bears are second in the NFC Central at 6-3 and Detroit is third at 5-3-1. Minnesota is on top in that division at 7-2 and journeys to New Orleans to face the upstart Saints, who are 3-4-2 following a victory over San Francisco last week.

In the AFC Central, Cleveland entertains New England while Pittsburgh hosts the New York Giants. The Browns and Steelers are tied for the lead with 4-5 records, the Browns having lost four straight.

Injured Namath Aching To Play — When Healthy

NEW YORK (UPI)—Watching a pro football game from the sidelines each week may be the ideal way to spend a Sunday afternoon for most young men, but it's becoming very old stuff for Joe Namath.

Namath walks the sidelines every Sunday, watching his New York Jet teammates play without him and each week the urge to play grows stronger.

Joe Namath, whose name has become synonymous with passing in pro football, has not thrown a ball in a league game since he threw 62 passes in a losing effort to Baltimore on Oct. 18, 1970. He suffered a fractured wrist bone in that game that finished him for 1970 and was forced to undergo knee surgery when he was injured attempting to tackle Detroit's Mike Lucci in the Jets' first pre-season game this year.

Doctors predicted a mid-November return for Namath but a post-operative nerve injury has retarded the return. But it has not squelched Namath's desire to play.

"You have to be in pretty good shape to play this game and right now, I'm not in good shape," said Namath. "I've been around a few years. I have a good idea of what it takes to play this game. And I really don't think I'm well enough to play now. I'm not setting up fast enough, I'm not dropping back fast enough. I haven't been able to go all out on the leg."

Namath took his first turn with the offensive unit since training camp on Thursday and apparently showed that he, indeed, isn't well enough to play, at least against the Buffalo Bills Sunday. He walked with a noticeable limp, he was slow setting up, usually one of his strongest points, and he was generally uneasy.

"It all comes down to this. If I'm healthy, I'll play," says Namath. "If not, I can't. Right now, I'm not healthy. I haven't even practiced a week yet. I fumbled the first play (in Thursday's workout), I was almost run over by a guard and almost ran into the fullback.

"I'm not used to this kind of injury. I had three other knee operations but this is the first time the nerve was involved. It leaves my foot numb. The three operations before this were in the off-season and I had time to get ready. But not this time. I'm still about 15 pounds underweight and I'm trying to build myself up again."

Weeb Ewbank, the Jets' coach and general manager, has brought Namath around slowly, hoping to avoid any possible danger of further damage. "Joe says his arm is great, his knee is great but that he still has that pain in the foot," says Ewbank. "He claims there's no feeling in it. It takes time for a nerve injury to get well. Once he's ready to go physically, it'll only take him a week with the team to get ready. He knows the offense and he knows Don Maynard better than anybody."

Clay Roni, a 24-year-old music major discussed the men's lib view.

"I felt like a men's libber at first," the Tiburon resident said, "but I don't feel that way now. Most of my classes have a couple of other guys in them, too."

The music major voiced delight with the sports beat on the campus and urged an increased tempo.

This consensus of overall contentment with the male influx and the outgrowth of men's sports is apparently shared by all 19 of the gentlemen gender.

"All the boys participate in some aspect of the sports here," Mrs. Lillian Seaver, the public information officer, noted.

"They also take part in basketball," she continued. Regarding this activity and subsequent male involvement, the students are divided over the co-ed cage idea. Aurora Gurdian, a student in charge of basketball, commented: "I don't like it because boys are taller, but. . ."

"Girls can be just as rough," Mary Pat Kinsey, a basketball team member, interjected. "Co-ed basketball, just for itself, is fun."

Both girls liked the co-ed volleyball squad situation. "We have 18 members on the team and half are guys." The volleyballers' record is 2-5; "But remember, we are not a regular class. We just have to write other schools to set up games."

The volleyball project also encompasses student-faculty encounters, which include both male and female participants. Miss Kinsey added, "These types of games bring both the students and teachers closer together."

Dr. James Tallarico, assistant academic dean, agreed that the co-ed sports application is good. "We'd like to start a male basketball team, which would include some faculty members. We would play other schools.

"I find this type of thing good for morale and good for exercise."

The involved administrator also expressed hope for initiating a touch football program. "I'd like to get more people involved in this — even people from outside the campus."

Hot Lakers Notch 10th Win In Row

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Just when it appeared that the Los Angeles Lakers were collectively over the hill, they now stand just one game short of euqalling their all-time record of 11 consecutive victories.

After failing seven times since 1962 in the championship round of the National Basketball Association playoffs, the Lakers appeared ready for a big fall. Elgin Baylor was forced to retire earlier this season, Jerry West was coming back from Knee surgery and Wilt Chamberlain keeps getting older.

But the Lakers remain full of surprises, and Friday night they ran up their 10th triumph in a row by beating the Houston Rockets, 106-99, behind Gail Goodrich's 32 points. Los Angeles now is 16-3 for the season, leads runnerup Golden State by three games in the Pacific Division and can equal its club record of consecutive victories by beating the Milwaukee Bucks on Sunday.

The Bucks, meantime, continue to surprise no one, and registered their 17th success in 18 games when Kareem Jabar's two free throws with six seconds remaining insured a 108-107 decision over the Seattle SuperSonics.

The Baltimore Bullets stretched their mini-streak to four games by routing the Buffalo Braves, 126-105, and in other games Friday night the Chicago Bulls stampeded the Philadelphia 76ers, 148-104, the Cincinnati Royals upended the Boston Celtics, 110-106, and the Portland Trail Blazers defeated the Cleveland Cavaliers, 118105.

Rick Adelman set a team and career record with 17 assists as Portland beat the Cavaliers.

Ashe, Okker In Net Go

HOUSTON (UPI) — Arthur Ashe and Tom Okker, who live by thier overpowering serves, will meet Australians Ken Rosewall and Rod Laver in the semifinals of the $100,000 World Championship Tennis (WCT) tournament Sunday.

Okker, second seeded, from the Netherlands, scored an easy 6-3, 6-3, 6-0 triumph over seventh-seeded Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., in a quarterfinal match Friday night. Okker, 27, goes against 37-year-old Rosewall in one semifinal. Rosewall, seeded third, ousted fellow Australian John Newcombe, 7-5, 6-2, 5-7, 6-3. in the other quarterfinal Friday night. Newcombe, seeded sixth, showed signs of a three-week layoff due to a stretched ligament in his right knee.

Radio Commentator Bill Stern Dies; Eagles Ink Tom Dempsey

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

HARRISON, N.Y. — Bill Stern, the colorful radio and television sportscaster with an endless string of anecdotes about the games he loved, died Friday night. He was 64.

Stern died in his home of a heart attack.

Stern was with the National Broadcasting Company for 17 years before moving to ABC in 1953. He became famous for his rich stories with ironic twists.

Football

PHILADELPHIA — Former New Orleans Saints kicker Tom Dempsey, who set a National Football League record with a 63-yard field goal last year, has found a new home with the Philadelphia Eagles.

Dempsey, the handicapped pro with the deformed right foot and crippled hand who won the hearts of Saints' fans but not the approval of New Orleans coach J.D. Roberts was released earlier in the year after a disastrous exhibition season showing.

CHICAGO — The Chicago Bears said Friday running back Gale Sayers will be out for the rest of the season.

ABA ROUNDUP

Barry Hits 51 In New York Win

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Rick Barry, a scoring champion on three major levels, still rates among the best there is at putting a ball through a basket.

Barry, who was the national collegiate scoring champion at Miami and then led both the National and American Basketball Asssociations in different years, came through with 51 points Friday night to lift the New York Nets to a 129-127 victory over the Carolina Cougars.

Carolina led 99-90 at the end of the third quarter and by as many as 12 points, 108-96, in the final session before Barry's three-point play started the Nets on their winning rally.

A tip-in by Ollie Taylor put New York ahead at 113-112 and Barry added two consecutive field goals as the Nets raced away to a five-point lead. Jim McDaniels led Carolina with 32 points and Larry Miller had 24.

The victory evened New York's record at 9-9 and left the third-place Nets 3 1-2 games behind the Kentucky Colonels in the East Division of the ABA.

Kentucky kept pace by beating the Floridians, 114-102, and in other ABA games the Pittsburgh Condors edged the Indiana Pacers, 124-123, and the Denver Rockets tripped the Virginia Squires, 115-113.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Sometimes By Breaking A Good Rule The Action Is Victorious

One of the first rules you learn for defending at bridge is not to lead a suit that dummy can trump. The danger is that declarer may also be void of the suit, in which case your lead allows him to ruff in dummy and discard a loser from his hand. This is a good rule to follow, but I can't resist showing the sort of hand in which you must break the rule.

ICING OPENER

West leads the king of hearts and continues with the jack of hearts at the second trick. South ruffs, leads a club to dummy and returns a trump for a finesse with the nine of spades.

West wins with the queen of spades and wonders where to look for the setting trick. He has already taken two tricks and is sure to get another trump trick, but what other trick can he hope for?

The red suits are obviously hopeless. East has given him no encouragement in clubs. Besides, West couldn't keep leading clubs even if his partner had the queen.

Only the trump suit offers any hope. West must find a way to make South ruff another heart.

ONLY WAY

The only way is to keep leading hearts. West leads a third heart after taking his first trump trick.

Declarer cannot afford to ruff in his hand, since then West would have greater trump length. Declarer ruffs in dummy and leads the last trump from dummy, hoping to repeat his finesse.

SEES DOOM

East discards, and South sees that he is doomed. If South finesses with the ten of spades West wins with the king and leads a fourth heart, forcing South to ruff. Then South has only one spade, and West has two. South will actually go down three if he does this. South can limit his loss to one trick if he goes up with the ace of spades and plays the side suits, allowing West to get his two trumps.

Space Technology Is Used On Tires

BRECKSVILLE, Ohio (UPI) —A "spin-off" from space trechnology is being used to evaluate the safety and endurance of new tire designs.

What's New In Marin? People, Not Planning

"RIGHT HERE in Marin," says the introduction to the Preliminary Marin Countywide Plan, "one could make a long list of the things in which local government has gotten involved during the last decade, all of which are new areas for governmental expenditure and decision making.

"A partial list of the new areas . . . includes: balanced transportation, environmental quality preservation, water and air pollution abatement, natural resources management, improvement of housing and social opportunity, strengthening of the local economy, and turning the non-resident visitor influx to a positive advantage to the Marin economy."

This idea that our problems are new and that no one has previously tried to solve them is a foundation stone of the Preliminary Countywide Plan. It deserves a close look.

LET'S LOOK at "balanced transportation." Historically, 10 decades ago Marin was served by a road system mostly in public ownership and maintained by tax monies, a rail system franchised and regulated by an arm of government, ferry boats for passengers and scows and barges for freight. The system was in pretty good balance except that it suffered from growing pains as the population of Marin expanded.

Five decades ago, the system was sadly out of balance. People were beginning to demonstrate a preference for the private motorcar over the electric train-ferry system. Marin's city and county governments, along with the state, began to try to re-balance the system by improving streets and highways.

About three decades ago, a pretty good balance was achieved. The Golden Gate Bridge and Highway 101 were more than adequate to carry all then-foreseeable auto traffic, while ferries and trains still operated. Unfortunately, insufficient numbers of people rode the trains and ferries; government had to grant permission for abandonment of service but first made sure a new balance was arranged, in the form of Greyhound commuter buses.

Other solutions were considered and passed up by local government. Mill Valley voted bonds to purchase and operate its own bus system, but the city council decided not to sell the bonds and didn't go ahead. County supervisors were urged to consider a take-over of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad's electric commute train system, but the voters turned that proposition down.

In short, anyone who says local government's entrance into expending funds and making decisions concerned with balanced transportation is all new in the past decade is either uninformed or ignoring the facts.

ENVIRONMENTAL quality preservation? Marin County's planning ordinances and planning department were among the first in the state. The people of Marin were aware more than a generation ago that our area was blessed with a number of natural advantages which some way had to be saved. We were pioneers in the local governmental planning process more than three decades ago.

Water and air pollution abatement? The cities, the county, and the water district were spending money and taking action on a variety of measures to provide adequate supplies of high quality water and halt pollution of stream and bay waters more than a generation ago. The county's first concern and efforts to do something toward air pollution control go back more than two decades.

Natural resources management? The county fire department was first organized, with state assistance, to protect range and forest lands in Marin a generation or more ago.

Improvement of housing and social opportunity? Building codes and subdivision regulations in Marin for more than a generation have been among the strictest in California. Our public school system preparing youth to take advantage of social opportunities is well into its second century, as the result of local government expenditures and decisions. Our junior college has been functioning for more than a generation, as an arm of local government.

STRENGTHENING of the local economy? San Rafael's city charter — adopted six decades ago this month — provided authority for the city to expend funds for strengthening the local economy. The city has been doing just that ever since. The other cities of Marin likewise have been doing the same since the mind of man runneth not to the contrary. Marvelous Marin Inc., a "booster" organization of a generation ago, was allocated county tax funds for specific purposes set out by the board of supervisors.

Turning the non-resident visitor influx to a positive advantage to the Marin economy? This was part of Marvelous Marin Inc.'s concern more than a generation ago. Also, the board of supervisors allocated county assistance to the Redwood Empire Association half a century ago for this very purpose.

When you reflect on all this you may come to the conclusion that Marin's real problem is having attracted too many new people — including some now working in the county planning department. Too many Johnny-come-latelys, you could say.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Diocese Generosity Poorly Rewarded

I congratulate you on your editorial, "Catholic Schools Put Responsibility First." I firmly believe, as you do, that Rev. Francis Lacey and his teaching staff deserve congratulations: and the full support of all Marin County residents for their determination to keep Marin Catholic open. They are doing a wonderful job!

The Archdiocese of San Francisco has been doing a great job too for it's Catholic flock, even though it has been under great financial burdens. Unfortunately this fact seems unbelievable to a large part of the public; but it is true. It is only because of the generosity of our archbishop that a lot of our Catholic schools have remained open. He has subsidized our schools, so that we parents can continue to give our children an education based on our religious beliefs. We, parents, cannot afford to do this alone.

May I ask the people who think unkindly of private schools what their taxes would be like if all private schools suddenly closed, and these children had to be put into the public schools?

I would like to ask the teachers, who are striking against our Catholic schools, why they signed up for jobs in our diocese's schools in the first place? It has been a known fact for years that the Catholic school pay was less than public schools. The public might be interested to know that the above question was put to one teacher before they went on strike. Their answer was, "I couldn't get a job anywhere else." This type of person, instead of being grateful that they had a job, is now trying to get more pay. He is putting himself before the needs of our children.

I pray that the residents of Marin County will give their full support to our principal, Rev. Lacey and his present staff.

Mrs. SERGE CINCOTTA
San Rafael.

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

The vice of our leading parties in this country is that they do not plant themselves on the deep and necessary grounds to which they are respectively entitled, but lash themselves to fury in the carrying of some local and momentary measure, nowise useful to the commonwealth. — Ralph Waldo Emerson.

ART BUCHWALD

Other Nations Must Learn To Cultivate Own Suckers

WASHINGTON — The new bitterness toward the United States being voiced around the world has to do with economics. This country, by putting on a 10 per cent surcharge, has alienated every nation except Albania, which as far as we know is the only country that refuses to trade with us for ideological reasons.

While the United States has much to answer for, the rest of the world is not blameless for the sad state of economic affairs.

Prof. Eberhardt Goldstandard, who wrote the definitive book on the world's economy entitled "Evil, the Root of All Money," told me:

"THE PROBLEM is that the United States has been the major consumer of the rest of the world's products. Every country's economy is geared to what they can sell to America. But there is just so much stuff Americans can consume. Our citizens can absorb only so many carving knives, cuckoo clocks, tablecloths, stuffed animals, tape recorders, weather vanes, music boxes, salt and pepper shakers and back scratchers.

"We have reached what could be described as a consumer watershed, and unless other countries find new markets for their products, we're all going to go down the drain."

Professor Goldstandard blames World War II for the world's economy problems.

"With the exception of the United States, most countries who participated in World War II had to suffer great deprivation. There were shortages of everything, and the people in Europe and Japan haven't forgotten it. They still save string and paper, they hoard boxes and they never throw away clothes, shoes or cigarette tinfoil.

"Americans, on the other hand, dispose of everything. They buy something and two weeks later dump it in the trash can. It isn't our buying, but our dumping that has made us the greatest consumers of all time.

"But now," Professor Goldstandard said, "we have no place left to dump what we buy. Since the countries around the world have upped their production, they are making things faster than the United States can throw them away. This is what has caused the crunch in the world economy."

"WHAT IS THE SOLUTION?" I asked.

"We have to make other industrialized countries realize that their salvation depends on making things that do not work and selling them to their own people who do not need them.

"We must have a new Marshall Plan and send out quality-control experts to teach everyone the secrets of built-in obsolescence. We must instruct other countries to make furniture that won't hold up, cars that break down, refrigerators that won't freeze, television sets that blow their tubes, and washing machines that miss their cycles."

"If they did this, it would certainly take the burden off us," I said.

"That's correct. For 25 years now most countries have assumed that the only suckers in the world are Americans. They have to change their thinking and realize that their own people, with the right advertising campaigns, can be made to be just as gullible.

"The world's economic survival depends on everyone acknowledging that we have carried the consumer burden on our shoulders since 1945, and it is now time for other countries to start absorbing most of the junk they make."

MARQUIS CHILDS

Washington Lives In Fear Despite Promises And Promises

WASHINGTON — "The time has come to fight organized crime with a will to win the battle. If we win this battle we win not only a victory against organized crime but a victory against violent street crime. A high percentage of all street crime, mugging and armed robbery is committed by narcotics addicts in a desperate search for quick money to feed their habit. A genuine war against the narcotics traffickers, the men who run organized crime, will result in a significant decrease in street crime."

— Richard Nixon, Chicago, Oct. 19, 1968.

". . . Wage an all-out war against crime in this country . . . proposing: a cabinet-level council, the National Law Enforcement Council, to coordinate federal policy on the control and prevention of crime. Establish a National Academy of Law Enforcement which would make available to local law enforcement methods as well as information about the social sciences and about community relations for adaptation to local situations. . ."

— Richard Nixon, Fort Lee, N.J., Oct. 26, 1968.

OVER AND OVER AGAIN as he crisscrossed the country in his campaign for the presidency, Mr. Nixon threw out promises, promises, promises to restore law and order. He raised the specter of a lawless country with the Democrats to blame. A Republican administration would use all the tools of law enforcement, including much greater use of electronic surveillance, to get the muggers and the murderers off the streets.

What has happened in the intervening three years? The crime rate has steadily increased.

While the emphasis is on the cities, where narcotics addiction is greatest, they are not alone in the rise in violent crimes.

IT IS TIME TO SAY that this is a nation living under fear. In city after city, including smaller cities, downtown areas are deserted at night. Entertainment, restaurants and other businesses are hard hit. People do not want to risk walking two or three blocks from a parking area to a cafe or a movie theater.

Increasingly, householders are installing private alarm systems. These are costly and they enhance the atmosphere of tension and fear. In many instances they are keyed into the nearest police precinct. You forget, press the alert button when a door or window is not shut, and shortly two police cars are outside. While this in one sense is reassuring, it hardly contributes to peace and quiet.

You call on friends in the evening, ring the doorbell. The first response is surveillance through a peephole or with the curtains slightly parted. Once you are identified, bolts are turned and you are admitted. This is not the America of trust and confidence of another not-too-remote day.

IN ONE OF HIS law-and-order speeches Mr. Nixon assailed Washington, D.C., where, as he rightly said, the national administration bears prime responsibility for law enforcement. He cited as an example of the rapidly escalating crime rate the case of a 24-year-old nurse kidnaped, raped and robbed "within a few blocks of the White House."

Just the other day two women were raped in office buildings one block from the White House. A government employe was stabbed to death in the lavatory of a government office building almost directly across from the White House. Crimes of violence in the capital set a record for the year with two months still to go.

In the text of the speech on crime in the capital, delivered at Chattanooga, Tenn., on Sept. 27, 1968, candidate Nixon called for steps to be "taken to restore freedom from fear in the capital of the world's greatest democracy." Saying he would implement these steps if elected, he recommended "a dramatic increase in the number and pay of the police in the city, a doubling if necessary of court and prosecution personnel." Men walking free on probation, the candidate went on, are responsible for many of the crimes in the city.

A recent count showed that a large proportion of persons arrested for crimes of violence continue to walk the streets. With 236 homicides so far this year the slayer, according to one estimate, has a 7-to-10 chance of going free. The homicide rate is twice that of New York City. So much for the promises, promises, promises out of that campaign.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

When President Nixon set about in mid-August to cure U.S. dollar ills and served notice upon Japan and the rich trading nations of Europe that they would be expected to help, he had definite goals in mind.

He told Europe that to meet global obligations, the U.S. must convert a projected $5 billion trade deficit into an $8 billion surplus.

The largest deficit with any one country was with Japan. It came to $3 billion and he wanted it reversed.

And through Treasury Secretary John B. Connally he told the trading nations he expected these remedial steps to be taken right now, not next week or year or some other vague time in the future.

NEITHER JAPAN nor the trading nations of Europe could say they had not been warned. European members of NATO had been asked repeatedly to take over a fairer share of European defense costs. The European Common Market had been warned the United States could not stand idly by as a tariff wall erased more than $1 billion in annual sales of agriculture goods to Europe.

But when action did come, its severity aroused both shock and anger.

The commission which guides the fortunes of the European Common Market declared U.S. dollar ills had begun at home and the medicine should be administered first at home. It blamed the U.S. deficit primarily on excessive military spending abroad, especially in Vietnam, and to a U.S. reluctance to restrict the outflow of U.S. investment capital.

It estimated the U.S. surcharge on imports would cost the Common Market $2 billion in foreign trade annually and cut in half the rate of growth of Common Market exports.

AS CONNALLY CARRIED his message abroad, the last to be visited were the Japanese.

Japanese foreign currency holdings stood at $14.1 billion, highest in the world except for West Germany, and in the American view the Japanese could well afford to help out.

But the Japanese cried poor. They anticipated a slump of their own. They could not revalue the yen upward and thus make more expensive their exports to the United States until they could see what the nations of Europe did.

In its broad outlines, the U.S. proposal was simplicity itself:

—An easing of the Common Market's agricultural policy.

—Increased access to European markets for Japanese goods to help ease the pressure on the United States.

—Easier access to Japanese markets for the United States, including direct investments.

TO GAIN ITS WAY the United States counted heavily on the lure of its huge consumer market. It further counted on the fact that its own economy depended to a far lesser degree on exports than did the economies of either Europe or Japan.

Its position is that it is demanding of Europe and Japan only reforms which long are overdue.

And there the matter stands. Until a solution can be found, the greatest sufferers will be the under-developed nations caught between. No one wants the disaster of a world trade war but in this global game of chicken someone must turn aside first.

Three possible freeway routes through Novato, including one on the present alignment of Highway 101, were disclosed by the California Division of Highways.

San Rafael city councilmen heard opposition from property owners to a proposal that the city build three downtown parking lots.

Sharp division of opinions developed at a meeting to discuss annexation of Homestead to the City of Mill Valley.

Slaughter Month

To the Anglo-Saxons, November was blood month, when beasts were slain for meat. Lacking refrigeration, it was natural that people would wait until the cold weather had settled in to do their big slaughtering. November was also known as wind month, for the powerful North Sea gales which usually began this month.

To Marinites, November is also a kind of slaughter and wind month. Although we are quite willing to let others do the foul deed, November is blood month for thousands of turkeys. And the beginning of the North Pacific gales usually make this wind month here too.

It's good to know some things don't change much.

50 Apply For Hub's Top Park-Rec Post

More than 50 applications for the position of San Anselmo parks and recreation director had been received by yesterday's deadline, City Administrator Alfred C. Kaeppel reported.

He said, however, that the city would accept any applications received during the next few days that were postmarked by yesterday.

The city parks and recreation commission met in closed session during its regular meeting Wednesday to continue preliminary screening of the applications.

Another closed session will be held at 8 p.m. Nov. 29 for final preliminary screening, according to commission chairman Laura Cann.

She said that once the number of applications is cut down by the commission, the remainder would be reviewed by a three-man committee of experts still to be appointed.

That committee will recommend which applicants should be interviewed by the city council and commission, prior to appointment by the council.

Mrs. Cann said the commission hopes to have the position filled by Jan. 1.

Also at its meeting Wednesday, the commission heard a report from Charles R. Leitzell, parks director, on plans for a new creekside park.

Leitzell said landscape architect William L. Kapranos of San Anselmo was drawing up landscape plans for the small park to be developed on a 700-foot long strip of city-owned property alongside the creek between Lansdale and Forest avenues.

Development of the park, including playground, picnic and parking areas, will be done by the San Anselmo Rotary Club, Leitzell said.

The commission also voted to recommend to the city council that if bids for the city's 1930 Seagraves fire truck, being sold as surplus, are not more than $2,000, the truck should be kept and used as a piece of playground equipment.

Mrs. Cann cited the high price of playground equipment as a factor in the commission's recommendation.

Kaeppel said bids on the fire truck will be opened Jan. 11.

The commission's next regular meeting is Dec. 15.

Reed Schools' Research Panel Members Named

The Independent-Journal erred Wednesday in reporting that a committee was named Tuesday by the Reed School District board to evaluate the progress of district education.

The research and instructional assessment committee, although instructed Tuesday by the board to undertake an evaluation of the district's educational programs, actually was appointed on Oct. 19.

The eight persons named as committee members in the article actually were appointed Tuesday to the finance committee.

The research and instructional assessment committee consists of Robert D. Hayes, David C. Kilmer, Charles Walters, Sharon Bass, Mary Anne Evans, Caroline Fanning, Marie McLeod, David N. Lytle, Reece Clark and Joanne Stokes.

The committee was instructed by the board to continue its examination and study of Project Sigma, a math program emphasizing student involvement, and to determine if the concept can be extended to other subjects and other schools and grades.

Teen Movies Are Moved

The Sausalito School District has banished the Sausalito Teen Center's Friday night movies to the basement of Central School because of vandalism damage to the school's auditorium, where the films formerly were shown.

Norman Wohlschlaeger, Sausalito's director of public works, said the Sausalito Recreation Commission, which sponsors the teen center, was told of the eviction Thursday night.

School Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg said the district took the action because persons attending the Nov. 5 films were inadequately supervised and allowed to wander throughout the school. A few fire extenguishers were discharged in the halls and thrown into bushes outside, resulting in $34 damage, he said.

The movies will continue in the basement of the school which the teen center leases because insurance covers damage which may occur there.

Civic Center Security

The Marin Council for Civic Affairs is opposed to continuing tight security at the Marin Civic Center. The Independent-Journal erred Wednesday in reporting the group was among those supporting the security policy.

The Marines 'Need Discipline'

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (UPI)—The commandant of the U.S. Marines Corps says the Army and Navy can do as they like, but the Marines will never succumb to liberalizing trends.

"What the other services do is their business," Gen. Leonard Chapman said Friday, "We are going the other way.

"The purpose of the Corps is to fight and win in combat. For this we need discipline and we will insist on it. If a man is going to break, we want him to break in training and not on some future battlefield."

Two Petaluma City Sessions Upcoming

The Petaluma City Council will meet in closed session Monday at 5 p.m. to hear a report on purchase of land that could involve litigation, according to City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer.

The city council also will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in joint session with the planning commission to hear recommendations from six study committees on a city environmental design plan.

Three Plans Given For Petaluma Park

Petaluma can have its choice among three plans for development of a Riverside Park that could become a joint city-county venture, the city's recreation, music and parks commission has heard.

Richard W. Shollenberger, recreation and parks director, told the commission Thursday that the county parks department is open to all suggestions on development of the 20-acre parcel adjacent to the Petaluma boat launching ramp off Lakeville Highway.

Three preliminary plans have been prepared by the county and vary widely, according to Shollenberger. One plan includes 48 campsites for overnight camping, another calls for several ball diamonds to make it a center for athletic activities while the third features a freshwater lagoon that could be stocked for fishing and landscaped for shaded picnic and barbecue areas.

Shollenberger told commission members to review the plans and to recommend the park's best use. He said that if the commission wanted a more sophisticated plan or faster development than $25,000 in county funds could finance, it could divert money from the Lucchesi Park development plan.

He advised the commission also to consider a joint agreement with the county for maintenance once the park is established, since city parks are normally better maintained than county parks.

Mountanos Answers Marin City Critics

Marin Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos, criticized Thursday for breaking promises to attend Marin City meetings on police protection, said yesterday he is willing to attend meetings anywhere in the county when specifically requested.

The Sheriff attributed the criticism, leveled by two county Human Rights Commission members, to a misunderstanding on their part.

"My relationship with the Marin City Council has been very good .. very satisfactory," he said.

Mountanos said that while he has received letters addressed to "The Sheriff" from Marin City, he has interpreted them as requesting representatives from his office.

He said the same is true for requests from other parts of the county.

"They're addressed to the sheriff as a matter of courtesy," he said. When letters specifically request his presence, he will attend, the sheriff said.

The sheriff added that he has had numerous meetings with representatives from Marin City in his office and that officers from his department always have attended meetings in Marin City when requested.

He said it is his department's policy to send the most knowledgable officer on a police subject — such as drug abuse — to meetings where that subject is to be discussed.

Human Rights Commission members, Thelma McKinney and Fred Mayer, called at the Thursday commission meeting, for a subpoena if Mountanos didn't agree to attend a commission subcommittee meeting in December on police protection.

It's The Oldest Meat Market In Marin

By FRANK FARRARA

When the West End Market opened for business in San Rafael in 1914 the meat came in from San Francisco by ferryboat and went out to customers by horse and buggy.

The market is still at its same location, Fourth and G streets, the oldest meat market in Marin, but the icebox has given way to refrigeration and home delivery is a service of the past.

The market was started by the late Frank Soldavini and Joseph Soldavini, who after working for butcher shops as youths, decided to go into business on their own.

"THERE WAS sawdust on the floor, stools in front of the counter and no refrigeration then," recalled Norman Soldavini, son of Joseph who is now a partner in the business. "There was an ice box with big blocks of ice."

The maket had three teams of horses and buggies to deliver to homes in San Rafael and the Ross Valley. People in the Ross Valley had maids and butlers and Filipino and Chinese cooks, Soldavini said.

"Soup bones used to be a big thing in those days, because they didn't have canned soup," he commented. "The first thing in the morning, they would cut beef shank for soup."

"I THINK THE flavor used to be better. Now everything comes in a bag," Soldavini said.

The meat sold was much the same as today, he said. "There was a lot of poultry, a lot of veal and a lot of beef. Hamburger used to be two pounds for a quarter."

As far back as Soldavini can remember, turkey has always been the king at the meat market at Thanksgiving time — and still is. "We always cut our beef and veal orders at Thanksgiving time," he says, "because we knew what the people would buy would be turkey." But the turkeys that reached the market in the earlier years were not the eviscerated, prepared birds of today. Most of the preparation had to be done by the market owners and employees.

SOLDAVINI SAID the old fashioned chopping block is still at the market. "I'm trying to sell the darn thing."

The days of home deliveries were numbered after World War II and ended about five years ago because "it was too costly," Soldavini said.

At first the market used wagons and then there were Model A Fords. "I remember we would load up the Model A about five times a day," he said. "We had big straw baskets we would load up."

There were a lot of charge accounts in the past, he said. "About half the business was charge and the bills would go out every month."

ALL WASN'T work, however, he recalled. Once a year, on a Wednesday, there would be a "butcher's day," when all the meat markets would close and have a mammoth steak barbecue at the old Fairfax Park.

County and city offices would close so employees could "get out to it," and about 2,000 thick New York steaks would be barbecued.

There also were picnics at McNear's Beach where beef would be buried underground and cooked with hot coals, he reported.

A FULL STAFF was on duty at West End Market in the 1930s before supermarkets really arrived on the scene to push many small markets out of existance. From left to right they are Raymond Soldavini, Joseph Soldavini, co-founder, Adele Langlamet, the late Frank Soldavini, co-founder, and the late Vic Brisson.

THE WEST END MARKET expanded in the early 1940s by adding a grocery department that featured gourmet items. It was manned here by the late Frank Soldavini, left, and Norman Soldavini. It was the Thanksgiving holiday season, and then, as it has been throughout the market's long history, turkey was the best-selling meat as indicated by the sign on the back wall. The groceries line was later abandoned by the firm and the business reverted to being strictly a meat market as it is today.

ket in San Anselmo, have been partners in the market for four years.

BEFORE THAT Soldavini was a partner with his father for 18 years, and had worked in the market since a youth.

Just before World War II, the market was expanded to include a grocery department, but that eventually was dropped. "We still have a few gourmet items along one wall, Soldavini said.

"We still have several customers dealing with the store who have been coming in for 40 to 50 years," Soldavini said.

One of the things that mark the West End Market "is the way we fix our meats," he said. "They're not just thrown in the counter, the counter is decorated with fresh parsley."

THE MARKET receives its beef from Idaho and Nebraska, pork from Kansas, lamb from Nevada and "veal locally," he said.

"We're one of the few that age our meat. It's not put out fresh. Beef should be aged two or three weeks from the time it is killed."

Another difference is that the market still uses its ammonia refrigeration plant. It's more expensive, Soldavini said, but it provides "more of a dry cold and doesn't lend a dampness to the meat."

The markt is "well-known" to oldtimers and people "still want quality meat," he concluded with discernible pride.

Jack MacPhee Has A Dream — A Sports Complex For Marinites

By RALPH CHATOIAN

Jack MacPhee is a man who has been trying unsuccessfully for 15 years to warm Marin County residents to his idea of a recreation and sports complex.

MacPhee, of San Rafael, has not completely thrown in the towel, but his hopes have plunged to an all-time low.

What MacPhee would like to see is a single center that would encompass facilities for sports, social activities and recreation. Two years ago MacPhee got together with the Marin Sertoma Club with the objective to develop such a center, but the project fell through because of insufficient funds.

It was to be financed on a donation basis, and the donations simply were not there.

"THE COMMUNITY just doesn't want this," said MacPhee, "but I think the community is wrong. Kids today don't have anything to do when they graduate from high school. There just aren't any facilities available to them. And it really is a shame."

MacPhee, 46, was appointed to the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Commission to fill a vacancy last August, and he definitely has the qualifications and the interest for such a post.

A graduate of Tamalpais High School and Stanford University, MacPhee is founder of the Marvel Athletic Club for weightlifters and boxers. The club is now, in MacPhee's own words, "in hibernation."

MacPhee, secretary-treasurer of J.G. MacPhee Co. of San Rafael — wholesale factory distributors of equipment, tools and supplies — doesn't have the time he used to have for sports and recreation with the growing pressures of the family business.

"The competition is really something, what with all the bigger wholesale companies in the area," he noted. I've been working six and seven days a week."

THE DIMINUTIVE MacPhee went from 105 pounds to 150 by lifting weights after being introduced to the sport by a friend at Stanford University. After graduation from Stanford he went into business with a commercial gymnasium in San Rafael, but it folded in 1955 leaving MacPhee with a garage full of equipment at the home of his parents, 307 H Street, San Rafael.

Within the next few days boys from the neighborhood started dropping by to use the equipment. That was the start of the Marvel Athletic Club.

The Marvel A.C. was headquartered at his parents' home for two years and moved first to a friend's home near San Rafael High School, then to a cold and drafty concessions building at Albert Park, and finally to the home that MacPhee purchased 11 years ago at 60 Wood Street. MacPhee was president, vice president, secretary and treasurer for the club located in his basement. It remained active until two years ago.

DURING THE club's heyday, it was one of the best weightlifting clubs on the West Coast. The Marvel A.C. won the Pacific Coast title two times, the teen-age national championship once, and Northern California championships seven times.

The equipment is still at his home, and boys still come over to use it, but just for recreation, not for formal team training.

MacPhee has been helping his father run the family wholesale business in San Rafael. John G. MacPhee is 83 but still works regular hours at the business and gets in a round or two of golf a week.

"We would be able to have kids in Marin County reach the Olympics if we had the facilities where they work out," MacPhee argues. "We don't have an Olympic-size pool in the county and we have nothing in the way of facilities for other Olympic events.

"IF AN ATHLETE wants to develop his Olympic skills, he has to go out of the county," he delcared.

MacPhee also feels that the trend of living is changing, in that more persons are living in apartments and don't have the space for their own recreational pursuits.

"There has to be an activity center for these people," he argues.

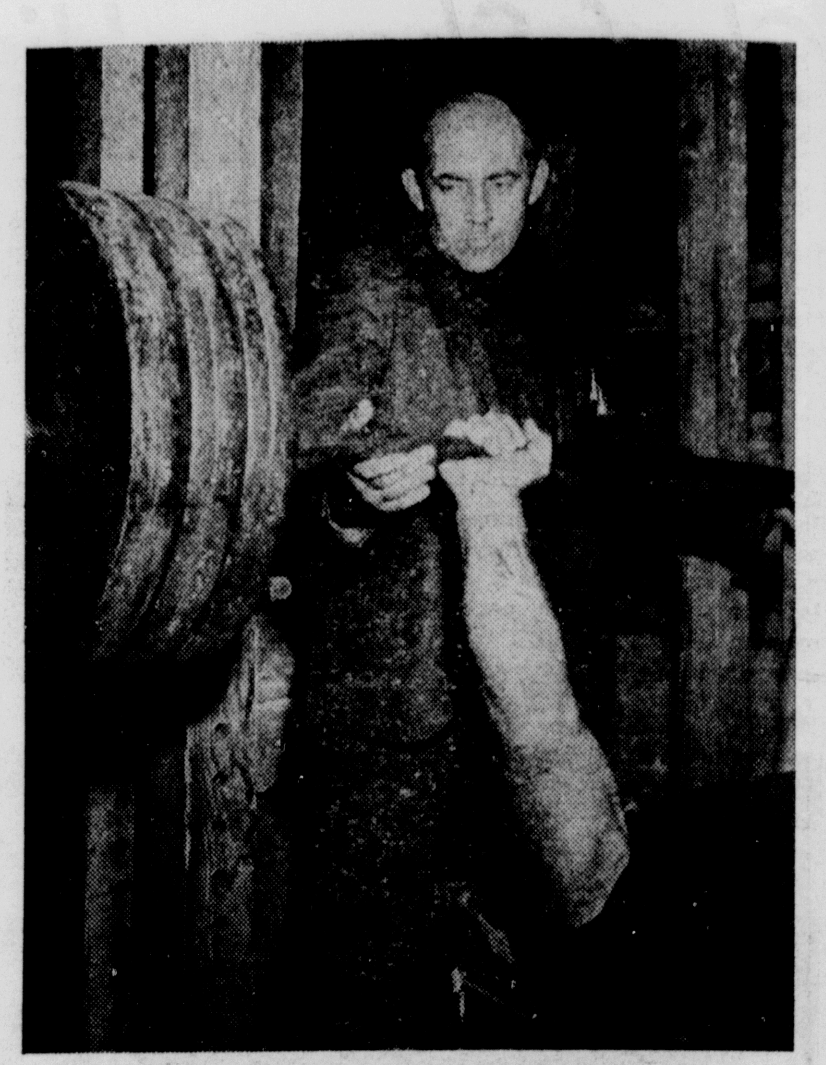
"We can't leave it up to the kids — letting them find their own way. The adults of the community should get together to push for sound recreational facilities," he said.

Would MacPhee go for a scaled-down version of his recreational complex idea?

"THAT WOULD be wrong," he said. "We need enough kinds of activities that would appeal to all kinds of people. There must be enough athletic facilities to cover all sports such as tennis, swimming, boxing, weightlifting, handball and so forth.

"People have been trying to get something like this in Marin County for 35 years. It's nothing new."

But he admits he wonders if it will ever happen.



IN THE BASEMENT gymnasium at his San Rafael home Jack MacPhee checks the poundage being hoisted by one of the muscular weightlifters who work out there. MacPhee developed an enthusiasm for weightlifting as a Stanford University student and for a number of years was the sparkplug of the Marvel Athletic Club which twice won the Pacific Coast weightlifting title and once captured the national teen-age championship.

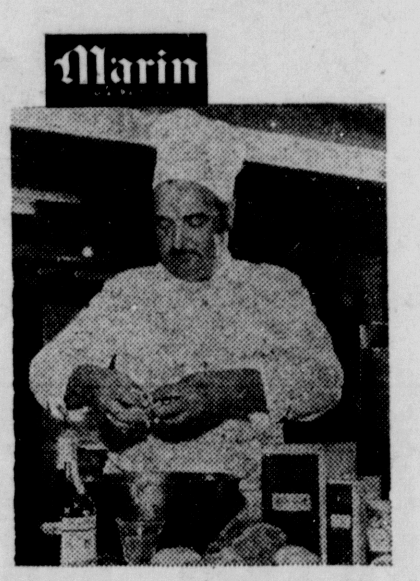
COVER PHOTO

THERE must be more to the stuffing for the holiday turkey than just seasoned bread crumbs, believes Pierre Giavina, head chef and partner in San Rafael's Dominic's Harbor Restaurant. And so, with ingredients before him, he prepares some of the meat dressing featured with the Thanksgiving bird on the Dominic menu. Chef Giavina shares his much prized recipe for the dressing with Marin Magazine readers on this page.

(Independent-Journal photo by Jim Kean)



Pierre Giavina's Meat Dressing Is Perfect For The Holiday Table

And, in the opinion of Pierre Giavina, head chef and partner in Dominic's Harbor Restaurant at 507 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, the dressing must be something far more than the slightly seasoned bread crumbs for which some cooks settle.

Giavina, who has studied and worked in some of Europe's finest hotels and restaurants and who just recently became a partner at Dominic's, has his own seasoned meat stuffing for the holiday turkey that he says is deserving of equal billing with the king of birds it complements.

IT IS, HE adds, a recipe he learned as a young man during his early training as a chef at the National Hotel in Montreux, Switzerland.

It is the dressing that diners will be enjoying at Dominic's this Thursday.

And, flush with the spirit of the holidays, Chef Giavina is sharing it with Marin Magazine readers so that they, too, can enjoy it, if they choose to dine in their homes Thanksgiving Day.

Here are Giavina's ingredients and proportions for a medium-sized turkey:

Eight ounces of pork.
Four ounces of fat.
Six ounces of veal.
Two slices of lean bacon.
Four slices of white bread.
One tablespoon of chopped onions.
One tablespoon of chopped fresh parsley.
One tablespoon of chopped celery.
One cup of whipping cream.
Two eggs.
One ounce of cognac.
One-half tablespoon of thyme.
One-fourth tablespoon of allspice.
One-fourth tablespoon of Italian herbs.
Salt and pepper.

THE BREAD and cream are placed in a large bowl and allowed to soak. The veal, pork and fat are ground or minced, and blended together with the pre-soaked bread. Then add the celery, onions, parsley, spices, salt and pepper to the mixture, and stir well. Dice and fry the bacon in a pan until it is crisp, and then pour it into the stuffing. Add the eggs and cognac and mix in well. The stuffing is then ready to go into the turkey.

And, says Giavina, you have a dressing that might well steal the show from all the other delicacies on your Thanksgiving Day table.

SHARON MAZZA submits to her taste test the bread crumbs that have been given his own special seasoning for his turkey stuffing by Pierre Giavina at Dominic's. The chef anxiously awaits her verdict, before proceeding with the recipe that he learned as a young man during his early training in the culinary arts in Montreux, Switzerland.

IN ITS HEYDAY as a railroad terminal and as a ferryboat center for commuters, downtown Sausalito was usually the scene of bustling activity with heavy vehicular and foot traffic. It is still a busy place today, although much of the traffic is likely to be provided by tourists attracted to the charming bayside town. At the time the early photograph above was taken, the Village Fair, the colorful shopping complex, was yet to make its appearance on the wooded hillside. But prospering business places already lined Bridgeway, capitalizing upon the trade of the residents from the hillside and from Old Sausalito, as well as from the commuter traffic through the town.

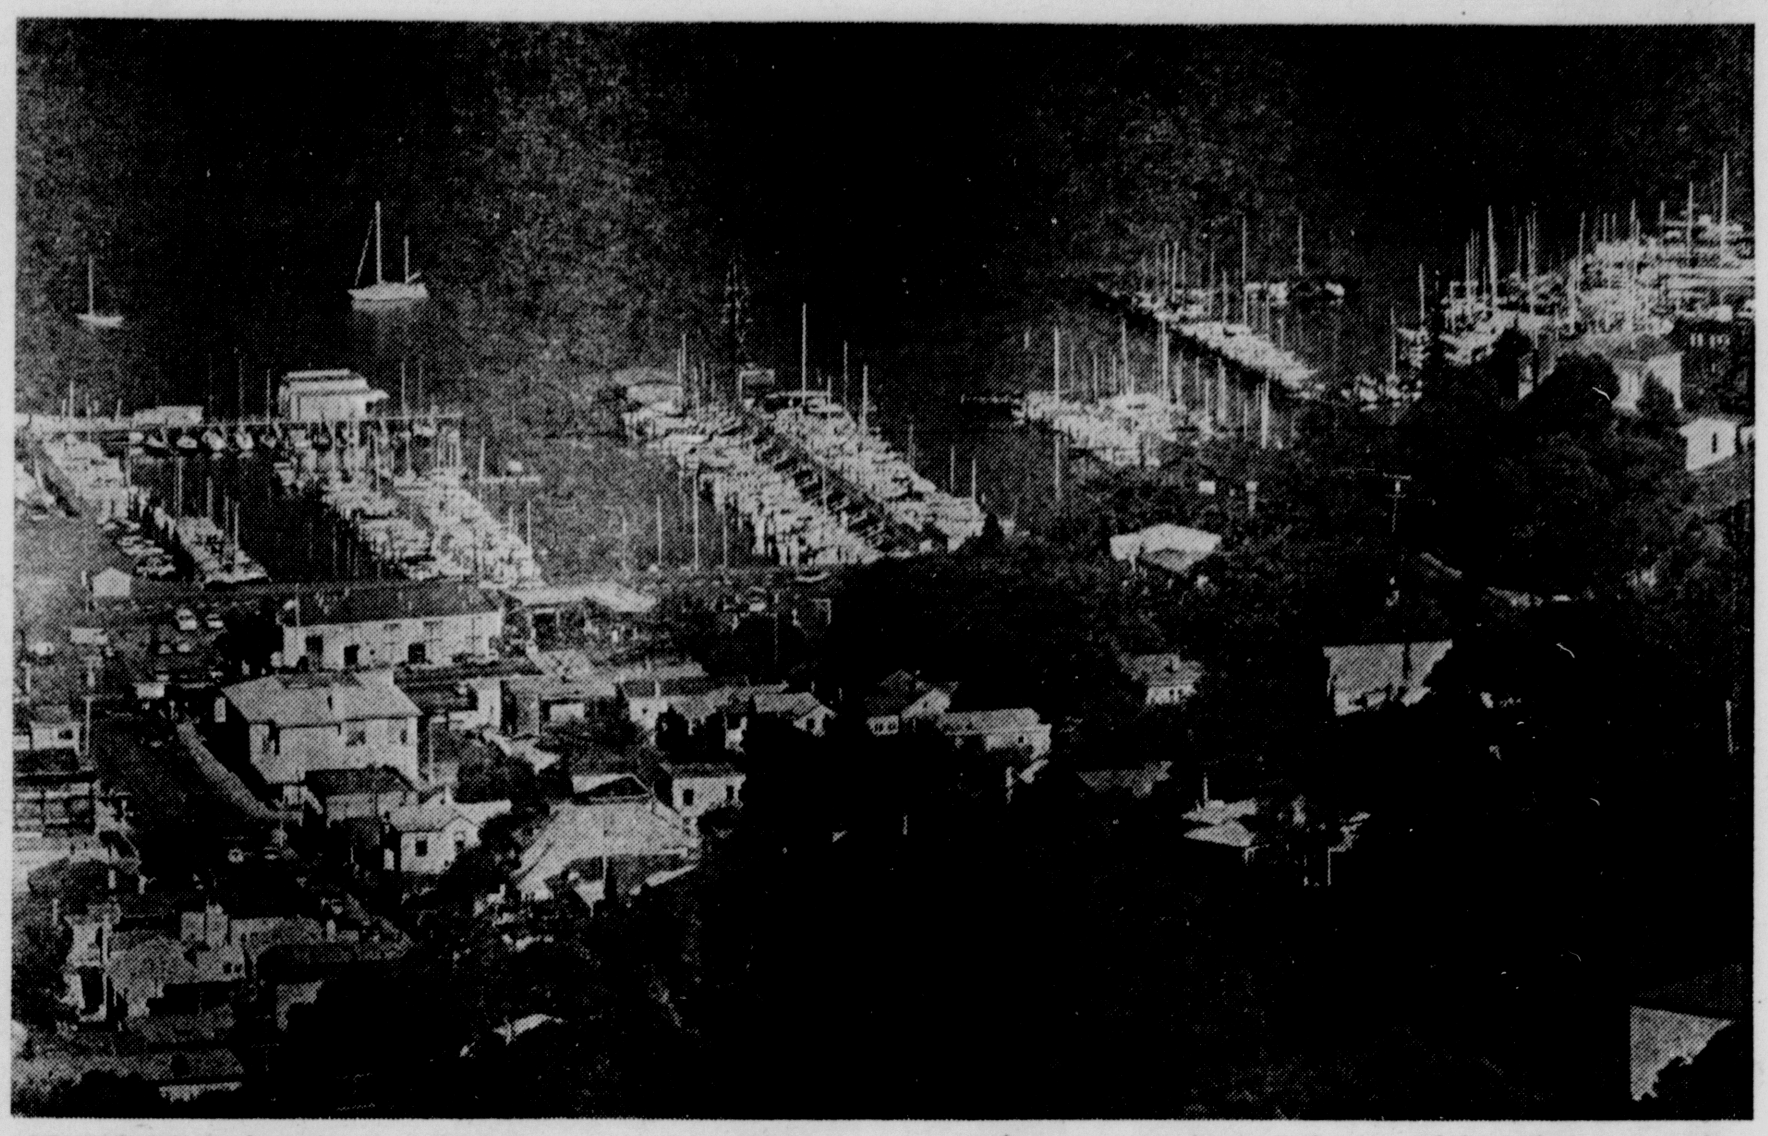
Sausalito: Its State Of A City Report—

Past, Present And Future

(Editor's Note: This is another in the series of "state of the city" reports on Marin municipalities that have been appearing weekly in the Independent-Journal's Marin Magazine. The reports were originally prepared by officials of the municipalities for publication in the I-J's special progress edition, but failed to make that issue for reasons of space. The report below on Sausalito was prepared by that city's mayor, Alexander Imlay, and covers the history, progress and future prospects of that municipality.)



LOOKING DOWN from the wooded hillside, one views the Old Town or southern sector of Sausalito, and beyond it the boat harbor and waters of the bay that have played such important roles in the city's past and present, and which will continue to exercise a strong influence upon the community's future. Today most of the craft that moor along the Sausalito waterfront are pleasure craft, although it continues to serve as headquarters for a small fishing fleet.

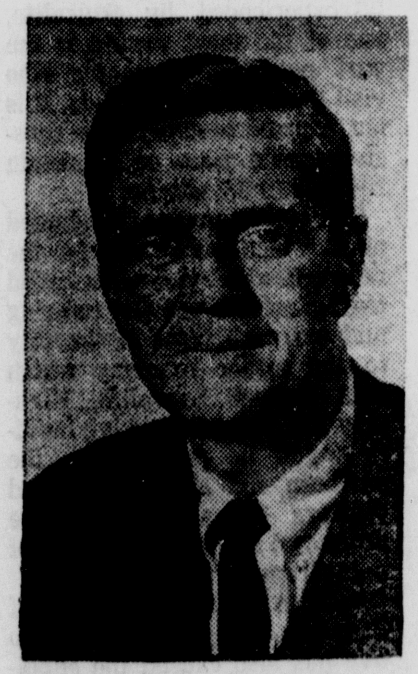
By ALEXANDER IMLAY

The history of Sausalito is tied directly to the Gold Rush era of San Francisco.

During that period, San Francisco experienced substantial population growth. With increasing numbers of people came the need for increasing public services, one of which was an adequate water supply. Located at the tip of the peninsula, San Francisco did not enjoy natural lakes or streams to draw upon for a water supply, but Sausalito a short distance away across the Bay was recognized for its abundance of natural springs.

For many years, boats plied between San Francisco and Sausalito carrying full casks of water to San Francisco for the domestic demands.

DURING THE 1870s the Sausalito Land and Ferry Co. secured vast holdings in Sausalito, subdivided the land and offered it for sale. To lure prospective purchasers to Sausalito, it was necessary to provide a means of transportation. Accordingly a small boat was constructed named the Princess. It carried prospective purchasers who soon became residents of the area to the foot of a primitive roadway which is now called Princess Street, named after the original boat.



MAYOR Alexander Imlay, an attorney, was appointed to the Sausalito City Council in 1964, elected to a full term in 1968, and chosen as mayor in 1970 after serving as vice mayor for two years. He prepared the "state of the city" report appearing on these pages with the assistance of City Mgr. Albert R. St. Cyr and other city officials.

Gradually a small colony of summer homes nestled in the Sausalito hills was developed. The protected nature of the Sausalito waterfront lent itself admirably to the development of ship-building facilities and with it came the fishing fleets which plied the Bay and the Pacific Ocean.

During the 1880s and 1890s the majority of the development occurred within the south portion of the Sausalito community, an area which is still today called Old Town. During the 1890s a railroad was completed between Sausalito and Eureka to tap the vast reaches of timber in Northern California.

With the advent of the railroad a whole new realm of employment was created and Sausalito rapidly became the home for hundreds employed in the transportation field.

During the same period, the Southern Marin County area continued to develop as a second home area catering to the wealthy from San Francisco. After the turn of the century the rail network was expanded to the nearby communities of Mill Valley, Ross, Larkspur, Manor, Corte Madera, San Anselmo, Fairfax and San Rafael and to the recreational areas in the Russian River area. To reach these areas residents and visitors alike had to pass through Sausalito.

Increasing numbers of people required the addition of more and more ferryboats whereby firming Sausalito's position as a transportation hub.

THE DOWNTOWN Sausalito area developed during this period and a substantial number of commercial buildings were developed. Many still remain today.

By the 1920s several thousand people resided within the Old Town area and the hill area behind the central business district. During the mid '20s the automobile had become commonplace in Sausalito and to accommodate that form of transportation, additional ferryboat service was added for the transportation of cars. Old-timers recall massive traffic jams extending from Sausalito all the way to Corte Madera on summer weekends when motorists would patiently await their turn on the next boat back to San Francisco. Caledonia Street just west of Bridgeway was then the principal street in that portion of Sausalito and a large number of stores were built on that street. They catered both to the residents of the area on the hills to the west and to the visitors on weekends.

Continual increases in auto travel brought pressures for a bridge across the Golden Gate. The dream was realized in the late 1930s and Sausalito returned to a more tranquil state.

A PICTURESQUE shopping district, at left, of boutiques, specialty shops and fine restaurants, charms visitors to downtown Sausalito. So much so, in fact, that on fine weather weekends, when thousands pour into the village center to enjoy its Victorian atmosphere, the traffic can create jams of serious proportions. Even on week days, as pictured here, the sidewalks and roadway of Bridgeway are busy with foot and vehicular traffic. But to the residents of Sausalito, their city remains, first and foremost, a beautiful place in which to live, in homes that range from the old Victorian dwellings of Old Town to handsome contemporary architecture such as the dwellings pictured on the right located along Spencer Avenue. Today Sausalito's population exceeds 6,000, with many of them commuting to and from San Francisco for their work.

The construction of the Bridge provided strong competition with the commuter railroads and ferryboats and by the early '40s these services were abandoned.

THE ADVENT of World War II brought the development of a major shipbuilding facility in the northern portion of Sausalito. Originally called Manzanita, the area was renamed Marinship. Shipbuilding activity boomed between 1942 and 1945. The cessation of hostilities prompted the closure of the shipyards and again Sausalito returned to a more tranquil state.

Little change occurred in Sausalito between 1945 and the mid '50s. However with increasing leisure time and due to the unique characteristics of the community; e.g. the abrupt meeting of land with water, the beautiful vistas across the Bay to San Francisco, the Victorian nature of the downtown area, the sheltered harbor for pleasure craft; Sausalito was "discovered" by tourists and visitors and since that time the downtown area has been transformed from a residential shopping area to a diversified array of specialty shops and boutiques catering to the whims and fancies of both visitor and resident alike.

Ironically the district which constructed the Golden Gate Bridge, in an effort to reduce traffic across the Golden Gate Bridge, has reinstituted ferryboat service between San Francisco and Sausalito. Residents are again afforded the opportunity to commute by boat to their offices and stores in San Francisco and visitors are afforded the opportunity to visit Sausalito without concern for parking and congestion.

TODAY, SAUSALITO is the home for 6,159 persons. Due to its close proximity to San Francisco, many Sausalitans are employed across the Bay, in professional positions. There is no industry per se in Sausalito except for the stores and shops which cater to visitors. In recent years, however, a growing trend has been the relocation of smaller professional firms engaged in such diverse fields as planning, architecture, landscape architecture and law to Sausalito.

LOCATION ALONG or a view of the Sausalito shoreline has always been a prime factor in Sausalito's development, as indicated by this early-day photograph of boats in the water, hotels and other structures along the shore, and homes perched upon the hillside for the vista of the bay.

Among the problems presently experienced by Sausalito, one of the most vexing is the vast numbers of people who visit the area on weekends. It is not unusual to experience massive traffic jams on the main routes into the village.

The city has recently adopted plans which would call for the redirection of visitor oriented traffic away from the twisting and narrow streets of the City to the major roadway which cuts through Sausalito, Highway 101. A large parking facility would be provided in the northern end of the City and visitors transported to the downtown area on some form of mass transit shuttle vehicle.

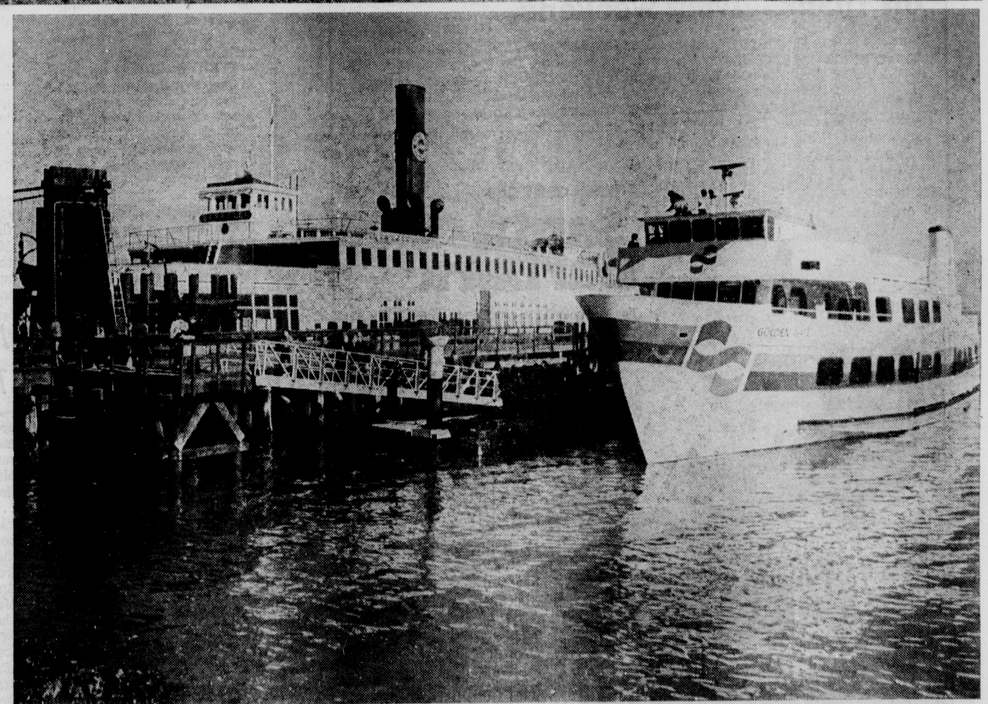
THE ATTRACTIVENESS of Sausalito as a place in which to live has also caused the subdivision and development of many privately owned open areas. The preservation of open space areas for public use and enjoyment is extremely costly, both from the standpoint of acquisition and maintenance. Nevertheless, Sausalito boasts some 27 park and recreational areas and several more are being planned.

Additionally, our city provides most municipal services including police and fire. The cost of providing these services continues to increase. In 1960, the city's budget was $388,000 and the budget for 1971-72 is $1,753,622. The city's assessed valuation in 1960-61 was $12,443,975. The assessed valuation for 1971-72 is $38,067,689.

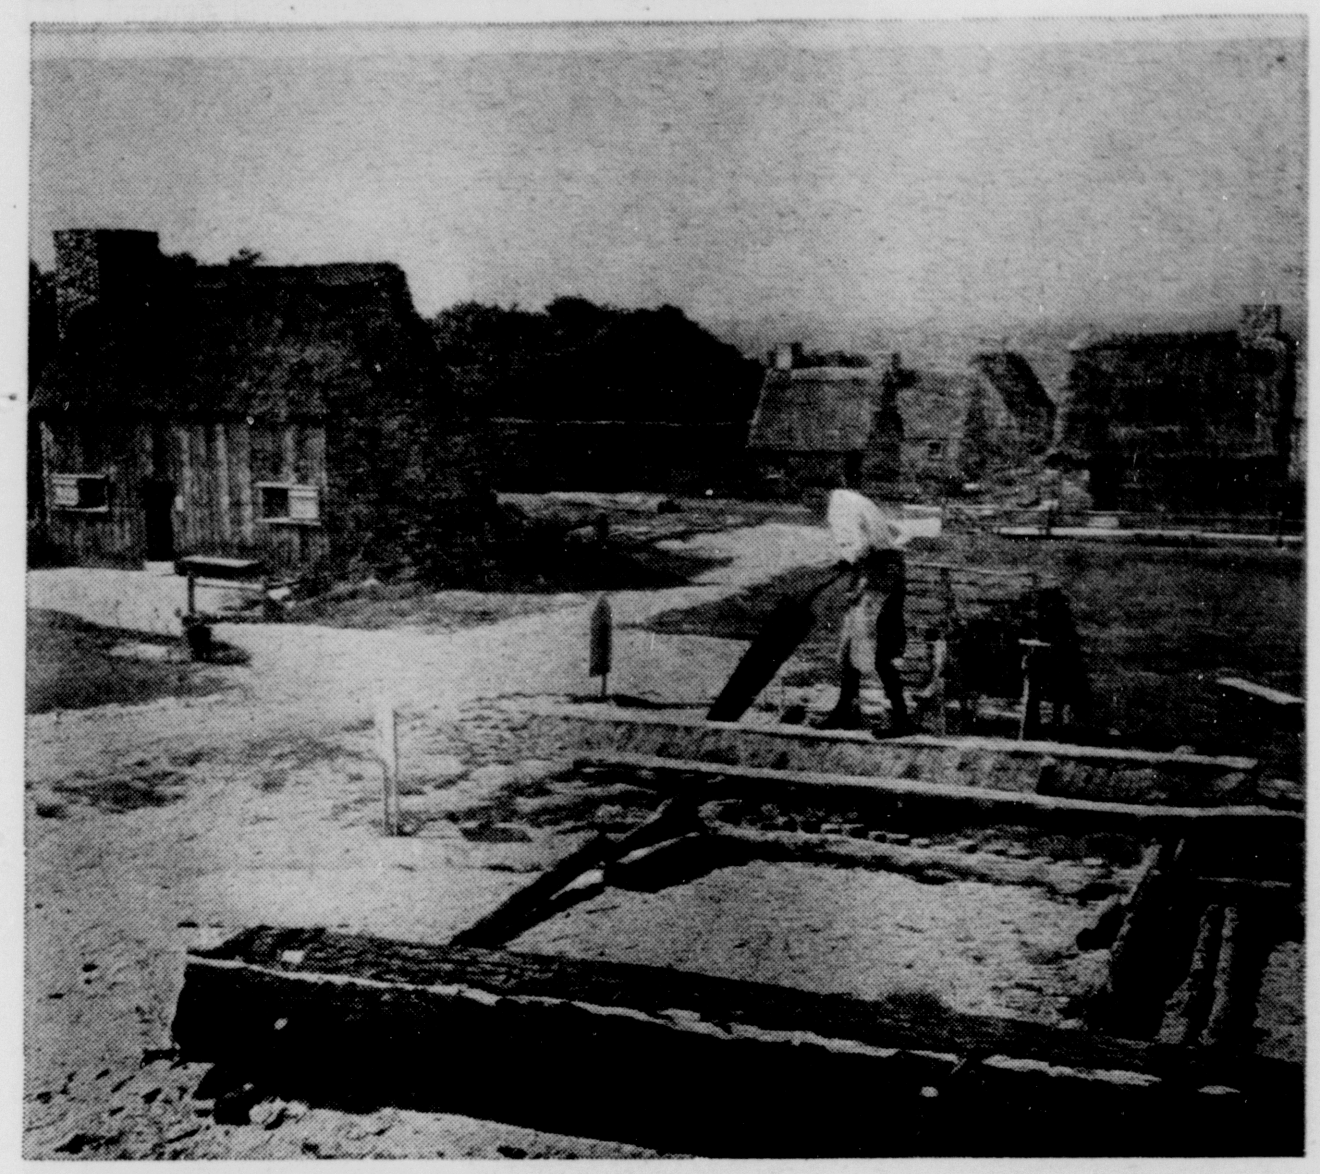
A comparison of these figures will indicate that expenses have been increasing at a rate of four and a half times while the assessed valuation has been increasing at a rate of three times. The property tax has therefore not been responsive to the increasing cost of municipal services and the demands for more and better services. As a result of insufficient yields and basic inequities of the property tax, the search is on for other sources of revenues which will be more responsive to inflation and additional service demands, and at the same time provide more equity in taxation.

THIS SEARCH is not restricted to local units of government but to all levels of government.

If more responsive and more equitable revenue sources are not found, I believe that future budgets will have to be balanced by decreasing the service levels which are currently being provided.



FERRYBOATS HAVE been a colorful part of Sausalito's history. And they remain very much a part of its life today. The venerable old Berkeley, at left, is anchored on the shore as a floating store. But the sleek new Golden Gate, at right, continues the longstanding ferry service of transporting passengers to and from San Francisco under Golden Gate Bridge District auspices.



IT WAS THE Pilgrim Fathers who started this whole thing of a Thanksgiving Day observance. While the celebration has remained, its character has changed along with the way-of-life of the American people. But one place where a relatively authentic depiction of the colonial culture still remains is Plymouth Plantation at Plymouth, Mass. In a recreated Pilgrim village, the old skills and crafts are still demonstrated. All of Massachusetts is one large museum of American history.

Ruins Of Yucatan Awe The Visitors

By SYD ALBRIGHT

"Don't call them ruins!" says Ricardo Guiterrez, head of Merida Travel Service, when talking about the famous Mayan and Toltec cities of Mexico's Yucatan, now partially restored.

"How can you say 'ruins' to a civilization that built these magnificent cities?"

To Ricardo Guiterrez, they are not ruins; they are his "children" and he's proud of them as a new father.

But his "children" are a thousand years old. From stone, the Mayans built great palaces, stately courtyards, towering pyramids and solemn temples. They were followed by the Toltecs who built over the Mayan structures and sacrificed their people to the gods.

THE GREATEST of these monuments to civilizations long gone are at Uxmal and Chichen Itza, not far from Merida.

The well-kept road from Merida snakes through fields of spiney agave plants, source of sisal fibre, then across long weary miles of relatively flat lands covered with dense brush. Mayan villages where the people speak the tongue of their forefathers flash by.

"Mishabel?" substitutes for the Spanish "como esta usted?" — how are you? And the mud-and-reed huts with thatched roofs are little changed from the ninth century.

Suddenly, above the brush ahead appears the top of the Great Pyramid of Uxmal, then the House of the Governors, Nunnery Quadrangle, Temple of the Magician and other structures. Mayan wall carvings tell of life and death, fertility and the gods.

EVERYWHERE IS the motif of Quetzalcoatl, the serpent god.

Swallows flutter out of the gloom of ancient rooms, like bats at sunset. A three-foot iguana perches in a stone alcove overlooking the square dominated by a huge stone phallus.

The same swallows swoop across the top of the swimming pool gulping in water at the Hotel Hacienda Uxmal a half-mile away. The lush trees and bright tropical flowers around this converted hacienda make it an oasis in a generally drab and dry landscape.

Chichen Itza is different. It's bigger, more impressive and its stone carvings more readily tell the story of its people. Heavy in the mood of the place is the knowledge that untold thousands died here — human sacrifices to the gods; most giving their lives willingly.

DOMINATING THE scene is the Temple of Kukulkan, a well-restored pyramid with a Mayan substructure that contains the famed Red Jaguar Throne, inset with discs of jade. A steep clausterphobiac stone stairway deep within the pyramid leads to it.

"These ancient cities are all the more remarkable because they were built without the use of the wheel," explains Luis Pasquel, vice president for Western Airlines in Mexico. "The Mayans had the wheel but it was the symbol of the sun. Its use as a wheel would have been a sacrilege."

Those braving the steep climb up the outside stairs of Kukulkan find a commanding view of the entire countryside. And they experience the dramatic realization that from that very vantage point, the high priests of the Toltecs carved out human hearts and rolled the bodies down the steps to the polulace below.

A QUARTER OF a mile distant — down the Sacred Way — is a deep waterhole called the Well of Sacrifice. It was there that others were adorned with jewelry and fine clothes before being offered to the rain god below.

These chilling thoughts must be kept in perspective with the knowledge that those sacrificed believed they would achieve everlasting life in another world.

Another of the great structures of Chichen Itza is the stone Ball Court. Carvings on the walls depict the game once played there. Figures reveal that two teams of seven players each competed to put a rubber ball through a stone ring high up the wall of the court, without the use of hands. (It was so difficult, games often lasted a week.)

The captain of the winning team is shown being rewarded with eternal life by having his head cut off by the losing captain!

IN MARKED contrast to these grim customs is the delicacy and sophistication of the wall carvings and the stories they tell.

The ancient people knew of microbes, of the evolution of life from primitive creatures to man; of astronomy — as seen in the well-preserved Observatory nearby — and they knew of acoustics and physics.

Where did the Mayans and Toltecs go?

"We're not sure what happened to them," says Ricardo Guiterrez. "There were many thousands of them at one time. Maybe the climate changed and the waters dried up. Game disappeared and there was famine, disease and war . . ."

No Welcome Mat For The Litterbug

By MURRAY J. BROWN

Americans planning to travel this winter, take warning: litterbugs are persona non grata overseas as well as at home.

And authorities everywhere are cracking down hard on the careless or unthinking litterers as part of the overall battle against pollution. Penalties range from heavy fines to possible jail sentences.

IN ENGLAND, for example, persons who litter in public can be fined up to 10 pounds sterling or about $25 at this writing. The English are even tougher on "dumping or abandoning" things, with fines ranging from up to 100 pounds sterling (about $250) for a first conviction to a 200-pound fine (about $500) and three months in jail, or both for subsequent convictions.

On the other side of the world, litter-prone Americans in Japan may run afoul of a law that prohibits "dumping or heaping refuse or filth in a conspicuous place in scenic zones." The fine can run as high as 2,000 yen.

Of course, 2,000 yen may be only about $6 in U.S. money but suppose the traveler is picked up for violating article 43 of the Japanese Road Law. That one prohibits any act of "soiling a road without permission." The article does not define "soiling" but conviction could cost up to one year in prison and a 30,000 yen (around $85) fine.

THESE ARE some of the facts unearthed by Keep America Beautiful Inc., the national anti-litter organization in the United States, in comparing notes with its counterparts overseas in search of ways to combat litterbugs.

Allen H. Seed, Jr., executive vice president of the non-profit KAB, said the oldest anti-litter law reported in the informal survey goes back more than 500 years. It was an ordinance enacted in 1446 by the city fathers of Antwerp, Belgium, ordering all citizens who kept pigs within its walls to get rid of them in 14 days "because pigs dig into litter and spread it everywhere."

Seed noted that some of the strongest, as well as strangest, litter prevention techniques are to be found in the Far East. The Nationalist Chinese island of Taiwan punishes littering and air pollution with penalties ranging from heavy fines to life imprisonment.

IN CEYLON, the preventive scheme is apt to be more psychological, he said. For instance, a sign posted at the entrance to the Pleasant Gardens of Ceylon says:

"If you with litter will disgrace
And spoil the beauty of this place
May indigestion rack your chest
And ants invade your pants and vest."

There is no report on whether the curse works on the despoilers of the scenery.

Seed said he was surprised to learn that Switzerland, where some beautiful Alpine lakes already have a pollution problem, has no national anti-litter law. However, officials told him that individual Swiss municipalities do prohibit what is called "wild deposits" of trash.

The Travel Pages

THERE ARE anti-litter laws in most other European countries and in our northerly neighbor Canada. Be especially alert in Ontario and Manitoba where not only stiff fines can be levied for conviction of littering but drivers' licenses can be suspended.

Heavy fines and jail sentences also face litterbugs in New Brunswick.

And if you plan to travel in the United States, KAB advises that all 50 states, as well as most local communities, have anti-littering laws.

Littering could cost you time and money.

Episodes In History

THE AMERICAN WEST edited by Raymond Friday Locke; Hawthorn, 255 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

"The American West" is part of Hawthorn Books' new The Mankind Series of Great Adventures in History edited by Raymond Friday Locke.

The books are collections of essays and articles upon scattered facets of history, somewhat less voluminous than are most such compendiums. They tend to be pieces that detail an event or episode, or which offer a minority viewpoint differing from the accepted historical version of an incident or a personality. Their common source is the publication Mankind Magazine.

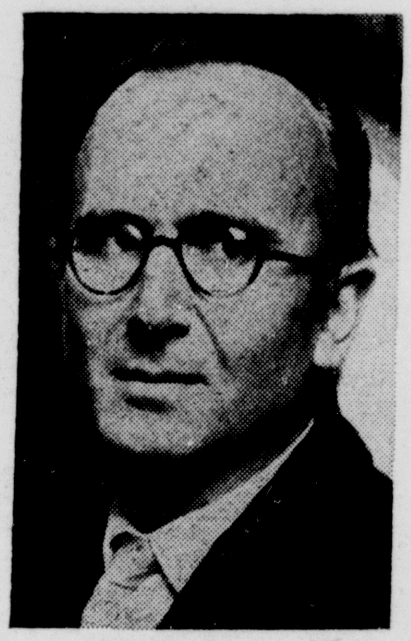
Thus "The American West" includes Jake Barnes' "A New Look at the Outlaws of the Old West," denouncing Jesse James as "a cold-blooded killer," but, more surprisingly, giving Billy the Kid a much better press, and ranking Ann Bassett well above the infamous, and homely, Calamity Jane as an outlaw queen. Kent L. Steckmesser paints James as a much more daring figure in his "America's Robin Hood," also included in the collection. Other articles in the book range from Palmer Orr's "The Agony at the Alamo" to Robert Hardy Andrews' study of Frederick Remington, and vary rather widely in their value.

The other books in the new series are "The Birth of America," most noteworthy for Andrews' unusual and sensitive depiction of Benedict Arnold, and for the study of the generally forgotten and volatile John Adams in the presidency by the same busy writer; "The American Indian" with pieces by Locke, Ronald Leal, Norman Wiltsey and others; and "The Human Side of History", the liveliest of the four, delving into such offbeat and diverse subjects as valentines, college football, prehistoric disease, cosmetics and television.

The series, it is clear, is not aimed at recording great writing or exceptional historical research. It is quite baldly a bid for a popular readership. As such, most of it is entertaining, if not always totally trustworthy. It suffices as amusement, and even as useful supplementary reading to more reliable texts. It should not, however, be regarded as a primary source of serious historical information. Nor, apparently, is it so intended.

Nicholas Mosley's Impressionist Novel

NATALIE NATALIA by Nicholas Mosley, Coward, McCann and Geoghegan, 316 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Alice Dalbey.



NICHOLAS MOSLEY
Avant garde darling

Natalie Natalia is a two-faced, two-minded woman. Her lover is an expert on Africa and also a member of Parliament who hopes to escape the hypocrisy of politics.

His difficult career and frustrating love affair with Natalie (he is married to a long-suffering, perfect wife) force him into a "nervous breakdown" — a long drawn-out session of soul-searching that leads to a semi-solution but not to the peace with God which he is seeking.

The confused, self-centered characters in this novel are the creations of Nicholas Mosley (Lord Ravensdale) and few of them are believable — but they aren't meant to be. Rather, they are unhappy doubles for today's everyman and everywoman.

Mosley's protagonist speaks in the first person and, much of the time, in simple sentences that become repetitive and boring, despite the symbolism they illuminate.

But Mosley does have a poet's gift for phrasing. Of the lovers he says, "We groped beyond each other to some image of ourselves behind us." And of time they spent together, "We were by a sea with ruined pillars."

Sentences such as these make this highly impressionistic novel an occasional delight. Mosley, also author of "Accident" and "Impossible Object," is a current darling of avant garde critics; and, if you relish symbolism, introspection and world-weariness, you'll find his revelations about Natalie and her lover worth close attention.

LIONEL TIGER, left, and Robin Fox are two aptly-named young anthropologists who have co-authored "The Imperial Animal" advancing the thesis that human behavior is biologically programmed.

Man's Origins — And Their Impact

Two young anthropologists who admit their names have caused many jokes, have produced a book that highly polishes a train of thought that had its forebears in Robert Ardry's "African Genesis," Desmond Morris's "The Naked Ape" and other works.

The though pattern holds, in essence, that man's culture is molded by his biological wellsprings as a primate turned hunting animal. Tiger and Fox flatly deny that an infant is a "tabla rosa" that could be shaped to conform to any culture, however artificial. They contend the need to work, the need to hunt (in the savannah or at a corporate board table), the need for parenthood and other characteristics are part of man's "biogrammar," planted through long evolution.

In outlining this biogrammar, the two scholars predict a troubled road ahead for women's liberation movements, education and many other facets of a highly artificial society that also possessed several means to species suicide.

This reader found "The Imperial Animal" less sensationally argumentative than "The Naked Ape," partly because the ideas presented no longer are so novel. Neither does the book bear the drama of Ardry's works — Ardrys is a stage writer turned naturalist and anthropological historian.

But more than its forebears that I have read, "The Imperial Animal" offers a directional sign toward one possibility that mankind can know and so save itself.

The Typewriter That Tells The Facts Of After-Life

A WORLD BEYOND by Ruth Montgomery; Coward, McCann and Geoghegan, 210 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

"There is no heaven, hell, or purgatory, except of the soul's own making . . ."

So the psychic Arthur Ford supposedly communicated to the living after death through Ruth Montgomery via automatic writing.

"A World Beyond" is Miss Montgomery's record of her series of communications with Ford in which the medium supposedly revealed through her the facts of after-life.

Ford supposedly also brings us up to date on the present circumstances of such deceased personages as the Kennedy brothers, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Winston Churchill, Josef Stalin, Bishop James Pike and Napoleon Bonaparte.

Whether one accepts Miss Montgomery's claim to serve as a "relay" for messages from beyond as espoused in this and earlier books is a personal matter. Such acceptance isn't easy. But unquestionably, Ruth Montgomery does make with almost seriousness a fascinating presentation, including some Ford predictions for the future: Nixon's re-election in 1972, Jordan's absorption by Israel and Syria, Castro's fall in Cuba, a cancer cure breakthrough, and a major shift of the world's axis in the 1990s with drastic climatic reverses.

As for the book's fundamental topic, Miss Montgomery's typewriter, supposedly under Ford's control, wrote:

"The types who have the hardest adjustment to make in coming over here are those who either failed to believe in a life hereafter or were so totally unprepared that they will not try to adjust to the unexpected conditions."

About The Hang-Ups Of Writers

THE TENANTS by Bernard Malamud; Farrar, Straus and Giroux, 230 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Francis M. Dozier Jr.

When in a creative dry spell, a writer can always turn to the subject of a writer having problems writing.

Such must be the case here with Malamud. For added thrust, though, he writes of two writers writing. One is a Jewish recluse who has enjoyed some success; the other a crude but promising ghetto Black.

Think of the possibilities. After a tentative friendship formed by the two as the only dwellers of an apartment house, have them become intense rivals. How better to get more mileage out of the supposed schism between the two races?

More Satire From Hoppe On President And Issues

MR. NIXON and MY OTHER PROBLEMS by Arthur Hoppe; Chronicle Books, 226 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Francis M. Dozier Jr.

With election time only a year away, it's time for some resolute, and, what may well be, parting, shots at Nixon. A feature film deriding the President has recently screened in San Francisco and there is small doubt that other printed works are being readied, before Nixon may be left only to the historians.

Hoppe, of course, as a syndicated political columnist, has had almost daily opportunity to deal with Mr. Nixon and what his administration has wrought in his inimitably witty and lucid parables.

After lamenting the lack of anything truly funny about Nixon, some fatal flaw, as in other presidents, Hoppe then exhibits an even dozen of his best satirical efforts.

Those "other problems" confronting Hoppe, not surprisingly, come under the headings of the environment, modern living, sex, patriotism and the war. But the essay of the remaining 88 having the most impact is the famous anti-war piece "To Root Against Your Country." Since original publication, it has achieved singularity for its calculatedly resigned perversity of sentiment on the Vietnam involvement.

A Civilized Man Comments On Publishing And Authors

By DON KEOWN

"Civilized" is the adjective that comes first to mind in describing publisher and editor Cass Canfield after reading and enjoying his "Up and Down and Around."

"Civilized" in the sense that he is a refined, cultured and urbane raconteur who spins tales and offers opinions tht are amusing if hardly momentous.

His book is part autobiography, part a history of the publishing profession, part the story of Harper Brothers which became the publishing house of Harper and Row with which Canfield has been so long and so successfully associated, and part a presentation of the author's own ideas on books and their issuance.

Canfield himself emerges as a most decent and humanitarian-minded man, a liberal, but one more knowledgeable than perceptive, more a creature of intellect than of emotion.

Deliberately, it seems, he keeps both the tone and content of his book light so that it makes for pleasant, entertaining reading that does not tax the minds of his readers and might leave some of them thinking that Canfield has underestimated both himself and them, and might have extended himself a bit more in the writing of his book.

Still, it is a treat to share Canfield's recollections of the literary and other greats with whom he has been associated, fleeting though the impressions sometimes are.

CASS CANFIELD
An urbane raconteur

In the pages of the book appear the likes of Eleanor Roosevelt — "we were impressed, as was everyone who knew her well, with the quality and generosity of her character" —, Leon Trotsky, Adlai Stevenson, Sumner Welles, John Gunther, E. B. White, Thornton Wilder, James Thurber, Glenway Wescott, Svetlana Alliluyeva, Aldous Huxley, Edna St. Vincent Millay, George Bernard Shaw, Sinclair Lewis, Ludwig Bemelmans, Jacques-Yves Cousteau, Alice B. Toklas and many others.

Canfield selects and tells his anecdotes well. He gives a brief account of the sticky Harper-Kennedy confrontation over William Manchester's "The

UP AND DOWN AND AROUND by Cass Canfield; Harper's Magazine Press, 272 pages, $8.95.

Death of a President," includes episodes about his own involvement in Democratic Party politics and in the wartime government bureaucracy, and provides accounts of some of his travels.

His younger years, too, are accounted for, and these were pretty much the typically silly and pampered youth of the offspring of the well-to-do of his era. Young Canfield did, even then, exhibit some of the intellect that was to carry him to the top in publishing, and did demonstrate a propensity for adventure that has remained with him through the years and provides an interesting edge to his otherwise "cool" character. An around-the-world voyage and walk with another young man included some near-fantastic feats.

"I've had a good time," Canfield says of his life, and, indeed, it sounds as though he has.

As for his opinions on books and book publishing, they are, perhaps, not as deep as one might have hoped, but nonetheless provocative.

Throughout these disucssions runs one theme — the importance of keeping the controls for book publishing in the hands of bookmen — not accountants.

"Too many mergers have recently taken place, in my opinion," he writes, "for publishing firms are most profitable and contribute most when managed by men who know books, rather than by accountants, no matter how able."

Canfield remains basically the editor — a connoisseur of writing. These special talents he demonstrates when he selects as an example of prose of distinction a beautiful passage from the English novel "Precious Bane" by Mary Webb, published in 1926, that begins:

"For lambing time is the shepherd's trial. In the black of night, in the dead of the year, at goblin's time, he must be up and about by his lonesome. With mist like a shroud on him, and frosty winds like the chill of death, and snow wispering, and a shriek on this side of the forest and a howl on that side, the shepherd must be walking . . ."

Cass Canfield, it is clear, has made a substantial contribution to the enviable prestige Harper and Row enjoys in publishing and with book-lovers.

His own book constitutes another contribution on his part to the enjoyment and understanding of the written word. Whether Canfield might have extended himself further and delved deeper is a possible subject for debate. But we must be satisfied, at least for the time being, with what we have received.

One personal quibble: Although Harper and Row publishes the most impressive list of mysteries and suspense novels of any American house, Canfield makes not one mention of them, nor the fine craftsmen responsible for this excellent work. This seems to us a perpetuation of an unjustified and unfortunate bit of snobbism that has been with publishing and the literary cult too long.

JULIA AND DEREK PARKER, husband and wife of London, England, are journalists, lecturers and authors who have compiled "The Complete Astrologer" (McGraw-Hill, $14.95). Billed as "the most comprehensive guide to astrology ever published," the big, 255-page "coffee-table-size" book is profusely illustrated and includes a history of astrology as a science (or pseudo-science), an astronomy guide, biographies of the more famous astrologers, birth charts with interpretations, and an almost overwhelming array of astrological tables from which the knowledgeable supposedly can work out their own horoscopes. Disbelievers will be impressed, but hardly persuaded or interested sufficiently to invest $14.95. But for believers, "The Compleat Astrologer" will represent the last word in living by the zodiac. And unquestionably, belief and interest in astrology has zoomed in recent years.

INTEREST IN unidentified flying objects seems to have slackened sharply, but if such is not the case in your specific instance, you might be intrigued by Paris Flammonde's "The Age of Flying Saucers," subtitled "Notes on a Projected History of Unidentified Flying Objects."

"The golden age of the flying saucers is gone," admits the author, adding that it was an era marked not so much by the sightings of UFOs as by the public excitement such reports stirred and the general inclination to believe in them.

Now, he adds, even should the UFOs some day prove, indeed, to be inter-stellar vehicles, the finding would be anticlimactic.

The craze was "not merely mythic, but legendary — a tale told by romantics, full of hope and symbols, signifying fear." And the dream ended, "crushed in the vise of anti-dream, and science turned the screw."

In other words, when man himself could zoom and orbit about space, he ceased to need the dream of other creatures who could accomplish a feat seemingly denied to him.

But before he reaches that conclusion Flammonde provides an exhaustive record of the claimed sightings and the sometimes nearly hysterical excitement that accompanied such reports. He rejects outright none of the theories and proposes a couple of his own for consideration.

Flammonde is best known for a previous book that defended Jim Garrison's conspiracy theory in the John F. Kennedy killing, shortly before the New Orleans district attorney's case collapsed. Hawthorn Books is the publisher of "The Age of Flying Saucers" and the price is $8.95.

THE TITLE of George Sullivan's "The Complete Books of Autograph Collecting" (Dodd, Mead, $4.95) is by necessity a misnomer. It would be impossible to write and organize a truly "complete" book about an activity as diverse and as far-flung as autograph seeking, and this is a rather thin 154-page work. But the author has succeeded in packing a great deal of information and advice into those pages — how to obtain signatures, how to detect forgeries, how to establish the value of autographs, how to select your specialty, etc. There is a special chapter on presidential autographs. It is, no doubt, a helpful guide for the beginner. But, again, it is by no means a "complete" guide.

Sleuths & Suspense

There's a special kind of pleasure in recommending a promising new suspense novelist to fellow buffs of the genre.

"Promising," however, is not exactly the best description for June Thomson. With her first novel, "Not One of Us," this Englishwoman appears to have arrived upon the "who-done-it" scene with her talents already full-blown.

With extraordinary competency and sensitivity she spins her tale that begins with the discovery of a teen-age girl's body in the woods outside an Essex village. As her strangler the villagers suspect the strange young man who has been living a hermit-like existence in an isolated cottage, more because of his long hair, beard and iconoclastic ways than for any really substantial reason.

suspect, but still pursues the manhunt doggedly.

Mrs. Thomson's picture of English rural and village people and their parochial lives is memorable — compassionate yet honest. Even her denouement, while low-key and ironic, fits the mood of her fine story. We haven't read a better detective yarn in years.

Books For Cooks —

By MAXINE KEOWN

A blockbuster among the cookbooks this Christmas season is Dover Publications' exact facsimile reproduction of Charles Ranhofer's haute cuisine classic "The Epicurean."

It is an unabridged reprinting of the now very rare 1893 edition of this great book in which Ranhofer set down the choice recipes from the bills of fare from 1862 into the 1890s of famed Delmonico's where he was for so many years the master chef.

There are 3,500 specific recipes. But there are also directions and explanations of cooking techniques that made Delmonico's the most famous American restaurant of the time.

Dover is noted for its ressurection of rare works threatened with extinction. But generally those reprints appear in softcover. "The Epicurean" has been given a handsome hardcover treatment, and it runs to 1,183 pages including some 800 illustrations.

As a historic piece, it is impressive. But it has its practical potential as well. Such great dishes as the Delmonico sirloin steak, ham a la Benedict, oysters stuffed a la Mornay, Breton cake, Italian mousse and Boston brown bread have more than stood the tests of time and tastes.

"A Franco-American Culinary Cuisine" claims the frontispiece, which is exactly what it is.

Dover has priced this great book at $17.50, and, from the standpoint of bulk or the quality of its content, that figure seems most reasonable. The serious cook, with an interest already whetted by Julia Childs, will flip over a gift of this master work.

AND WHILE soups are one food field in which the processors have done well by us, producing some really tasty preparations easily available in cans and packages, there is, nevertheless, something especially appealing about homemade soup that has simmered on the kitchen stove. Especially in the winter-time.

Marin's Coralie Castle offers a large and diverse array of soups in her softcover cookbook entitled simply "Soup" and published by 101 Productions of San Francisco.

The range is from Icy Watermelon Soup to Family Minestrone. The bean soups, the vegetable soups, the lentil soups, the cold soups, the Oriental soups, the chowders, the stocks, the purees, the fruit soups — they are all there. Plus such exotics as Peanut Butter Soup and Seafood Gazpacho.

Mrs. Castle also provides some background material on soups and their role in man's history, but the recipes, diverse appealing, are the thing. The book is not only available at bookstores at $3.95, but also from the Marin Community Workshop for the handicapped at 70 Woodland Avenue, San Rafael, which shares in those proceeds.

"NEW CASSEROLE Treasury" (Harper & Row, $7.95) is a revised, updated edition of Lousene Rousseau Brunner's successful cookbook published six years ago. There are more than 400 recipes of many ethnic origins, most of them aimed at the more serious and more prideful cook. The format is especially well-planned and helpful, the directions clear and well-ordered. In no instance must the reader-cook turn the page to complete a recipe.

Samples from its pages run from Baked Oysters with Potato Topping and Ham Casserole with Wine to Quick Green Bean Casserole and Deviled Corn Pudding. But generally they tend to range on the elegant side and to require some investment of time from the cook.

An added bonus: A table of herbs and their recommended uses.

"BRUNCH" HAS come to be one of the most pleasant words in our language. Spoken it brings to mind a late awakening, an unhurried late morning or noontime meal of festive-type foods, with a relaxed day ahead. The range of appropriate foods is a wide one, and yet not all dishes are appropriate for the brunch table. Some are out of place, while others undeniably belong.

June Roth, a veteran author of cookbooks, gives you an appetizing assortment of selections in her "Let's Have a Brunch" cookbook. Her menu suggestions take on a special flair in that they are proposed for holidays and special occasions, or have a national theme. And, indeed, a brunch is the perfect way to get a celebration off to a great start. But the menus and recipes, nonetheless, can be used for any weekend when the brunch-fancy strikes.

Who could fail to respond to waffles with ham and fruit sauce on Thanksgiving morning? Or steamed snowball pudding on Christmas Day? Or a Viennese casserole? Or macaroon coffee cake?

Simon and Schuster is the publisher and the price is $5.95.

"MEAT" BY the Lobel Brothers is considerably more than just a collection of recipes, although it does contain some 300 of those. It is a manual on meats — how to buy, store, prepare and serve them — as prepared by M. Lobel & Sons, the famed New York butchers, and edited by Alice Richardson.

Hawthorn Books is the publisher and the price is $7.95.

Vegetarianism may be enjoying a considerable popularity these days, but for most of us the meat still makes the meal. And the Lobels have put together an exceptionally informative guide as to how to get the most from this important course. Along with the fundamentals there's an appetizing collection of meat, poultry, wild game and sauce recipes that many will find in themselves well worth the price of this well-done, very sound book.

The Lobels, incidentally, are now down to two, Stanley and Leon. But behind them is a family tradition of more than four centuries of dispensing meats and advising their customers.

ONE HAS only to attend a church "social" in a city, town, hamlet or country church to realize again that the very best, no-nonsense cooking takes place in the kitchens of American homes presided over by down-to-earth, dedicated housewives. Beatrice Vaughan, cookbook collector and compiler, has long recognized this and demonstrated it with her "Yankee Hill-Country Cooking" and other cookbooks. Now such is back with more with "The Ladies Aid Cookbook," ($6.95) and her publisher is again Stephen Greene Press of Rutland, Vt.

Her sources are the members of women's organizations in New England and the South, and the recipes are the kinds that have stood the tests of time and taste through generations. It should be noted that the recipes are for family meals, not for fund-raising, mass-feeding events. It is the kind of book in which she expects to find oyster stew, sour cream pie, baked beans and oatmeal cookies. And you do. Along with a lot of other favorites of mothers and grandmothers of two regions justly noted for their cuisines.

SUNSET'S Lane Magazine & Book Co. has abridged its popular hardcover gift book, "Sunset Cook Book for Entertaining," and now offers it in softcover at $1.95.

It is the fast-selling compendium of 250 menus with recipes and party plans plus entertainment ideas. And there is no denying the taste appeal of the choices of the Sunset editors — Brazilian baked trout, Swiss cheese salad, Chocolate-mint fizz, Veal Veronique, Honey-pecan cornbread sticks, etc. If you don't own the original version, here is the chance to pick up the best of it at a bargain price.

A TEMPTING illustration in the "New Casserole Treasury" cookbook compiled by Lousene Rousseau Brunner and reprinted in a new revised edition by Harper and Row shows Bouillabaisse, just one of its more than than 400 recipes.

RECIPES THAT can be made now, served later, are apparently more and more in demand in these time-conscious times. Better Homes and Gardens (Meredith) takes advantage of this interest with a "Make-Ahead Cook Book."

This is one of those rather slim, tastefully designed, reasonably priced ($1.95) cookbooks for which Better Homes has found a brisk market. Busy housewives are certain to find a number of helpful ideas and recipes in its pages. For instance, Lime Chicken that can be prepared entirely in advance. Or Coffee Eclairs that require but 10 minutes for final assembly.

Better Homes and Gardens' experience and feeling for the needs and interest of the housewives are reflected in the quality of this excellent addition to its publications.

JUNE ROTH is the author of the "Let's Have a Brunch" cookbook, published by Simon and Schuster under its Essandess Special Editions label.

FOR THE health food crowd is "The Whole Wheat Heart of Yasha Aginsky" (Dutton, $4.95) compiled by Carrier Rose with the help of artist Melinda Peterson as a vegetarian cookbook. It is in softcover and in handwriting and handprinting, and it avoids meats (but not fish) while making extensive use of the products on the shelves of the health food stores.

There are things like cheese bread, spinach salad, egg and nut pate, barley and mushroom pilaf, carrot cake, apricot chutney, split pea stew and Jared's black bread. And even if you are not prepared to enlist in the vegetarian ranks, you'll find many recipes that sound good and wholesome enough to share space with your meat entree upon your dinner table. It is a clever, attractive book that makes more creative, yet practical, use of whole wheat flour, honey, yogurt, sunflower oil and miso than do most such books.

AT THE other end of the cooking spectrum is "World's 50 Best Meat Recipes," a small booklet that originally appeared in Dutch by Ben J. Kuyper and has been translated into English by Jane Heller and published by Herder and Herder.

In softcover, it offers a rather exotic array of meat recipes from many lands and many peoples, and they are definitely of a kind not usually encountered in American cookbooks — the stiphado of Greece, the tjap tjae of Indonesia, the hallacas of Venezuela. It is for the cook who really likes to vary her menus and to try something different. And it is part of a "World's 50 Best" recipes series — cheese dishes, soups, salads, pancakes, etc.

The Hellebore Family: Evergreen, Distinctive

Gardening Page

With most flowers, warming temperatures and longer sunny days bring out blooms.

It's just the opposite with members of the Hellebore family — Christmas Rose, Lenten Rose, and Corsican Hellebore. With the arrival of cool weather and shorter days they start busting out all over.

From December to April, one or all are likely to be in bloom, which makes the Hellebore clan a delightful addition to the winter garden. They are distinctive additions in both flower and foliage; and during the wet season continue to hold their blossoms high through any rain or wind storm.

The Christmas Rose (Helleborus niger) displays masses of two-inch flower cups on single stems which are mainly white, but often tend to plum and purplish hues.

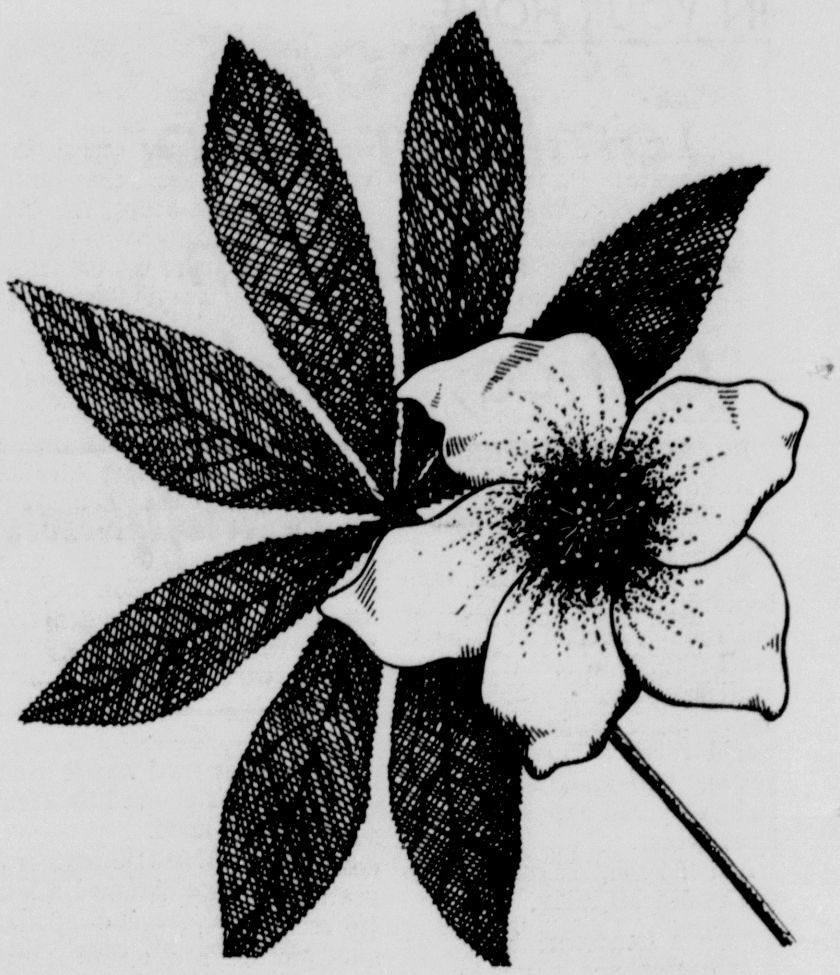
Lenten Rose (Helleborus orientalis) produces plenteous blooms, several per stem, and can be found in several unusual shadings. Flowers are primarily greenish or greenish-to-purple or purple-rose. Pink, white and maroon flowers are occasionally to be found, too.

Corsican Hellebore (Helleborus lividus) is the largest of the three and bears clusters of appealing pale green flowers like nothing you've ever seen.

THE DEEPLY-cut leaves vary in size by variety, and the evergreen foliage is attractive throughout the year. Christmas and Lenten Roses stay under two feet in height and serve nicely as low, spreading landscape shrubs. Corsican Hellebore is more shrub-like in appearance, growing to three feet, and is an ideal low-growing garden feature.

The California Association of Nurserymen advises that members of the Hellebore family are especially excellent choices for partially-shaded areas in the landscape. But avoid planting them where they'll receive direct or reflected hot afternoon sun in summer, however.

The plants like more shade then sun, appreciate moisture and an acid soil — which are modest requirements for such extraordinary contributors to the beauty of your garden, and to your enjoyment.



THE LENTEN ROSE or Helleborus orientalis is a member of the distinctive Hellebore clan and produces profusions of blooms in unusual shadings that might be greenish, greenish-purple or rose. (Drawing courtesy of California Association of Nurserymen)

Green Plants Do Job Of Noise Abatement Well

Excessive noise levels in homes and offices have an extremely detrimental effect on tempers and efficiency, according to recent studies by the World Health Organization. In addition, aggravating noises have been linked to tension-related diseases.

With the volume of noise in our environment reaching greater levels each day, the need for effective sound-reducing agents is becoming more and more critical to our well-being.

Among the most efficient noise abatement agents is nature's own green growing plant life.

In homes, planted thickly in dividers or along playrooms, around windows and other noise areas, they help block the sounds of radios, televisions, appliances, voices and other household sounds. They even help reduce outside noises.

CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

✔ If you would like to grow some plants from seed, you can sow Sweet Alyssum, Bachelor Button, Clarkia and wildflower mixtures into the open ground now after the first rains.

✔ Shop for a living Christmas tree while the selection is at its best — like now. If you would grow it in a tub or box through several Christmases, select an attractive container large enough to allow for growth. A bag of commercial soil mix makes planting easy.

✔ Continue the garden clean-up. Now is a good time to spray certain deciduous trees and shrubs. Your nurseryman can recommend the plant protection chemicals to use.

✔ Double check long canes on climbing roses to make sure they are secured. Winter winds and rain might loosen and damage them if you don't.

Tambour Doors Are Useful In Office, Kitchen

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY

Have you ever wondered what ingenious person invented the tambour door system?

Most of us have used tambours or at least seen them as the roll-top section of a desk. Isn't the idea great? Some craftsman had a problem one day: how to design a door that would cover a curved surface yet one that would slide out of sight when the owner wished to have access.

And the solution continues to work miracles today.

Currently, I spend the best of a day behind a 20th Century roll-top desk. It's a Herman Miller product, slim, handsome with the main working space coverable. A nice device when the day's work isn't quite culminated yet you must leave it until morning. Simply pull the tambour down and, voila, the office looks visitor-perfect.

THE TAMBOUR or roll-top desk is especially helpful in an office such as mine where the walls are glass toward the street and toward the inner reception area. It's always on display as corporate executives and their guests come and go during he day and early evening.

Tambours are practical at home. How often do you start some paperwork or tax prepration only to have to interrupt your labors to attend to family-matters? Lucky are the gals or guys with a roll-top desk: They can slip away knowing that the papers will go undisturbed and unnoticed.

Handyman's Pages

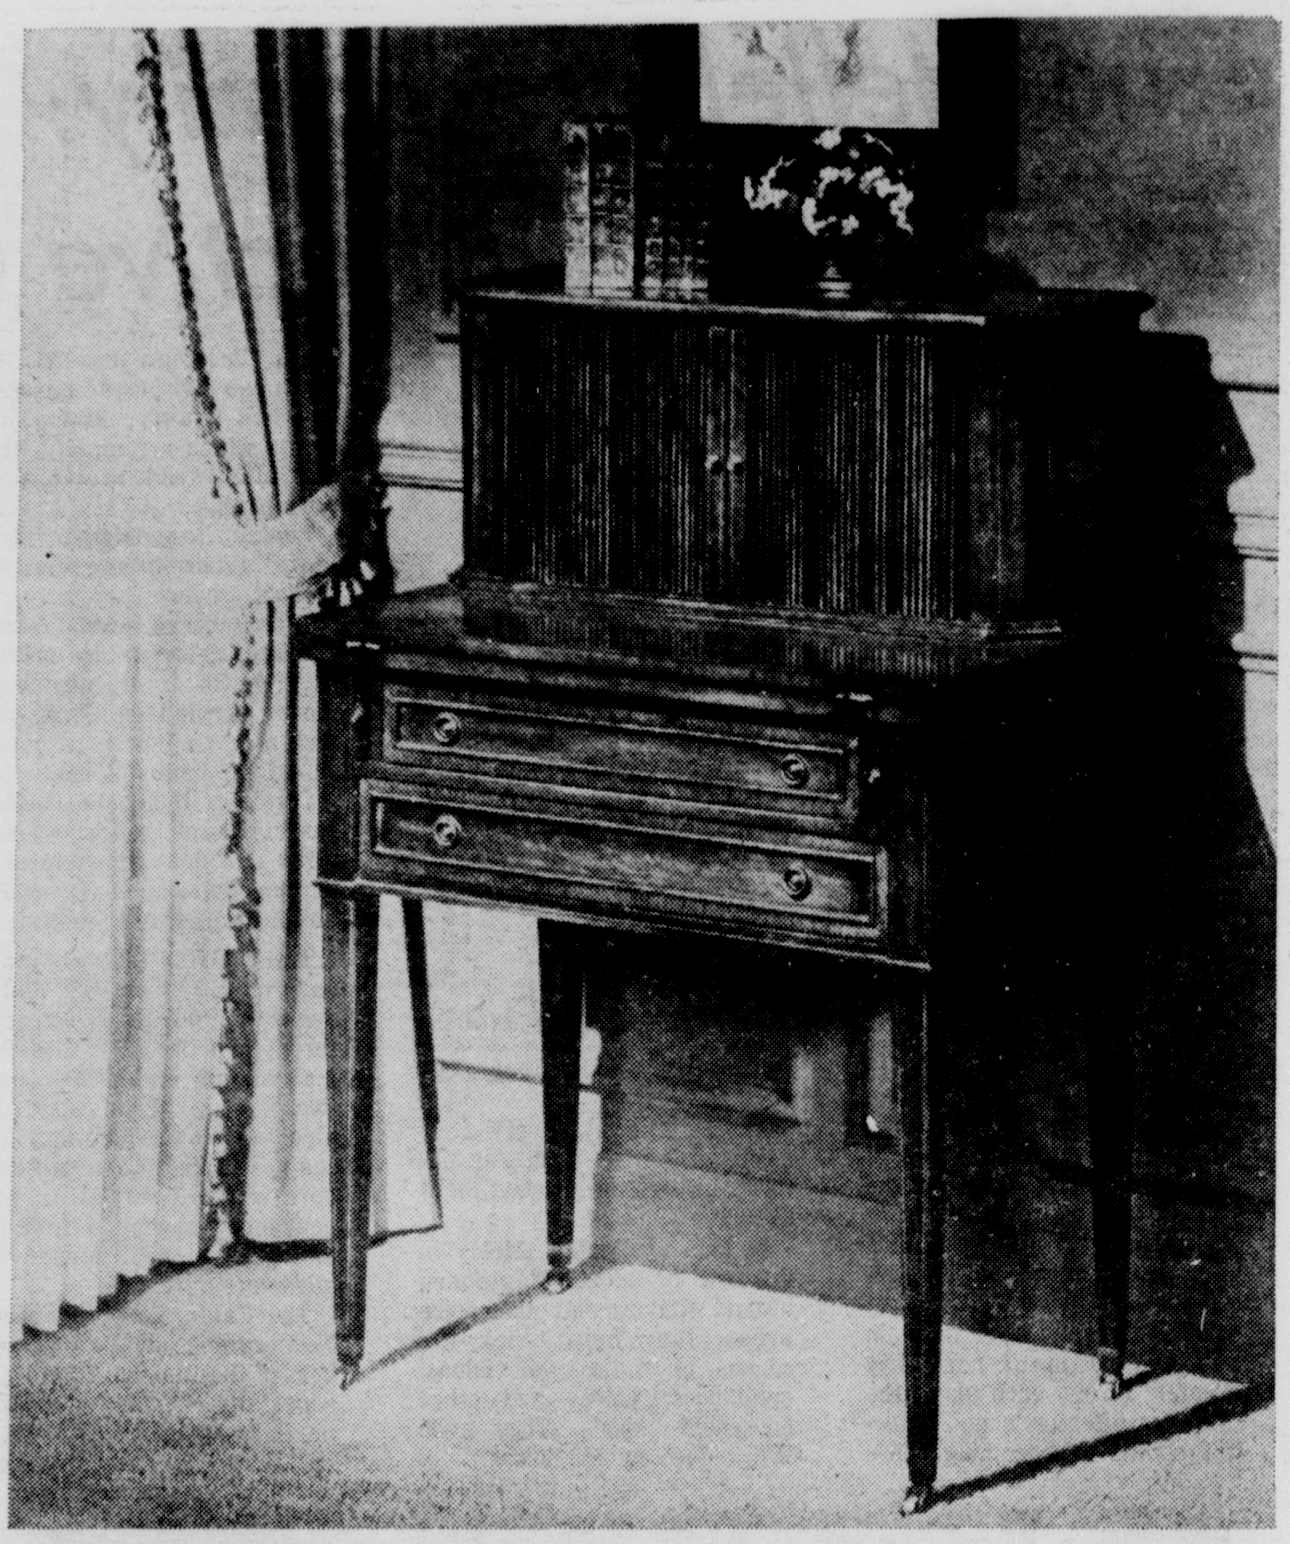
LADD AND HIS partner John Kelsey once designed a kitchen where all needed appliances were filed at counter-height. They devised a series of recessed cupboards in back of the sink counter which they fitted with a strip of plug molding. Each recess was sized to hold a specific cooking tool such as an electric frying pan or a blender. Tambour doors slip out of the way when the owner wants to use the appliance, but when food preparation sessions were finished, the counters were nicely cleared of all the odd-size gadgetry.

The visual assets were obvious, but even better in this design was the saving of energy and time, the appliance provided the busy home owner. No lifting, no scrambling around looking for the extension cords or the plugs. It left a lot more time for creative cooking and food presentation.

I've wondered if the home craftsman could create a tambour.

ON OBSERVATION, they seem to be a series of dowels glued together or adhered to a very thin sheet of wood veneer or tough fabric. That may be oversimplification but with a system of tracks on which the trip of dowels could run, I believe it could work.

The tambour components seem to vary in thickness or diameter. The desk shown today by Brandt Cabinet Works makes use of very tiny tambours, for a refined version of a roll-top desk. The writing surface flips open to double in size, and two drawers offer storage space for the accouterments of letter writing.



A MAHOGANY DESK by Brandt, part of its Society Hill furniture group, provides the perfect hideaway for those private papers. The desk features tambour doors that conceal a pair of small, secret-keeping drawers.

Platform For The Appliance

Platforms of wood are constructed easily for appliances such as freezers or washers and dryers installed in garages.

The platforms will keep appliances off the floor in event of a ruptured water tank or other flooding, and will raise them for convenience of taller persons. Platforms also may be used to keep garbage cans off damp floors.

For lower platforms, runners of two-by-six or two-by-eight-inch Douglas fir or western pine, on edge, can be covered by decking of two-by-fours laid flat. Higher platforms may have legs of four-by-four-inch posts, top frame and cross-braces of two-by-fours, and decking of two-by-four or two-by-six-inch fir or pine.

Use Cozy Corner For Hobby Nook

The corner of a room is all the homemaker needs to create an interesting and functional hobby area.

Such a cozy nook, requiring no more than 50 to 75 square feet, can be used by all members of the family. It will add function to a living or recreation room without seriously subtracting from the overall space.

How to accomplish such an attractive, functional spot?

You just "earmark" the space, suggests Norma Brown, homemaking consultant to Masonite Corp., by adding distinctive walls, installing a desk, hanging a cabinet overhead, and buying a table and chair ensemble.

Because this corner will receive more than ordinary use, it's a good idea to have walls that are both attractive and wear-resistant. Widely used for these reasons, and because they are easily maintained by damp-wiping, are wood-grained or textured hardboard panels.

These prefinished panels may be installed over existing walls or directly to studs in new construction.

The colors and patterns are in good taste anywhere. They make an excellent background for hobby and game activities, Miss Brown declares.

"Making good use of existing space," she suggests, "is the mark of a homemaker's common sense and talents. Converting a plain corner into a cozy nook will give every member of the family a lift."

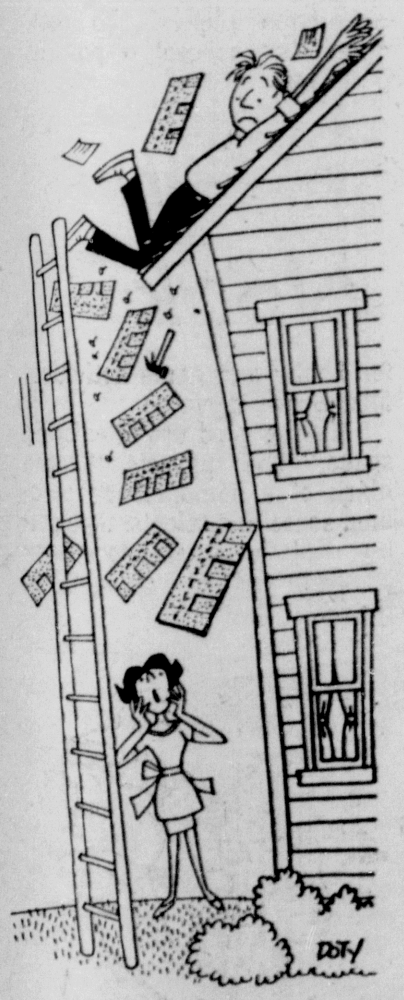
FOR ONE all-too-brief time of the year, neighborhoods in many cities turn into dazzling fairylands, ablaze with lights and sights. If your block is not one of these fantasy areas, perhaps you can start a trend by erecting your own outdoor Christmas spectacle this yuletide. A good starting point is a Steve Ellingson pattern or patterns. For the three large pictures that make possible the St. Nick Flyer train display shown on the right, send $3 to Steve Ellingson, San Rafael Independent-Journal Pattern Department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409, and ask for No. C-5. Then it is a simple matter of affixing the pictures onto plywood and coloring them by the paint-by-numbers method. It is a holiday setting that is waterproof and will last you for years. But don't delay. Time is growing short if you are to recieve your pictures in time for the 1971 Christmas season.

New Roofing Is Not A Job For The Home Handyman

There are home improvement tasks that the handyman can tackle with confidence and with minimum risk.

But roofing is not one of them.

If the top of your house is in need of attention, go looking for a reliable, experienced professional roofing contractor.



The roof is much too important to the snugness and safety of your home to risk an amateur job. Besides, applying roofing is hazardous work.

ROOFING contractors are properly equipped and their mechanics are specialists in the proper application of quality roofing. And any home, new or old, castle or cottage, deserves quality on top.

Top-of-the-line roofing products include heavyweight asphalt shingles.

Heavyweights are more massive — when applied, they weight 290 pounds or more per 100 square feet of roof area instead of 235 pounds for standard shingles — and are designed to last up to 25 years. Their greater mass gives them deep shadow lines and a rich texture that adds "class" to any house.

CHOOSE YOUR roofer as carefully as you do your roofing material. No matter how you find him — through newspaper advertisements, in the yellow pages, or through a friend or neighbor, make sure he's an established businessman with references you can check.

A booklet with detailed information about quality roofing, including how to choose it and how it should be applied, is available for 25 cents from SR&A, Box 3202, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y., 10017.

Hollywood Divorcee Hope Content With Family, Career

By VERNON SCOTT

Hope Lange, who gave up the ghost in "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir" for a flesh and blood husband in "The New Dick Van Dyke Show," is a divorcee in private life.

Off-screen the well-rounded blonde is less square than the characters she's played in the two series.

Her beaux have included Glenn Ford and Frank Sinatra.

SHE HAS BEEN married twice: to actor Don Murray and to producer-director Alan Pakula.

Hope lives in a two-story, New England-type home in the western suburbs of Los Angeles with her two children by Murray, Christopher, 14, and Patricia, 12. It has been their home for almost seven years.

At the moment the house is being transformed from New England white (that's very white indeed) to barn red (a bright, bright red). There are four bedrooms in the house, a sauna and swimming pool, and separate servants quarters for a housekeeper.

HOPE HAS furnished her home with a conglomeration of antiques and modern things. Posters and old lithographs of women and children can be found throughout the house.

Despite domestic help, Hope does all the family cooking, and with mouth-watering dexterity.

"When I was a child," Hope explains, "my mother ran a

HOPE LANGE
She's not so square

restaurant in New York's Washington Square. She cooked in the little kitchen and I waited table. My sister was the cashier and my brother ran deliveries. The place was called Minette of Washington Square."

IT WAS IN that kitchen Hope learned to cook home-made soups, cheese and egg pie and other delicacies.

There is only one element to mar Hope's domesticity.

"The New Dick Van Dyke Show" is shot entirely in Arizona at a new studio near Phoenix because Van Dyke lives near there.

Hope must spend six months a year in a rented home on the desert.

LAST SPRING Hope left the children in charge of her housekeeper and commuted every weekend to be with her family.

Next season Chris and Patricia will live with her in Arizona and attend school there. Hope looks forward to having a family to return to each night. Her hours on the set are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. — and 10 p.m. on the night the show is taped before a live audience.

Moving her family to Arizona is no small matter. It means the transport of a horse named Missy, Patricia's pet, a toy poodle, Reilly, and Sasha, a German Shepherd.

"I'VE BEEN single for two year now," Hope says. "Both Don Murray and Alan Pakula visit the children regularly."

Hope dates fairly often, going out for dinner and to movies with some of Hollywood's best known stars. Her favorite evening is to entertain four to six people at home for dinner.

Most of Hope's wardrobe is tailored, and some of the clothes she wears are those made specifically for her role in the CBS series.

She wears hot pants during the day but disapproves of them for night wear.

There is every possibility Hope Lange will marry again. But for the time being she is content to raise her family and pursue her career.

On The Stereo Scene

By WILBUR G. LANDREY

Hector Villa — Lobos contributed as much as any composer, perhaps more, to the development of a national classical music in Brazil.

Born in 1887, he taught himself to play the guitar as a boy and joined the wandering street musicians of Rio de Janeiro in defiance of his mother's wishes that he should study medicine. Later he travelled around Brazil, taking his guitar with him, to collect folk melodies.

Still later, he turned his attention to classical music. His debut as a classical composer in Rio in 1915 did not impress the audiences but it did impress Arthur Rubenstein, who happened to hear him there while on a concert tour. At his death in 1959, he enjoyed world renown.

IN A NEW RCA release (LSC-3231 Red Seal), Julian Bream plays eight of Villa-Lobos' compositions for the guitar.

From the early period of playing in the streets, bars and hotels there is the Schottisch-Choro. From his period living in Paris in the late 1920s, there is an etude, and from the period after he returned to Brazil there are five preludes composed in 1939-40. Finally, there is a more elaborate concerto for guitar and orchestra played with the London Symphony orchestra, Andre Previn conducting.

THE COST OF recording classical music in this country is steep, and earlier this year Angel Records announced it would not renew its contract with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. Each musician gets $95 for a three-hour session, which is several times the rates in Europe.

The latest Angel release of a Chicago Symphony record is of the orchestra under the direction of Seiji Ozawa playing Leos Janacek's "Sinfonietta" on one side and Witold Lutoslawski's "Concert for Orchestra" on the other (S-36045). A well-done record.

Other releases: Alexander Kipnis, the Russo-American basso prominent in the first half of this century, singing lieder of Handel, Schubert, Schumann, Brahms and R. Strauss, recorded in the late 1920s (Columbia Masterworks M 30405).

TV NOTES

By JACK GARVER

Look for Helen Hayes on a forthcoming CBS "Here's Lucy" episode. The theater's "first lady" will be seen as a widow who is not only a devotee of spiritualism but also is a suspected swindler.

NBC thinks that a change of title may improve the rating of its Thursday night "Nichols" series. It is now known as "James Garner as Nichols," hopefully banking on its star's reputation earned in past video and movie performances to get the series off the gound.

Sally Field, who was a flying nun in her last television series and the adolescent Gidget before that, has been injected into ABC's "Alias Smith and Jones" skein in the recurring role of Clementine Jones, a character best described as a con woman.

Now it is television for "Anna and the King of Siam." CBS has ordered from 20th Century-Fox a half-hour pilot film designed to lead to a weekly series. Yul Brynner, the original co-star of the notable Rodgers-Hammerstein stage version, "The King and I," again plays the 19th Century Siamese monarch who learns about Western ways from an English governess. Presumably, the video version stems only from the original book and has no truck with the beautiful score of "The King and I." More's the pity.

YOUNG BROS. OF NOVATO

models for every taste—and every budget!
All chassis tubes are out—replaced by solid state circuitry designed to perform longer with fewer repairs.

Backed for one year by RCA.

We have such confidence in the reliability of XL-100 we're backing each set in writing for a full year, covering both parts and labor. Here are the basic provisions of our XL-100 "Purchaser Satisfaction" warranty ("PS" for short)'

If any thing goes wrong with your new set within a year from the day you buy it, and it's our fault, we'll pay your repair bill - both parts and complete labor.

You can use any service shop in which you have confidence - you don't have to pick from some special authorized list.

If your set is a portable, you take it in for service. For larger sets, your serviceman will come to your home. Just present your warranty Registration card and RCA pays his repair bill.

If your picture tube becomes defective during the first two years we will exchange it for a rebuilt tube. (We pay for installation during the first year - you pay for it in the second year).

In short, the warranty covers every set defect. It doesn't cover installation, foreign use, antenna systems or adjustment of customer controls.

THANKSGIVING

Falling leaves . . .
Little girls' curls
Blowing in the wind . . .
The first Thanksgiving . . .
I remember when
The wagon rolled out,
The horse stood grim —
It was seven miles
To Waterloo —
Fields dotted
With pumpkin gold —
Oh, What a sight!
Pleasants and turkeys
Hung from the rafters . . .
Baskets of nuts and
Jugs of cider . . .
Plum puddings and
Dates from foreign lands . . .
Glass jars filled with
Wintergreen and rock candy.
It seems dim now —
Called out of bed
To peel the apples
And clean the shed,
Where the horses from town
Would be unbridled and fed.
Uncles and aunts —
Cousins, too!
It was a glorious day
For fun and play.
Then all was quiet,
A prayer to day —
God did bless
This Thanksgiving Day.
